Pension benefits cushion ousted state legislators

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The bitterness of political defeat and forced retirement will be sweetened for legislators this year by special lucrative pension benefits linked with reapportionment.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed state budget contains almost $500,000 in retirement funds for lawmakers for the coming year, fattend from previous years, in part, because of "projected increases in retirement resulting from reapportionment."

A number of legislators are expected to quit rather than run in new districts drawn by the state Supreme Court. Others are predicted to lose their reelection bids because they will be running in unfamiliar territory. And some lawmakers are giving up their seats to run for higher office.

Senate Republican leader Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding is one of those expected to quit. Six-term Assemblyman Harvey Johnson, D-El Monte, also has said he will retire rather than face a primary battle against freshman Assemblyman Joseph P. Montoya, D-La Puente.

The legislators' retirement system, supported primarily with taxpayers' funds, basically allows generous benefits at age 60 with four years service as a lawmaker or at any age with 15 years of service.

For example, from Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, retired in 1972 after 20 years service. He receives a pension of $14,148, only $41 a month less than the top salary be received for his legislative duties.

A special clause was written into the retirement law in 1971 to provide unusual benefits in reapportionment years. The provision requires a contribution of 8 per cent of a legislator's annual salary.

If a lawmaker resigns or loses his seat during a year in which his district is redrawn, he can receive a pension immediately—regardless of age —if he has served four years.

When the clause was enacted, it applied to lawmakers elected before 1970—all those holding office at the time. It does not include legislators elected since then. But that feature is expected to be updated this year.

Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, is critical of special retirement benefits granted solely because of reapportionment.

"It's a terrible rationale," he said in an interview. "I don't see any justification at all for it soley because of reapportinment."

In 1972, legislators also voted to boost the retirement credit they will receive for serving during 1973 and 1974 as part of a legislative pay raise bill.

And lawmakers who win reelection this year can also gain the special reapportionment pension benefits granted to those who quit. If those who are reelected make contributions at the 8 per cent rate, they will be entitled to the same early and immediate pension benefits.

2 students save drowning child

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — A 2-year-old boy, found nearly drowned at the bottom of a swimming pool here, was revived by a student nurse Sunday morning.

Police credit the young woman, Nan Olsen, 20, Los Angeles, and her companion, Mark Mahan, 20, 690 W. San Jose Ave., with saving the life of Carrie L. Reese.

Officer Gus Kitterle gave this account:

Carrie and his 3-year-old brother. Kevin, wandered away from their home at 650 W. San Jose Ave. to the apartment buildings nearby at 690 W. San Jose. Somehow, they got through a gate to the pool. There is a fence around the pool, which is located at the rear of the apartment buildings.

Carrie either jumped or fell in and his brother ran toward the front of the buildings in search of help. He was noticed by Mahan, a resident in the process of moving out. He and several other young persons were loading furniture when they saw the child.

They said Kevin pointed towards the pool, saying "Brother, brother," and Mahan and the others dropped what they were doing and ran towards the pool.

Mahan vaulted the fence and saw Carrie lying at the bottom of the pool. The young man dived in and retrieved him from about five feet of water.

Mahan tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in an effort to revive the victim, but he wasn't succeeding. At that point, Miss Olsen arrived and took over. She managed to restore Carrie's breathing.

Firemen reached the scene, gave the boy oxygen and he was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for further treatment. He was admitted to the pediatrics ward and was reported in satisfactory condition there today.

Kitterle said he believes that if the victim had been in the pool one more minute, he would not have survived.

"His eyes were buldging out and he had turned blue when they got him out," the policeman said.

AVALANCHE VICTIMS

Rescue workers prepared to mount a snow vehicle Sunday in a storm to search for two girls buried in an avalanche near North Bend, Wash. Rescue operations were conducted through the night under lights and flares but there is little hope for the girls, Jean D. Kisman, 10 of Seattle and Linda D. Angell, 13, of Renton, Wash. Rescuers said the snow was wet and it was unlikely there are any air holes.

Move opens way home to trapped Arabs

By United Press International

Cheering Israeli soldiers handed over their control of one-third of the west bank of the Suez Canal today to United Nations forces, lifting the siege of Suez City and freeing the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army in the Sinai.

A force of 600 U.N. troops in blue helmets and armed only with black Finnish Valmett automatic rifles immediately moved into the vacated positions. Egyptian forces will take over at later in the day, Finnish Col. Reino K. Raitasaari, commander of UN forces in the area, said.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross reported from Suez City that wisps of black smoke curled into the blue sky from dozens of locations as the Israelis burned what they could not take with them. The withdrawing Israelis previously blew up Egyptian missile sites.

The chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, denied earlier that Israeli was bound by the Suez front disengagement agreement to leave Egyptian military installations untouched, although he said civilian property would not be damaged.

Israel and Syria, which have yet to agree to separate their forces, reported tank and artillery battles along the tense Golan Heights truce lines. Israel reported no casualties, but Syria said 40 Israelis were killed or wounded.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said the Israeli withdrawal would be followed later in the day by a thinning out of Egyptian forces along the East Bank of the 102-mile-long waterway.

Israeli halftracks, armored personnel carriers, jeeps, trucks and buses all crowded with helmeted Israelis jammed the Cairo-Suez road in the first military withdrawal carried out by the Jewish state since it surrendered the Sinai in 1957.

The UN forces formally took control of the highway at midday following a dawn transfer of the Gulf of Suez port of Adabiya, Israel's southernmost point of occupation. The Israelis also handed over their cease-fire line position at Kilometer 101 of the highway.

"We held a short parade formation in the presence of the Swedish U.N. troops who were rather curious about it, as well as our friends, the Egyptians, on the other side," said Lt. Col. David, commander of the Israeli truce line post.

"Then we pulled the flag down, folded it up and, with a last salute, we said a nice goodbye and packed up," he told a radio interviewer.

Brown Jr. declares his candidacy for governor

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Pledging a "new spirit of activism" and no new taxes immediately, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. today announced his candidacy for governor, an office his father held for eight years.

"With proper planning, California will again have blue skies, an educational system second to none and a prosperous economy," the 35-year-old Democrat declared.

Brown promised no new taxes in the first year if he is elected but added there would be some shifting of programs with heavy emphasis on education.

"We can live within the present tax rate," he said.

Brown also stressed the need for the state to regain control of its own oil.

"California should take out the oil and allocate it to the various utility companies to prevent brownouts and blackouts," he said.

Brown, who as secretary of state had built a reputation as a tough enforcer of campaign finance reporting laws, announced plans to follow in the footsteps of his father at news conferences called for San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

At the campaign kickoff, Brown said in the next few months he intends to "outline programs that will create a new spirit of activism and hope in state government."

He said if elected his "first act" would be a reorganization of government with one clearly defined energy and research agency and a separate agency charged with environmental protection and planning.

Brown said he would "restore excellence" to the educational system and put a halt to "irresponsible attacks" on the university of California. He also pledged to intensify job-placement programs for the unemployed and press the fight to "diminish the influence of big money in politics."

Brown, son of former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who lost a third term bid to Ronald Reagan in 1966, became the fifth officially announced candidate for the June 4 Democratic primary gubernatorial nomination.

Mercury drops to 28; ranchers fan citrus crops

Citrus ranchers in La Verne, Upland, Chino and Alta Loma used wind machines this morning to protect their crops from the chilly temperatures that slipped down to 28 degrees in some agricultural areas.

The frosty weather came after sunny and clear weather Sunday that sent many local residents to deserts, mountains and the beaches to enjoy the sunshine.

Earl Adams of Snow Crest Lodge at Mt. Baldy said the resort area did a brisk business Sunday with an estimated 20,000 to 24,000 visitors. Adams said there is plenty of snow beyond the lodge area and a three foot snow pack at the ski lift.

A storm Saturday brought snow, rain and sleet to the San Bernardino Mountains and chains are still required in the Running Springs and Big Bear area.

Oil-squeeze advocate vows some reduction in fuel prices

By United Press International

The architect of the Arab "oil weapon" promised today eventual cuts in fuel prices, but petroleum sources saw no end in sight to the boycott of shipments to the United States.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said today in Tokyo his country favored reductions in recent oil prices hikes in view of their adverse impact on the world economy.

Yamani, the man most responsible for designing the Arab oil cutbacks and boycotts imposed during last October's Middle East War, said, however, the price drops would not take place immediately.

Yamani also warned Japan, France, Britain and West Germany against joining the the United States in a confrontation with oil-producing nations.

He said the interests of the developed countries were best served by bilateral deals helping the oil-rich countries industrialize in return for assured supplies of petroleum.

Yamani isued his warning at a news conference at the Japan Press Club in response to President Nixon's call for a meeting of oil-consuming nations Feb. 1 in Washington.

In Beirut, diplomatic sources predicted Arab oil producers— with Saudi Arabia taking the lead—would turn down an appeal by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for lifting the fuel embargo of the United States.

Sadat recently called for a "gesture" by the Arab oil states because of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts in working out the Israeli-Egyptian troop pullback accord.

At the same time, a group of Arab and non-Arab oil specialists from producing countries met in Vienna today to stabilize steeply rising oil prices and prevent economic chaos for buyers and sellers of petroleum.

Sources said the first task of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) would be to establish future prices. The current levels were frozen until the end of March.

Lying to FBI

Porter, Nixon re-election unit aide, pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert L. "Bart" Porter, who told the Senate Watergate Committee he had kept quiet for fear he would be accused of "not being a team player," pleaded guilty today to one count of lying to the FBI about the scandal.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant let Porter go free without bond and postponed sentencing until the court gets a probation report.

At Bryant's request, a prosecuting attorney described briefly what he would have sought to prove in court had there been a trial. Bryant asked Porter if he had any "quarrel" with the government's statement, and Porter said he did not.

The statement related what Porter had told the Senate committee in June—that Porter told the FBI on July 19, 1972 that he had a conversation with Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy director of President Nixon's re-election campaign, about plans to use $100,000 to finance protection for campaign speakers.

"There was no such conversation and the government is ready to prove it," the prosecuting attorney said.

The actual use of the money was not mentioned during the brief court proceeding, but it was understood that Porter's conversation with Magruder dealt with $100,000 passed to G. Gordon Liddy to finance the Watergate break-in.

Porter's plea in effect waived a right to jury trial. After getting Porter's assurance that he understood this, Bryant asked him, "Do you understand the penalty?"

"I believe it is five years or $10,000 or both," Porter said.

Bryant then read the charge and asked Porter how he pleaded.

"I plead guilty, your honor," Porter said.

Porter, former scheduling director for the Committee for the Re-election of the President, told the Watergate committee that Magruder had asked him to perjure himself.

Tornadoes, winds lace South, Texas

By United Press International

Tornadoes and high winds knocked down buildings and wires in southern and southwestern states today and left casualties in their wake.

The storms in the South followed a day of turbulent windy weather for the northeastern quadrant of the United States, which brought building damage and some blackouts to states from Michigan to New York, where winds of more than 60 miles per hour were clocked. One death was recorded in New York.

The tornadoes hit over a wide area, one wrapped a mobile home around a tree and overturned another in Pinehill, Tex., injuring a 71-year-old woman. Another touched Collins and moved on to McGehee, in the southwestern part of Arkansas, leaving one person slightly injured and considerable damage to roofs and whole buildings.

At least four persons were injured when tornadoes swept over an area southwest of Jackson, Miss., and damage was reported to other homes in extreme northwest Mississippi.

At least 40 homes and two industrial plants were damaged by high winds in Fayette, northwestern Alabama, before dawn, leaving no reported injuries but damage estimated into the thousands of dollars.

U.S. acts to even heating oil prices, improve gas supply

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government will move this week to end the price fluctuation in home heating oil that has caused some homeowners to pay 50 per cent more than their neighbors, energy chief William E. Simon said today.

Simon also told the Senate subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations that the home heating oil crisis has been manageable so far —but that the crunch is far from over.

Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, said the price fluctuations were caused by the difference between cheaper domestic-produced heating oil and the more expensive imported oil. He said new rules to be published in the Federal Register this week would assure each supplier an equitable share of both products.

"This situation is particularly visible in New England, which historically has been dependent on imported products," Simon said. "We in the FEO are deeply concerned when a homeowner pays 50 per cent more for heating oil than does a next door neighbor who uses a different supplier. We consider the situation unfair and intolerable."

The sooner the heating oil situation can be stabilized, the sooner oil producers can shift the emphasis of production back to gasoline, Simon said. The sooner this can be accomplished, the less likely will be the chances of gasoline rationing.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Sunday rationing may be a reality between April and June unless the Arab boycott ends.

"I don't think there's much doubt about it, unless there are some developments overseas which would indicate that we will get extra crude material which will make it possible for us to draw down on inventories," Jackson said.

Simon was asked by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., whether it seemed unlikely that rationing would be ordered before the end of April.

"In my job, that is an eternity," Simon said. But he said within two weeks the FEO will decide when it can nudge refiners to shift their concentration from heating oil to gasoline.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, asked Simon if he thought "we are over the heating oil crunch this winter."

"No sir, we are not," Simon said. "Or we would have already started shifting production back from middle distillates to gasoline. We have still got a critical distillate situation."

The heating oil situation has been manageable so far, Simon said, because the weather has been mild; Americans have shown "magnificent response" to conservation requests; the Arab oil embargo leaked for a time; and the government was successful in encouraging refineries to concentrate on heating oil.

Simon earlier had guaranteed most of the nation's utilities they would have enough residual fuel oil to meet 95 per cent of power needs in February.

Both houses of Congress plan to take final action this week on a bill giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the fuel shortage.

Hawaii begins mandatory gas rationing plan

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii motorists today launch "Gasplan," the nation's first mandatory gasoline rationing program, in an effort to end the panic at the pumps.

The fuel crisis has been harsher in Hawaii than in most other states. Motorists with blankets and coffee have lined up for blocks and spent entire nights waiting for the gas stations to open.

There have been fights, arrests and even shootings at service stations, prices have soared and so have car thefts by thieves who don't bother siphoning the gas.

Details of the rationing plan were announced by acting Gov. George Ariyoshi after officials of Hawaii's five major oil companies emphasized in weekend public hearings that the state's fuel situation will remain tight at least through March.

Starting today, gasoline dealers are selling on an "odd-even" basis — cars with license plates ending in even numbers can get gas on even-numbered calendar days while those with odd numbers have their turn on odd-numbered days.

All gas stations must start selling gas by 6 a.m. or earlier. No gas sales are allowed during the rush hours or on Saturday and Sundays. The plan applies mainly to the most-populated island of Oahu, with the neighbor islands of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai exempt, along with emergency vehicles and commercial vehicles that have existing accounts with particular stations.

Ariyoshi emphasized that even with Gasplan, "The end of our gasoline troubles is going to depend on the cooperation of the public in reducing individual gasoline consumption."

The big oil companies serving Hawaii, Standard Oil of California, Shell, Union Oil, Phillips Petroleum and Texaco, have been subpoenaed by Ronald Amemiya, administrator of the rationing system, to account for the gasoline shortage. Ariyoshi is acting governor while Gov. John Burns recuperates from cancer surgery.

The spokesman for Standard Oil, the state's largest supplier, said the company had a 26-to 28-day supply of gas on hand and that the total amount of gas available is one-third less than required to meet the demand.

Late '73 was bad for oil firm's income

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Standard Oil Company of Ohio (Sohio) announced Sunday a 40 per cent drop in the 1973 fourth quarter earnings compared to the same period in 1972, although earnings for the year were up 24 per cent.

Earnings were $11.6 million compared to $19.3 million before an extraordinary loss of $2.2 million the last period of 1972.

The drop in fourth quarter earnings was attributed to the increased costs of crude oil which were not recovered in petroleum product prices because of Cost of Living Council rules.

However, earnings of $74.1 million for the 1973 year increased 24 per cent over $59.7 million in 1972.

Fourth quarter revenues were $386.6 million, up 7 per cent over the 1972 revenues of $360.2 million. Revenues for the year totaled $1.48 billion, an increase of 8 per cent over $1.37 billion in 1972.

Net income for 1973 was $89.4 million, including extraordinary gains of $15.3 million resulting from sale of certain oil properties and uranium interests. This compares to an extraordinary loss in 1972 of $2.2 million which reduced net income to $57.5 million.

Arab warns oil users about D.C. parley

TOKYO (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani warned Japan and European countries today not to go to the Deb. 11 Washington meeting proposed by President Nixon if they were seeking a confrontation with the oil producing nations.

He said the interests of Japan, France, Britain and Germany are best served by bilateral deals, in which they help backward, oil-rich countries to industrialize, in return for assured supplies of petroleum.

"If the idea is to unite them for a confrontation, it will be a serious matter for both consumer and producer nations," Yamani told a news conference at the Japan Press Club. "It will be an especially serious matter for Japan, which depends almost 100 per cent on imported oil."

The first Japanese comment came from Kiichi Miyazawa, a former minister of international trade and industry and an influential Conservative party member of the lower house of the Diet. He said Yamani's statement is "a headache" for Japan.

"Actually the statements made by Mr. Yamani today concerning this conference give a great headache to Japan," Miyazawa said. "...Prime Minister Tanaka has said that Japan will join the meeting but he has stressed that the oil producing countries approve of this move. Actually, I think the OAPEC (Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries) overall opinion is against the meeting."

Yamani sai , "We have no objection to dialogue, but if they (America) are having this conference for political reasons —to have a confrontation —we won't cooperate."

Yamani said that "the price of oil in the future won't be in terms of dollars, but technology and industrialization." Yamani repeated today that Saudi Arabia's government favors a reduction in oil prices, but said it will not happen immediately.

Yamani said Saudi Arabia thinks the present price levels reflect the true value of oil, but "due to the effects on the balance of payments of other countries, we think we should sacrifice a little. This is an individual Saudi Arabian policy."

"Some consumer countries have a very strong interest in bilateral arrangements with producer nations," the oil minister added. "Japan is first among these. France, Germany and Britain also have such an interest."

Yamani said that in view of this, the oil consuming nations were not likely to find much common ground of interest at the Washington meeting.

President labors over Union talk

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon spent the weekend working on his State of the Union address, the legislative proposals he plans to present this week to Congress.

Aides said Nixon, working on his familiar yellow lined pads, is trying to extract the most important points from the State of the Union report, a separate document to be sent to Congress which has already been prepared and runs over 100 pages. His chief speechwriter, Ray Price, and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig were called to Camp David Sunday to help prepare the speech.

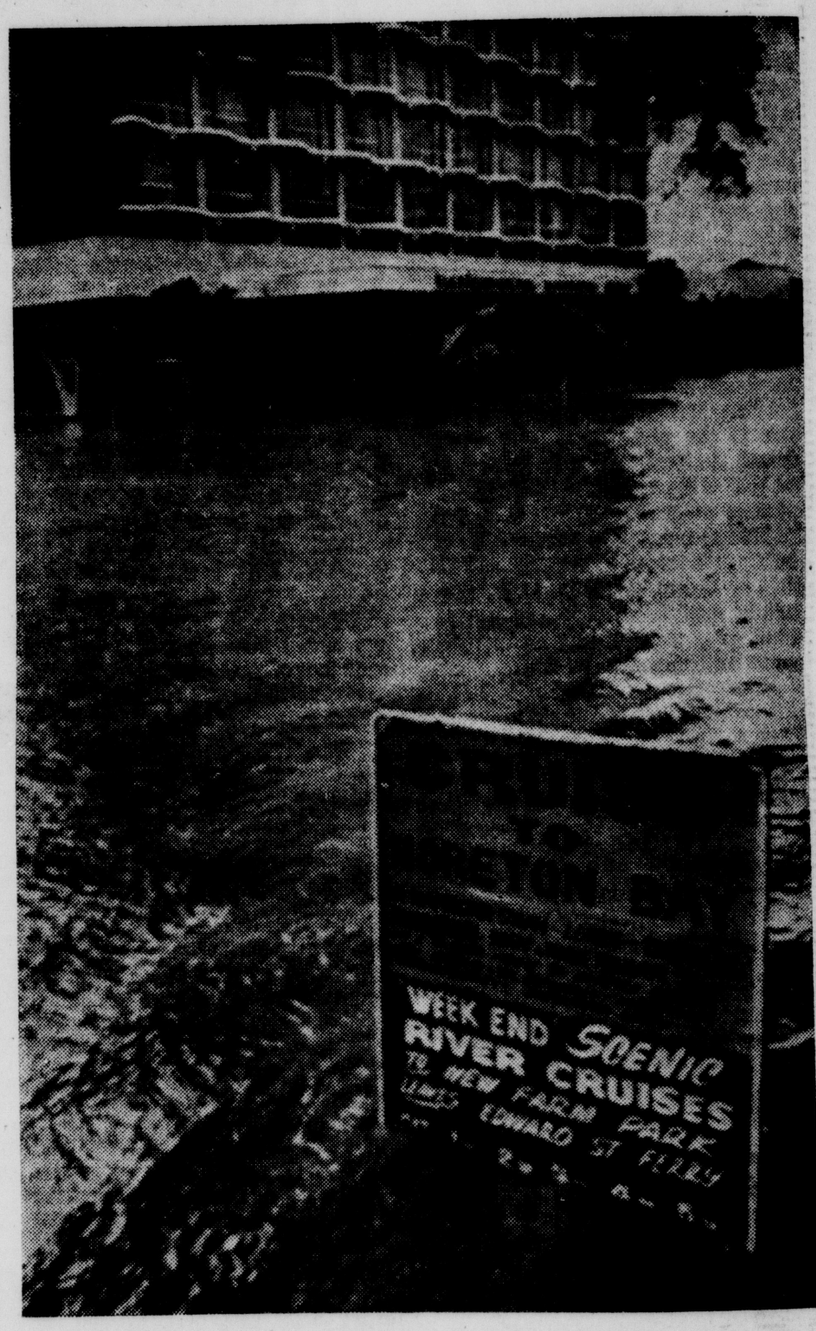

The address has been scheduled for Wednesday evening. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he thought Nixon would be in a "very, very tough" spot speaking to a Congress that has given the House Judiciary Committee $1 million to study whether evidence exists for impeachment.

Although some congressmen —including the powerfull Senate Whip, Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. —have urged the President to discuss the Watergate scandal, it is not known whether he will do so or stick to domestic affairs.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday that Nixon "has received conflicting suggestions from his advisers on whether he should address the scandal directly or leave it as an unspoken counterpoint to the rest of the speech."

Aides said Saturday that Nixon hopes to show in the speech that he is not "consumed" by Watergate-related problems and is looking forward to grappling with other national issues.

It was not known if the speech would touch on foreign affairs, but aides said a separate "state of the world" address was not planned at this time. They said most of the remarks will contain new material but mostly be a restatement of prior positions. They are expected to touch on Nixon's proposals for education, health care, energy, urban mass transit and national security needs.

Dallas police open massive search for grocery killers

DALLAS (UPI) — An intensive round-the-clock manhunt for the persons responsible for a wave of grocery robbery - killings failed today to fullfil Police Chief Donald Byrd's mandate to "have those bastards in jail by Monday morning."

Byrd mobilized a crew of 100 plainclothes officers last Friday after the ninth robbery-shooting and told them to go "full blast after the bunch responsible."

They were told to conduct a thorough search of apartment house parking areas and streets in search of a distinctive old model car used in the Friday incident that resulted in the fifth death since Jan. 4.

Meanwhile, owners and clerks of small convenience groceries—the type which has almost exclusively been the target of the gummen—admittedly are living scared. Some are taking extra precautions.

"I admit it's got us all shook up," said one owner in the South Dallas black neighborhood which has been hit three of the nine times.

"We stay pretty busy, except maybe late at night," he said. "We now have two men working at all times. At night, one stands at the back of the store where he can be seen. He holds a double barrel shotgun."

Some clerks have become philosophical.

"I was scared when the shootings first started," said the woman clerk in another South Dallas store. "But now I think if it's going to happen, it's going to happen."

Still another woman clerk commented, "We're all praying for the best ... that's all we can do."

Three persons were questioned Sunday but homicide detective Sgt. Frank Mote said they did not look like strong suspects.

Minutes after Friday's ninth shooting in an area grocery, Byrd assembled all available uniform and plainclothes commanders in his office and ordered them to have the men responsible "in jail by Monday morning." Six of the victims have died.

Forrest Vance Fuller, 45, the ninth person shot in the wave of drive-in grocery store killings, remained in critical condition today. He was shot in the head by two men who took the cash register from the store and drove away in a 1967 faded Canary yellow Chevrolet.

Although the car is very distinctive, with pieces of chrome missing from its side, rust visible on parts of the car, and a hammered out look to the trunk, police stopped all cars remotely answering the discription during the weekend.

The robbery-murders began on Jan. 4. They have occurred in predominantly black neighborhoods and all nine of the victims were white.

Claims cut in jobless rate

Nixon asks VA aid hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon recommended to Congress today a $13.6 billion program for veterans benefits in the coming fiscal year that would include an 8 per cent increase for schooling and higher pensions to cover rising living costs.

In a special message, Nixon claimed to have reduced joblessness among Vietnam veterans and summarized: "On the whole, the situation of the American veteran today is a good one. The average veteran has a higher income, more education and better health than nonveterans of the same age."

Veterans Administrator Donald W. Johnson said total federal outlays in fiscal 1974 were estimated to be $13.2 billion, meaning the increase for next fiscal year beginning July 1 will be $400 million.

Although educational benefits for individual veterans will increase by 8 per cent, it was estimated that cost will decrease from $3.2 billion in the current year to $2.6 billion next year because of a 200,000 decrease in the number of veterans enrolled in educational programs.

Nixon reported that unemployment for the Vietnam GIs has declined from 11 per cent in 1971 to 4.4 per cent—below the national average.

Under the GI bill, the allowance for a single veteran in school full time is $220 per month. Nixon advocated that this be boosted by 8 per cent or $17.60 a month.

Nixon, sketching his program in broad outlines, asked Congress to provide automatic cost - of - living adjustments in VA pension payments which now go to 1 million veterans and 1.3 million survivors of veterans. Similar adjustments are built into the Social Security program.

Additionally, Nixon asked for a restructuring of the pension program to funnel more money to poorer pensioners. He said some veterans now receive less total income than welfare recipients.

In a bow to veteran organizations and other groups disturbed by a 1968 law changing the traditional observance of Veterans Day to the fourth Monday in October, Nixon urged new legislation switching the date back to Nov. 11—the anniversary of the end of World War I.

"In view of the confusion which has arisen and in view especially of the position taken by the veterans themselves, I believe it would be wise to repeal the 1968 change of the Veterans Day observance," Nixon told Congress.

In advance of Nixon's message, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., described unemployment among Vietnam veterans as "a national disgrace" and charged they were being shortchanged on their school benefits.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., issued a statement saying he hopes Nixon would accept reforms suggested by a special veterans opportunity committee he headed.

Krogh: Advised Dean to explain facts to Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egil Krogh says that he advised John W. Dean III to see President Nixon and tell him everything about the Watergate scandal and its cover-up in the White House.

Krogh, the former head of the White House "plumbers" unit, said Sunday that he and Dean talked on March 20, the day before Dean says he went to Nixon and tried to tell him of the coverup of the breakin at Democratic National Headquarters and that Watergate was becoming a "cancer on the Presidency."

Krogh was interviewed on CBS television's "60 Minutes."

Krogh said the conversation with Dean, who was fired April 30 as White House counsel, convinced him that Nixon was not involved or even aware of the coverup. "Bud" Krogh quoted Dean as saying, "the President is being badly served. He just doesn't know what's going on."

Krogh said he advised Dean to see the President and "lay it all out on the table."

Barmaid is shot; two men arrested

ONTARIO — A 41-year-old Ontario barmaid was shot by a man police say intended to rob patrons at the Bamboo Hut at Holt Boulevard and Campus Avenue early Sunday morning.

Patsy Trewett of 421 W. Sunkist St. was listed in fair condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland with a gunshot wound of the lower abdomen.

Police reported that a man, identified as Harold Sims Williams, 39, of 293 Franklin Ave., Pomona, walked into the bar early Sunday morning. Mrs. Trewett told police that the suspect walked up to her and without saying a word shot her.

Patrons in the bar, hearing the shot, attacked Williams and managed to wrestle a .38-caliber pistol from his hands. Police said that someone in the bar apparently struck Williams over the head with a pool cue, knocking him to the floor. During the fight, police said a second shot was fired. The bullet went through a patron's jacket on a coat rack and lodged in a juke box.

When officers arrived at the scene Williams was lying in the grass at the rear of the bar suffering multiple injuries.

Detectives arrested Williams and booked him in the West End Jail on suspicion of attempted robbery and attempted murder. After interviewing Williams, police went to an apartment at 1449 E. D St. and arrested James John Depolo, 27, on suspicion of attempted robbery and attempted murder. Detectives said this morning Williams is believed to have gone into the bar with the intent of committing a robbery. Depolo, according to police, drove Williams to the bar.

Williams was taken to Doctors Hospital in Montclair for treatment of a scalp laceration and bruises before he was taken to the West End Jail for booking.

Chinoan attacked by trio in Upland

CHINO — An 18-year-old Chino youth was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Chino General Hospital with head injuries suffered early Saturday when he was attacked by three youths who forced his car off the road in Upland.

Paul Espinoza of 12741 Oaks St. told police that he had taken some girls home in the Los Olivos area of Upland Saturday morning and was driving home when he was chased and his car forced off the road between Grove and Sultana avenues. He said three youths in the other car then broke his windshield, dragged him out of the car and began beating him with tire irons.

Upland Police said that Espinoza managed to drive his car back to Chino but collapsed at his home from loss of blood.

Police this morning were still searching for the three youths all described as Caucasians, driving a 1963 or 1964 Chevrolet blue car with numerous primer spots. Espinoza said the car had rocket type hub caps and was lowered all the way around.

Stolen vans recovered; 5 youths held

UPLAND — Upland police recovered three van trucks stolen off the sales lot of Arena Ford, 555 W. Foothill Blvd., and arrested five juveniles ranging in age from 13 to 15 on suspicion of automobile theft Sunday.

Police said that the three vans, one red, one blue and the other orange, were stolen about the same time from the car company's sales lot. The thefts were reported by John White of Arena Ford Co. about 9:44 p.m. Saturday.

At 12:11 a.m. Upland Police Officer Daniel Emerson said two vans matching the description of two of the stolen vans, being driven on Arrow Highway near Second Avenue and stopped them. Emerson confirmed that the two vans were stolen and arrested four youths in the vans on suspicion of auto theft. Later the third van was found wrecked at Foothill Boulevard and Campus avenue. A fifth juvenile was taken into custody on car theft charges later.

Ontario police said the five juveniles are suspected of committing at least six residential burglaries in the Ontario area in the last few weeks.

The youths have been petitioned to juvenile hall by both Ontario and Upland Police.

Bright day, dime fares crowd buses

Bright, sunny weather brought out crowds of riders Sunday to the bus station in Pomona for the first regular day of 10-cent Sunday fares on the Southern California Rapid Transit District system.

Garry Augusta, ticket clerk at the Pomona station, estimated Sunday's crowds were twice as large as those a week ago Sunday when the RTD started the reduced fares as a one-day experiment.

The success of the low-fare program prompted the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors last week to subsidize the bus company with $575,000 to continue the dime-fare plan at least through the spring months, possibly even the summer.

Buses throughout the RTD system were reported jammed Sunday, and one RTD spokesman said the idea "seems to have caught on."

Passenger volume a week ago swelled by an estimated 82 per cent when the fares were reduced to a dime, and bus officials said they think there were twice as many riders this past Sunday.

Extra buses were put into service along heavily used routes and in some cases buses carried so many passengers that drivers had to zip by some corners, unable to pick up any more riders.

Next Sunday reduced fares will be available only in Los Angeles County unless officials in Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties offer RTD subsidies of their own.

Security guard says someone shot at him

CLAREMONT — A uniformed security guard told police Saturday night that someone fired two shots at him while he was on patrol at First Street and Berkeley Avenue.

Billy J. Cowan, 24, La Puente, employed by the Continental Security Service of Industry, said he was leaving his patrol car when the two shots were fired. Cowan had stopped at the southeast corner of the intersection to check valves on a large oil tank.

Cowan said he saw a figure running away and fired four shots after it. The figure either tripped or was hit, the security guard said. But the Pomona police department's helicopter crew assisted in trying to locate the sniper and no one could be found.

Police said there were two bullet holes in the windshield of Cowan's patrol car. Two expended bullets, found inside the car, were being examined today at the sheriff's crime lab.

Gunshot hospitalizes R.H. youth

ROWLAND HEIGHTS — A 16-year-old boy remained in "very critical" condition this morning as the result of a gunshot wound he suffered here Sunday afternoon.

Christopher James Mecate, 18511 Farjardo Drive, was hit in the head by a built from a .38-caliber revolver. The weapon fired accidentally, sheriff's deputies said, when it was picked up by a friend of Mecate's, James E. Patterson, 16, of the same address. The revolver had been loaded earlier by the victim's brother, 17-year-old Ray Mecate.

Deputies said the three youths were preparing to go hunting and were gathering their equipment. The victim was taken first to Queen of the Valley Hospital and later transferred to Loma Linda University Medical Center.

Mail lady in New York likes job

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Joy Brown, 19, has become the first mailman, or rather, mail-person in the northern New York city.

She left a local community college after passing a Civil Service examination and said the position was "a better job than I'd get anywhere else, and I get lots of exercise."

Even city dogs haven't given her much trouble.

"I just walk along like I'm not afraid," she said.

Arms cut, not control, solon urges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said Sunday the United States should press for "disarmament, not arms control" at the second stage of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

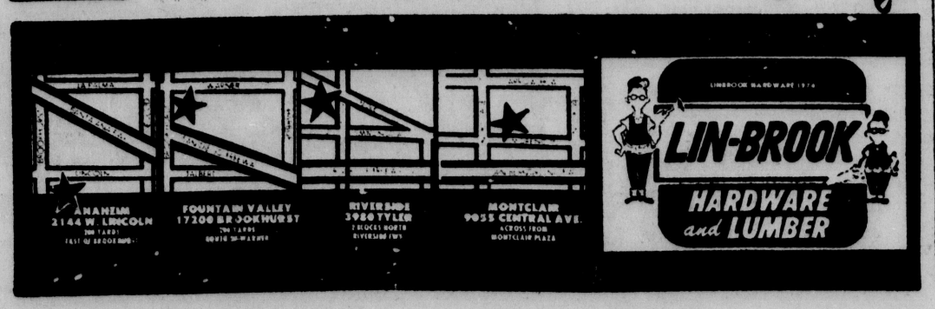

"We have forces that we don't really need to maintain at that level only because of the Russian level. What's wrong with both of them coming down and saving those billions? This would be a real test of their sincerity and of their alleged interest in world peace.

"I want the whole world to know that we want disarmament, not arms control, disarmament at new and lower levels of equivilancy."

Jackson was interviewed on CBS television: "Face the Nation."

Mid-term deadline sets lawmakers scrambling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The legislature this week faces a new mid-session deadline that is expected to trigger a hectic scramble by lawmakers attempting to win rapid-fire passage of their proposals.

In past years, such frenzied action came only in the final few days of the session. But for the first time, it will occur virtually at the start of the new year's legislative activity.

The reason for the expected bustle this week is that any bill introduced in 1973 will automatically die at midnight Wednesday unless it has cleared its house of origin.

The rule was instituted as part of the legislature's new two-year session and designed to serve as a half-time buzzer for lawmakers.

The Senate has canceled Tuesday and Wednesday committee hearings, and the Assembly has scheduled an unusual Wednesday floor session in anticipation of the deadline crunch.

Included among the bills jeopardized by the deadline is an "emergency" measure creating a so-called "energy czar" to help handle California's energy shortage.

The Senate Finance Committee is expected to act on the bill late today, just in time to clear the Senate by the mid-session deadline.

Other 1973 measures which could be killed would provide for secret farm union elections, impose life sentences for drug pushers, create a state lottery and require extensive food labelling.

If a proposal fails to clear either the Assembly or Senate before the deadline, a lawmaker still could introduce it in a new 1974 bill.

However, legislators technically are prohibited from reintroducing a measure that was substantially the same as a bill defeated during the prior year, although it appears that this rule will be broken frequently.

Ex-congressman begins sentence on perjury count

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Former Rep. John W. Dowdy, D-Tex., described as a sick man who has suffered enough, goes to prison today to begin serving a six-month term for perjury.

Dowdy, 62, was convicted in 1971 on eight counts of bribery, conspiracy and perjury for accepting a $25,000 bribe in return for trying to block a Justice Department investigation of a Baltimore home improvement firm.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out all but the perjury counts and reduced the original 18-month sentence to six months. The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to intervene.

Dowdy's attorney argued during a federal hearing earlier this month that the Texas Democrat, a veteran of 20 years in the House, was in ill health and the jail term would kill him.

Crosby well, leaves hospital

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Bing Crosby, wearing his soft felt hat at a jaunty angle, strolled out of the hospital Sunday, two weeks after surgery for removal of a lung abscess.

Doctors forecast a complete recovery and said the operation would have no effect on the 69-year-old crooner's voice. "Bing will have the same melodious voice," said Dr. Stanley Hanfling, his personal physician.

Crosby had been hospitalized since New Year's Eve for a stubborn lung ailment thought to be caused by a rare African fungus disease he picked up while on a safari.

He ate all but the holes!

CARSON, Calif. (UPI) — After an eight-year stretch with the Marines and assorted years as a truckdriver, Jerry Wright is able to eat just about anything.

During the weekend the 35-year-old Los Angeles area man downed 28 doughnuts in 15 minutes and surpassed the existing British record of 20 listed in the Guiness Book of Records.

Wright smiled at the 600 other groaning contestants and announced that he felt fine. He said he occasionally eats 18 doughnuts at a sitting. "Every once in a while," he said, "I just get the urge for doughnuts."

Brezhnev in air en route to Havana

MOSCOW (UPI) — Leonid I. Brezhnev flew to Cuba today for talks with Premier Fidel Castro and what Western diplomats said may be a toplevel review of Communist strategy in Latin America.

The general secretary of the Soviet Communist party took off from Moscow's Vnukovo airport shortly after 8 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT) aboard a special Aeroflot IL62 jet.

He was to make one refueling stop in Gander, Nfld., enroute to Havana where he was expected to arrive in the early afternoon.

The trip is Brezhnev's first to Cuba and the first by any Soviet leader since Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was there in October, 1971. Castro was last in Moscow in December, 1972.

In a televised interview last week, Castro described Brezhnev's visit as the most important in Cuban history. (Havana radio, in a report monitored in Miami, said the Soviet leader's trip was of "exceptional political importance to all Cuban people.")

Some diplomats said the Soviets have asked Cuba to tone down anti-American statements during the visit in order not to compromise Brezhnev's detente policy with the United States.

There have been reports in Moscow recently that Communist leaders from all the Latin American countries will be on hand in Havana for some of the talks.

Miss Chinatown U.S.A. named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The new Miss Chinatown U.S.A. is 21-year-old Pamela Fong, who was chosen from 16 contestants representing Chinese communities throughout the United States.

The 5-foot-7 Sacramento State University coed received her title Saturday night in a ceremony ushering in the Chinese Lunar Year, 4,672—the year of the Tiger.

Miss Fong will have a seat of honor when festivities climax Feb. 2 with the traditional Golden Dragon parade through the narrow streets of San Francisco's Chinatown, which with 67,000 persons is the largest community of Chinese descent in the United States.

Truman Capote convalescing

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Author Truman Capote, convalescing from a respiratory ailment at Eisenhower Medical Center, was expected to be released before Friday, doctors said today.

The author of the best-selling "In Cold Blood" was hospitalized with a minor infection last Wednesday and was prevented from covering the start of the Houston, Tex., mass murder trial for the Washington Post.

Picture albums of Mussolini, Hitler bought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two photograph albums of Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler and Fascist leader Benito Mussolini have been purchased for $10,000 by an unknown person.

Auctioneer Maurice Powers said the brown leather set of pictures was taken from Hitler's library in 1945 by an American paratrooper whose unit captured Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain chalet in the Bavarian Alps.

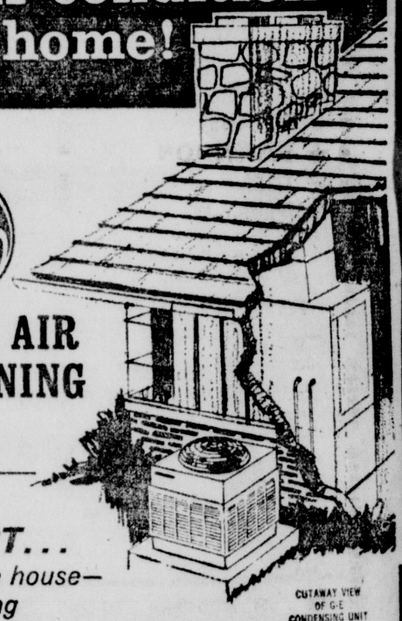

The albums of 325 photographs were purchased during the weekend by an unnamed bidder who sent his offer by mail.

Federal Reserve Board asks more control of banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board controls 75 per cent of the money supply in the United States, but its officials say the $50 billion that it doesn't control stopped it from reducing inflation in 1973.

The system's board of governors asked Congress Sunday to extend their monetary controls over the 8,400 nonmember banks. A letter from Chairman Arthur F. Burns said assets in these banks were growing three times faster than member banks and one official added in a briefing that they undermined the board's ability to control the economy.

"In essence, the proposed legislation would strengthen the central bank's ability to manage the nation's supply of money and credit by making the growing amount of demand deposits outside of Federal Reserve member banks responsible to Federal Reserve action," Burns wrote.

"In these inflationary times, the nation must have the best monetary tools for dealing with our many economic problems."

A member of the system primarily uses the Federal Reserve for check collection services and to get access to such national money supplies as Treasury bonds. The Federal Reserve Board can regulate the assets of national banks, which means that about $155 billion can be restricted for loan or investment purposes as one way of controlling inflation.

Nonmember banks are controlled only by state regulations, which generally are more liberal. They have to rely on national banks for their check collection services, but often can offer higher interest on certain savings accounts.

The legislation would give the Federal Reserve Board control over all reserves except time and savings deposits and the first $2 million in nonmember bank assets. Officials predict this would control all but $3 billion in the nation's monetary system.

The banks which offer "negotiable orders of withdrawal," checks which can be written on interest-paying savings accounts, would specifically be regulated. At present only savings banks in Massachusetts and New Hampshire offer the so-called "NOW" accounts, but officials said controlling the money supply might become more troublesome if the plan expands to savings and loan institutions.

What Federal bank control would do

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board says its legislative proposals for increasing control of the monetary system would:

—Facilitate better management of money and credit.

—Increase equity among the nation's financial institutions.

—Permit Federal Reserve credit assistance to a broader range of financial institutions.

—Extend reserve requirements set by the Federal Reserve to all financial institutions that offer checking or check-like services.

—Widen the ranges of reserve requirements from 5 to 22 per cent on demand deposits, up from 7 to 22 per cent; 3 to 20 per cent on negotiable orders of withdrawal (NOW) accounts, up from 3 to 10 per cent; and 1 to 10 per cent on time and savings deposits of member banks, up from 3 to 10 per cent.

—Provide a four-year transition period for non-member banks.

—Not require state banks to become Federal Reserve members and not change supervisory responsibilities of federal and state authorities.

—Not require small nonmember banks, those with less than $2 million in assets, to maintain reserves on demand deposit or NOW accounts.

—Not require any nonmember bank to maintain reserves other than those imposed by states on time and savings deposits.

Three kinds of water in future?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Families of the future may be using three kinds of water.

"One will be the water supplied by the community system," Wilbur K. Hess, head of the Water Quality Association, said recently. "Another will be softened water. A third will be water for drinking and cooking."

Hess said some families already are using these three types. Many others are expected to follow when they find that increased usage of waste water for public supply makes it impractical for all-purposes.

"Everyone is familiar with water softeners in the home," Hess said. "Their use in the future will become almost universal. Look also for the use of bottled water to increase, as well as special purification devices that produce bottled-quality water right in the home."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Despite growing predictions of an economic recession in 1974, a soft landing, or slowdown in the rate of expansion, is still more likely than a crashdown," says Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc. If Arab oil begins to reflow early in the year, the firm continues, the odds favor a gain of one to two per cent in real growth in the economy compared with an earlier estimate of a two to three per cent growth rate. "Although corporate profits may be five to ten per cent below those of 1973, stock prices could rise to levels near last year's record highs," it adds.

"Investors have always had good imaginations," says Argus Weekly Staff Report, "and with the energy crisis serving as a catalyst, this combination produces a toxic combination of fears." Despite the emotional belief that Europe and Japan will be plunged into a severe recession by the oil shortage, the small amount of information coming out of Europe and the Middle East "suggests that the supply cutbacks made so far are much smaller than have been officially announced," according to the firm.

In a letter entitled, "How We Look at the 1974 Market," Paine Webber, Jackson & Curtis says, "As far as interest rates are concerned, we see a slowing in the growth of demand for short-term funds regardless of the outcome of the energy squeeze." The letter adds, "Thus if, as we expect, the Federal Reserve follows an essentially neutral monetary policy, as the demand for shortterm funds slackens, short-term interest rates should decline, perhaps by as much as 250 to 300 basis points."

Hospital costs rise 8.5% year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of hospital care has increased an average rate of 8.5 per cent per year during the past 20 years, the National Consumer Finance Association recently reported.

The association said the average daily hospital cost per patient was $16.77 in 1950 and by 1970 had grown to $81.01.

The increase in cost is primarily the result of the growing number of full-time hospital personnel and the introduction of complex, expensive medical and surgical equipment, the association said.

even during the energy crisis, we really move our tail for you.

In just a few short months the crisis in energy has created a whole new way of life throughout the airline industry.

Some of the problems are only a temporary inconvenience. Others may be with us longer.

At Continental, we've had to make some adjustments. But when it comes to service, care, and attention, we haven't changed at all.

On the ground and in the air, you'll find that Continental people have a special knack for handling the unexpected.

Which is only natural, because we've been in the problem-solving business for years.

Talk to a Continental passenger and chances are you'll be talking to a satisfied passenger. The fact is, from January 1970 through October 1973, Continental has had the fewest passenger complaints of any major domestic airline.*

That's why 7 out of 10 people who fly with us once fly with us again.

So if you're looking for travel today that is convenient and comfortable, we'd like to show you the bright side of air travel, 1974 style.

For no matter where you go, to any of Continental's 42 places, we'll fly you there by the same high standards we've always had. And that's a promise.

MRS. LESTER DIXON

The Rev. Herschell D. Rice officiated at the double-ring, evening rites in the First Church of God of Pomona.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin peau and imported chantilly lace fashioned with a high neckline, bishop sleeves and an A-line skirt which swept to a chapel-length train. Her Juliet cap held a fingertip-length veil of silk illusion trimmed in matching lace.

She carried a colonial cascade of white carnations, bridal pink roses, baby's breath and miniature ivy.

Miss Karen Bono was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Frederick Dixon Jr., Mrs. Charles Regehr and Miss Karen Bosacker. Mrs. Randy Powell handled the guest book.

Cousins of the groom, Michelle and Mark Dixon, were flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Frederick Dixon Jr., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Bradley Dixon, Bruce Good and Larry Evans.

The newlyweds greeted guests during a reception at Griswold's Indian Hill Inn, Claremont.

THE TREAT FAMILY — Clarence and Virginia Treat and their sons, Dean and Jamey, will perform at the Pomona Ebell tea Friday afternoon with a program of folk and contemporary music.

"Where Food is Made with Butter 'n' Love"
It's Griswold's aim to provide the finest dining experience anywhere. Sometimes we have problems that aren't funny at the time, but laughable later. For example a mermaid ice carving for the Indian Hill Country Club Buffet was nearly completed before the chef noticed he hadn't allowed for the most alluring parts of the mermaid. "The whole project was a bust," he said.
Perfect, however, were Chuck Bailey's array of 30 different salads. Chef Don Huston is responsible for the seven entrees, such as Ratatouille, Boulabaisso, Roast Duckling a 1' orange...
Wednesday is Gourmet night at the Country House in Redlands. Chef Ruth Brogan creates a seven course meal that is always a great dining experience.

Auto device eliminates need to ever change oil

VISALIA (UPI) — This city of 33,000 has found one way to fight the oil shortage. Lubricating oils in city trucks and car engines are never changed yet the vehicles run better than ever.

The secret is an electric oil refiner invented by an Oklahoma mechanic in the mid 1960s and now used on 100,000 different vehicles and industrial engines around the U.S. It eliminates indefinitely the need for oil changes.

Easily attached to any type of engine, the device utilizes a simple cotton filter and a patented heat exchanger refining process to cleanse oil of all impurities, solid or liquid. Its inventor says it is the only device of its kind in the U.S. and probably the world.

Wally Pardue, superintendent of general services for the city of Visalia, bought three of the devices on a trial basis in June of 1972. He was so impressed by the results he has since purchased 79 more.

One city patrol car ran the same oil for 52,000 miles and mechanics found the oil in its original clean condition with no visible wear in the engine.

"I'm a skeptical person by nature," says Pardue. "I've seen these things come and go. I don't pay much attention to them. This one here intrigued me and it has lived up to the claims. I'm satisfied."

The refiner is manufactured by Product Research, Inc., based in Tulsa, Okla., and headed by Glenn Prier, the mechanic who invented the device.

John Deniz, California regional director for the firm, is convinced the device will conserve huge amounts of lubricating oil if adopted throughout the U.S. and there are indications it will be.

The small company has had a million dollars in orders over the past two months with no letup in sight.

Cost of the refiner for an auto is about $60 with installation requiring 15-20 minutes.

Pardue figured cost of the refiner plus four filter changes in a 40,000-mile year and labor costs at $70.20 compared to a normal servicing cost (14 oil changes for 40,000 nearly pays for itself in the first year and then the savings increase.

Visalia's fire trucks each hold 35 quarts of oil, and Pardue says the city will save three 55 gallon barrels of oil each year on the fire trucks alone.

Deniz notes there are seven engines for every person in the U.S. and says all of them could use the same oil indefinitely if a refiner were used.

The oil companies are showing interest, and Deniz says Texaco recently contracted to use the refiners for all its stationary engines in Texas.

And the Atomic Energy Commission is using the electric refiners on huge stationary engines in Nevada which require 500 quarts of oil.

The firm recommends the cotton oil filters be changed every 8,000-10,000 miles, a task easily accomplished by the operator of the vehicle at a cost of about $2.50 per filter.

When the filter is changed, a quart or two of oil is added to replace the oil lost in the used filter and through engine wear and to make up for detergent breakdown.

The device has no moving parts and is guaranteed for three years.

The refiner first hit the U.S. market in 1968, but because of marketing problems, skepticism about product claims and plenty of oil, interest in the refiner didn't pick up until the current fuel shortage.

Now trucking firms and municipalities threatened with cutbacks are looking everywhere for ways to economize.

Fresno center credited with reducing confrontations of blacks and police

By JERRY HENRY

FRESNO (UPI) — Several years ago confrontations between police and minority residents of Fresno's predominantly black west side were causing growing concern.

When police made arrests or even asked questions they were sometimes met by hostile crowds and at times fought off physical attacks from onlookers.

Today the incidence of such confrontations has dwindled to almost zero. While there may be many reasons explaining the change, Fresno police are convinced much of the credit should go to the West Fresno Police Center established in 1971.

"There have been no large disturbance confrontations since the thing got going," said Sgt. Joseph Trejo, who heads the center's day-to-day operations. "Even once when a policeman shot a person we kept people calm. We got right out on it and informed them about what was going on."

Two-way communication between the police and residents probably is the cornerstone of the center's operation.

Trejo and his officers follow up after field officers have made calls in the area to see if there is any additional information and if the people involved are satisfied with police service. They also try to keep the people informed of the outcome of cases.

The officers, who have substituted blue blazers for regular police uniforms, also attend public meetings in the neighborhood and speak at schools to let people know who they are and what they are doing. They do not make regular field calls.

"Certainly the major objective has been established," said Police Chief Hal Britton. "The hostility that manifested itself several years ago has dissipated...people are seeing the policeman in something other than in an enforcement role."

Another goal is to cut down on the rate of crime and drug use in the area.

Trejo said while comprehensive figures are not yet available there are indications progress is being made. He said, for example, preliminary figures show there were 15 fewer burglaries in the area during May of this year compared with May of last year.

The police center also has gotten involved in community projects to better the area which at the same time help eliminate crime potential.

For example, Trejo said the center, working with the advisory committee and other agencies, was successful in getting rid of an abandoned service station

The Committee takes its show on the road

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Committee, an improvisational comedy troupe which played for a decade in San Francisco's North Beach, is taking its message on the road.

The group's half-dozen members thrived for years by taking ideas suggested by their audience and turning them into satirical skits. But after 10 years they felt they were getting stale, so for a while.

But now they are back together, and taking off on a nationwide tour for the first time.

"You can't stay in one place too long," said Larry Hankin, one of the original cast members. "You've got to get out on the road and find out what's going on."

The Committee's satire is based primarily on controversial topics and how people feel about them. After soliciting an audience's idea, the cast members consult briefly, then launch into a satirical skit, usually successfully. When they find they have touched a real vein of humor, the skit becomes a regular part of their repertoire.

"We sit around and share each other's head," Hankin said.

The Committee was started in 1963 by Alan Myerson, who had worked with the Second City group in Chicago and taught actors' workshops in New York. He brought the cast to San Francisco as their permanent base "because he was looking for a really good city and figured San Francisco was going to happen," Hankin said.

Now, though, Myerson and the cast feels its time for a geographical change.

"If you're any kind of artist, you've got to be in touch with people," Hankin said.

Their tour begins in Chicago, then will travel on to other cities.

"I've never been to the Midwest," said Hankin, "now that's America, too."

Sharp pickings in Oscar derby

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nominating ballots are in the mail to Motion Picture Academy members to select the five best pictures, actors and all the other eventual Oscar contenders.

Not for years have the pickings been so good for movies. More top grade films were released in 1973 than during the previous five years.

One picture is certain to be nominated: "The Exorcist."

There's a possibility an X-rated movie will be nominated for the first time: "Last Tango in Paris."

There were other prime prospects: "Paper Moon," "American Graffiti," "Save the Tiger," "Serpico," "The Day of theJackall," "The Sting" and "Cries and Whispers."

Academy voters would also have the choice of pictures less heralded: "Oklahoma Crude," "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Blume in Love," "Day of the Dolphin," "Mean Streets," "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams."

Many of the contenders will be showing for months to come because they were released the last week of the year to be fresh in the minds of voters.

Academy members are swayed by box office impact of films, critical reviews and friendships with producers, directors and stars.

Best acting nominees could well include Marlon Brando for "Last Tango in Paris." He won the Oscar last year but refused to pick it up, sending a bit-playing actress in an Indian costume to harrangue the audience.

Jack Lemmon's nomination for "Save the Tiger" is a certainty. Other prospects are Al Pacino (Serpico), Jack Nicholson (Last Detail), Robert Redford (The Way We Were), Steve McQueen (Papillon), Lee Marvin (The Iceman Cometh), Martin Balsam (Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams) and Gene Hackman (Scarecrow). Another likely prospect is Robert Blake for "Electra Glide in Blue."

The popularity of "The Exorcist," plus a powerful debut as an actor may win Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Jason Miller a nomination for his role as a priest.

In recent years, actresses have lagged far behind actors as prospective Oscar winners because so few outstanding roles are written for women.

But five actresses will be winnowed out for nominations. Among them, surely, will be Joanne Woodward for "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams." And Liv Ullmann promises to be a contender for "Cries and Whispers."

Two youngsters have a shot at the golden ring—little Tatum O'Neal (who costarred with papa Ryan O'Neal in "Paper Moon," and 13-year-old Linda Blair who played the possessed child in "The Exorcist."

More likely to win nominations, however, are Ellen Burstyn (The Exorcist), Marsha Mason (Cinderella Liberty), Susan Anspach (Blume in Love), Barbra Streisand (The Way We Were) and Glenda Jackson (A Touch of Class).

Nominations will be announced Feb. 19 when each of the categories will be reduced to five nominees.

The academy immediately will set up screening dates for all performances, pictures and artistic and scientific achievements to give members a chance to familiarize themselves with the nominees.

On April 2 the Academy Award presentations will be made and the madness will begin all over again.

Bit Parts: George Pal signed Ron Ely for the title role in his "Doc Savage" movies . . . Merv Griffin will be the special guest on the "Sonny and Cher Show" Jan. 30 . . . Charlton Heston will head the all-star cast of "Earthquake" at Universal Pictures.

New computer may replace Richter scale

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Seismologists will be able to locate and determine the magnitude of earthquakes in about 10 minutes with a new system being developed by University of California scientists, the school has reported.

Professor Bruce Bolt, director of UC's Earthquake Observatory, said the computerized system will reduce work that usually takes at least an hour to "about 10 minutes."

The system contains a minicomputer with a read-out screen similar to a television set that will allow the operator to "talk" with it by touching the screen with a dot of light.

Bolt said the cost and simplicity of the new system will be such that it can be used in poorer countries and rural areas.

Bolt also said it could lead to standardization of a new measurement scale for earthquakes, replacing the Richter scale now in general use.

Cal Poly comic satire leaves them laughing

By MATE TATE

"Day of Absence," a stark but comic satire performed by black actors in white face, brings laughter from the audience from beginning to end. The Cal Poly drama department presentation is an hour of exceptional entertainment.

The sale by Dougles Turner Ward deals with the panic in a small Southern town, dripping with traditions of paternalism and narrow-minded acceptances, when the "nigras" disappear. The panic is personified even more when the vanishing act includes certain "prominent citizens" who were actually passing for white.

Director Isaiah Sanders has wrung from his cast remarkable fortitude in maintaining straight faces while spilling forth the beliefs and attitudes of the old, lily-white South. The best defense against racism is shown in these black folks' ridicule of the system that degrades their humanity.

Karvin Johnson as a storefront sitter, businessman and Reverend Pious; Neal Ellis as Mayor R. E. Lee; Michael Anderson II as Jackson, and Maggie Hines as the club woman lend the greatest credibility to their roles.

Ellis is the epitome of closed-minded, boisterous and gruff authoritarianism of a Southern official convinced of the rights of the Confederacy. Tiny Confederate flags are painted on each of his cheeks. The attire of white suit, shoes and socks and a massive cowboy hat top off this exacting image.

Johnson is the most versatile performer, assuming the proper tone and characteristic with each changing role. His evocation is clear, precise and thoroughly convincing.

Anderson projects himself well as the frenetic and absolutely hounded mayor's assistant. He literally shakes in fear of what has suddenly befallen his beloved town because even "faithful Uncle Toms and nigra informers have vanished without a trace."

Miss Hines' every move brings to mind the Southern belle. Her concern about the "collapse of our indigenous institutions" and the possibility of "gallant men" being drained of their "worship and idolatry" of Southern belles is shrilled from a prissy mouth rich with lip rouge.

Mayor Lee's original optimism—"Sherman marched through Georgia, once. Lincoln freed the slaves, momentarily. Southern courage, chivalry and fortitude wins out"—soon changes to anger with "our people" because "Business is business and fun is fun. You've had your fun; now come home!" This appeal changes just as swiftly to tears and pleading.

"Deterioration rapidly escalates" as "factories stand idle from the absence of non-essential workers," sheriffs go insane without the ability to project violence on dark heads, babes and old go uncared for and an "orgy of destruction" is followed by "all the aberrations of a town gone berserk."

The Southern accents of these California actors are astonishingly real to the discerning ear.

Barbara Drapkin, Ellen Cochran and Lynne Lundquist are seen only on the faces of the cast. This trio of ladies possess the artistic flair that created the remarkable makeup jobs.

The cast of characters gives one the opportunity to laugh at idiosyncrasies. Often the best thereapy in the world is laughter.

Creating things of beauty easy as cutting up a log

POMONA — Don't toss that old limb into the fireplace, it is a potential candlestick or bowl.

At least, that's the experience of Herb Weightman of Pomona. Appalled at the cost of a piece of walnut he wanted to buy, Weightman decided to dig among his scrap wood and see what could be salvaged.

Oranges and orange trees have long been a part of his life. For 30 years, he was associated with the Pomona Fruit Growers Association, serving as manager at the time the firm was disbanded.

In 1944, Weightman and his wife purchased an orange grove. While they still live on the same property, the last trees were removed eight years ago and the wood chopped up and saved.

This is the wood — scraps and stumps — which provide the materials for his attractive wood items. And, states Weightman, "I've got enough wood for the rest of my life."

After selecting a branch or stump, he begins turning it on a lathe until the splits are removed, then he works with the pieces gleaned. Larger items, and even many smaller ones, are created from laminated pieces, producing a variety of textures, grains and colors. The orange wood ranges in tone from extremely dark to almost white and the grain has many patterns.

The wood, Weightman says, is medium hard and lends itself well to various woodwork techniques.

Oiling the completed pieces enhances the grain and highlights the color tones. Many of his pieces are highly polished and coated with clear varnish.

Weightman now operates the Pomona Swim School and relegates his woodwork to "just a hobby" but he feels that if more people knew that they could work with scrap orange wood, which is plentiful in the valley, they'd enjoy making items for their homes or as gifts.

CREATED FROM SCRAPS

Herb Weightman of Pomona holds a limb from an orange tree which he can use to make attractive items. Shown are a bowl, a wooden cannon and candlesticks made from trees which he owned.

Conservation of wildlife great concern to reader

Could you please tell me how I can help conserve our wildlife?

I ordered a short side extension for a saw from an eastern machine and tool company on Oct. 12, 1973.

Although I wrote to the firm in November, I have not received the merchandise and have heard nothing from the company.

This order was for my son and it was his $4. I would appreciate anything you can do about getting us the merchandise or a refund. — Mrs. J.H., Chino.

According to the company, you were advised by form letter that its stock was depleted and shipment would be made as soon as the accessory was available.

Following our inquiry, the company shipped you one of its display room units.

I'm another veteran having problems.

When I terminated my enrollment at Cal Poly at the end of the 1973 spring quarter, I notified the Veterans Administration in Los Angeles and returned a $220 check, figuring I owed it to the VA.

VA officials wrote to me saying they had overpaid me $330. I sent them a money order for the amount and threw away the letter, thinking that was the end of it.

Soon after, I received another letter telling me that I only owned $110 because of the $220 check I sent back. So I figure that they owe me that $220.

Soon after that incident, the VA dealt me another bum hand.

I applied for advance payment eligibility and reported to school to pick up my check as instructed. The check was there, all right, but the amount was wrong.

All in all, the VA owes me at least $440. — J.P., Pomona.

After a letter from Action Line, the VA sent you three checks totaling $440 and notified you that your entitlement benefits would be exhausted on June 14.

Thank you for finding JOVE 2 for me.

The young man in prison has just had his first furlough, four days, and seems to be doing well.

He writes frequently and sends copies of songs he is writing. He is something of a Tom T. Hall or Kris Kristofferson in the making.

We will be able to help him get his songs heard since we are affiliated with the Academy of Country Music. One of his songs has been performed professionally already through our efforts.

His counselor says he is a different person than he was several months ago when he was convicted. He is considered one of the better prospects for complete rehabilitation and success on the outside.

He lived in and out of foster homes most of his life and drifted into stealing with other kids in the same situation. — Mrs. M.S., Diamond Bar.

The young man you write about is due for parole in April.

JOVE 2, federally funded and located in Pasadena, obtains employment for ex-offenders. JOVE stands for job placement, on-the-job training, vocational training and education.

Upland man seeks new chair in the Assembly

UPLAND — Tim Dolan, vice president of Driftwood Dairy of El Monte and an Upland resident, has become the fifth candidate to announce for the 65th Assembly District seat.

Dolan, a Republician, was defeated in his 1972 candidacy for 72nd District Assemblyman by Democratic incumbent John Quimby. The newly-created 65th District includes Pomona, Ontario, Upland, Montclair, Chino and adjacent unincorporated areas in southwestern San Bernardino County.

Other candidates in the June primary election include Chino businessman Pete Vander Poel, Pomona Planning Commissioner Clyde Stephens, Chino City Attorney William McVittie and Pomona City Councilman Charles W. Bader.

Dolan, 32, says his campaign will be people-oriented.

"The keynote of my campaign will be an effort to bring the people of our district into a more reciprocal relationship with their state government. We have the finest elective system in existence, but the system succeeds only when every individual becomes involved," the candidate said.

Dolan said the issues that most concern people in the district must also be the top priority of their assembly representative.

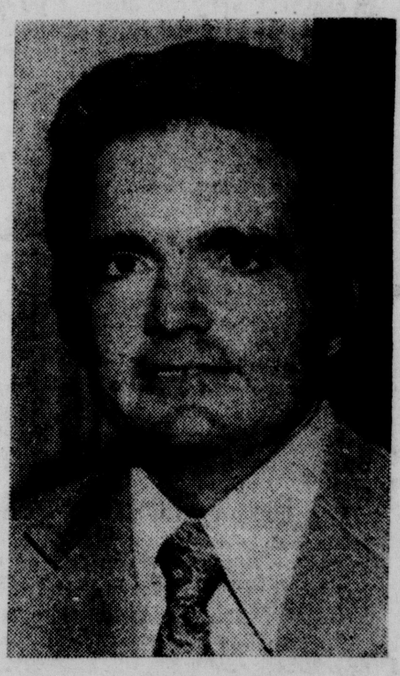

"My background as a private businessman with experience in a variety of areas including agriculture, transportation and computer technology will be relevant to the business of government. Our state is an enormous operation, but despite its size, it must remain responsive to the citizens.

"Through closer contact and real communication with the residents of our district, I hope to restore confidence in the political process."

Dolan attended Chaffey College and Mt. San Antonio College and is a licensed airline transport pilot. As a special project each year he works with the City of Chino and its Sister City program in San Juan del Rio, Mexico. As a pilot, he donates his time and transportation to students who visit Chino as a part of the program.

He has been a volunteer in Republican campaigns since 1962.

He and his wife, Darlene, and three children live in Upland.

Soviet detente-- no love affair

"Peace and detente are very much on people's minds these days."

That is a truism. But it has a special significance when spoken by someone like Alexander I. Zinchuk, Soviet Consul General, as it was recently in an address to the Commonwealth Club of California in San Francisco.

The need for detente, he explained, lies in the fact that Red China, the Soviet Union and the United States are nuclear powers, and also members of the Security Council. Relations between them, and the effect of those relations upon world affairs, depends upon "how they behave towards each other in the international arena."

Giving President Nixon full credit for bettering relations between his nation and ours, Zinchuk said that the present detente is based on the mutual realization that "confrontation had to be abandoned and channels of cooperation had to be found if peaceful coexistence was to become a reality."

Zinchuk pointed to a number of indications of improving relationships throughout the world, but most interesting was his definition of what detente really means:

"It does not mean that our interests are identical. The Soviet Union and the United States have different interests in different areas. Detente means that we must not have confrontations that could lead to war. At the same time, it means that we have reached a level of understanding which permits us to cooperate in areas of trade and economic development."

Then came the key sentence: "But to avoid possible disappointments, both sides would be better off not to equate detente with mutual love."

That's for sure; but it's nice to have a high level Soviet official acknowledge it publicly.

Sky as leveler

Being an astronaut is a demanding, confining, rigorous job. Long and highly disciplined training, the need for supremely sharp physical and mental condition and great emotional stability, cast the space men in an almost super-human mold. Almost.

The three crewmen on the scheduled 84-day Skylab flight have learned many things during the first half of their project, probably the most revealing being the fact that they are, indeed, human beings with weaknesses and personal fallibilities no amount of training can remove. And probably shouldn't.

Talking openly during a space-to-earth television press conference Astronaut William R. Pogue admitted quite frankly that at the start of the flight he "tried to operate like a machine and I was a gross failure." Not only is he now operating as a human being "within the limits I possess," but he vows his attitude toward his life and family is going to change for the better, too.

Mission commander Gerald P. Carr echoed Pogue's sentiments. He made the point that "people in our . . . very technical type of work are inclined to move along with blinders on." He feels the mission experience will increase his awareness of "what else is going on besides what I'm doing."

Edward G. Gibson, the mission scientist, had less of a personal adjustment to make, but finds the flight very fulfilling because he actually is doing the work he trained for so long and is contributing to science.

Three brilliant humans who had to leave the earth in order to discover and fulfill themselves.

I resolve...

Going through the annual breaking of New Year's resolutions? Be not dismayed. Your company is legion.

The human frailty that soon sets us stumbling from the new and noble path we have charted for ourselves—too often during the trauma of recovering from New Year's Eve—is basic and simple.

We make resolutions for the wrong reasons.

Philosopher columnist Sydney J. Harris illustrates this by recalling the old folk-saying: "The devil was sick, the devil a saint would be; the devil got well, the DEVIL a saint he'd be." We usually make resolutions to reform or repent when we are sick or tired, disgusted, fearful of mortality. Then our self-esteem regenerates itself, and our resolutions are "airily dismissed as the morbid product of a mind half off its hinges."

Harris uses a musical analogy to pinpoint the true value of resolutions. A musical "resolution," he points out is "the progression of a dissonant tone or chord to a consonant tone or chord," and this is a happy if somewhat cerebral guide to our own resolutions—make them "not as dreary things we must cling to grimly at the expense of pleasure, but as ways of resolving the dissonances in our own personality so that the 'composition' called our life may conclude in consonance."

A rather imposing standard, no? Which is why we so often fail.

Chronology of the Nixon papers

WASHINGTON — President Nixon "must have known" that a backdated deed was used to obtain his celebrated $576,000 tax deduction.

This is the statement of sources who are completely familiar with the preparation of the President's controversial tax returns.

They contend that he not only instructed his subordinates to seek the deduction but kept a sharp eye on their efforts.

The President, who specialized in tax law as a young lawyer, fully understood his tax returns before signing them, stress our sources.

Last day

If an ordinary taxpayer backdated a document to gain a half-million-dollar tax write-off, he would find himself in the soup. Most likely, he would be investigated for filing a false claim and evading taxes.

The question is whether Nixon donated his vice presidential papers before July 25, 1969. This was the last day he could take a tax deduction for the papers.

In his defense, White House loyalists insist he declared his intention to donate the papers before the deadline and left it to underlings to implement his wishes.

We have spent several weeks investigating the President's tax returns. From sources who have followed the developments closely, we can now provide the curious chronology of the Nixon Papers:

In law offices

Before Richard Nixon moved from his New York law firm to the White House, he stored all his pre-presidential papers in his law offices. He decided in December 1968 to make a tax break by donating some of the papers to the government.

Ralph Newman, an expert appraiser of historical documents, was called in from Chicago to evaluate the gift. He selected enough documents to justify the $80,000 tax deduction that Nixon wanted. Then Nixon signed over the documents to the government in a deed, which was also accepted by signature.

—Our sources say Nixon was annoyed with his former law partners over the $128,611 settlement they gave him when he left the firm. He felt they had short-changed him by not taking into account all the clients his name had drawn to the firm. Angrily, he ordered all his papers moved to the archives, which was happy to store them for him.

The deeded papers arrived on March 20, 1969. Six days later, several more dusty crates packed with papers arrived. The archives began processing the deeded papers. The rest were deposited in an area reserved for "courtesy storage."

On another floor

Ralph Newman paid a visit to the archives from April 6 to 8 to complete his appraisal of the deeded papers. Apparently, he didn't even look at the other documents, which were kept on a different floor.

—Congress voted in December 1969 to outlaw tax deductions for private papers. When the President realized what Congress was about to do, he sent his top lobbyist, Bryce Harlow, to Capitol Hill to delay the cut-off date until the end of 1969. Instead, Congress retroactively set July 25, 1969, as the deadline.

Meanwhile, Ralph Newman was summoned from Chicago again to appraise the remaining Nixon papers. He was instructed to set aside enough papers to justify a tax deduction of $500,000.

His appraisal began on Nov. 3 and was completed on Dec. 8, 1969. The following March 27, he sent the archives a complete description of the papers the President claims to have donated the previous year. The formal appraisal was drawn up on April 6, 1970, and was attached to President Nixon's tax returns, which he signed on April 10.

Backdated deed

—Based on Newman's final 1970 appraisal, the President claimed a $576,000 tax deduction. Yet no deductions were supposed to be allowed after July 5, 1969.

To get around this problem, White House aide Edward L. Morgan simply backdated the deed to March 27, 1969. This was notarized by the President's tax attorney, Frank DeMarco, who backdated his notary seal to April 21, 1969.

The backdated deed, of course, wasn't submitted to the archives until April 1970, with the phony explanation that it had been laying around DeMarco's office. The deed contained neither Nixon's signature nor the acceptance signature, which are required under government regulations.

Curiously, the deed was called back by the White House on Sept. 13, 1971. Our sources say the backdated deed was causing some nervous afterthoughts.

Back on hill

In early 1972, the President again assigned his lobbyists to try to repeal the July 25, 1969, cut-off date. This would have removed any question about the legality of the $576,000 tax deduction and the backdated deed.

A proposed bill was drafted and given to Clark MacGregor, then the chief White House lobbyist, who had no luck getting congressional support for it.

Finally, on Jan. 13, 1973, as questions were being raised about the tax deduction, the deed was returned to the archives.

FOOTNOTE: Both Morgan and DeMarco contend that the backdating of the deed was entirely proper, because it formalized what the President had wanted to do before the deadline.

The super-sex party is a big flop

It's what's next for swinging singles. What rock concerts have been to footloose youngsters, the super-sex party is to unattached adults. Probably there's a dating place in every town, but Barry Sax is making a big business of it.

He contracts with a whole hotel and advertises far and wide for singles to converge for a party. There's nothing illegal about it and, in his advertising, nothing immoral except by inference.

This past year one of his swinging weekends attracted an overflow 10,000 to the Hyatt Regency Hotel near Chicago's O'Hare airport.

There was rock music from six bands, a mixed sauna and swim party, four astrologers, contests with travel prizes and 70 bars in that Disneyland for adult leftovers. But despite the carnival atmosphere and the crowd, loneliness crashed the party.

If any one characteristic is common of us all, it is that we want to be where we aren't. But Stephen Lewis, author of "Sex Among the Singles," says the grass is no greener on that side.

Dr. David Reuben says, "Singles activities, like computer dating, look good on paper. It would seem that all you need do is fill a dance floor or a vacation cruise ship with 500 unattached men and women and each will find what he wants.

"But," says Reuben, "like computer dating, most singles affairs tend to attract a specific category of men and women. They turn up, the same faces attached to the same bodies, week after week, place after place in a dreary, endless search."

Rick Soll came away from Chicago's super-sex party feeling "nasty, wasted." The bash that had begun as a lark with the promise of good times in shared beds and even the possibility of meaningful contact with another human had evolved into shared loneliness instead.

But Barry Sax, the 29-year-old Canadian promoter, plans other and similar parties: "Three days in paradise for $64.00."

Few who spent three days in the cat's sandbox in Chicago will follow him elsewhere, but there are, he insists, "customers everywhere."

The supply of frustrated, fearful and lonely people is limitless, fortunately for him. Unfortunately for them, each one is seeking somebody of substance and solidity but looking in the least likely place.

Nothing was sadder to see than the hollow-eyed, middle-age men and women who left their downtown haunts to bring their hopes to Sax' circus of sex. They ended up sitting morosely in the lobby overdrinking, vindictively enjoying the problems the promoter was having cleaning up the monstrous mess and watching one another pass out.

An inflated bet

Not too many months ago, Mr. Nixon was telling the American people that he would not lead us down the road to wage and price controls, that he would see to it the budget was balanced.

But, somewhere soon after Nixon got his roads crossed up, leading us into the biggest economic rut every — money pollution to the tune of 105 billion dollars for five years in office. The Nixon team pollutes money worse than an oil spill can pollute water.

If I had to bet my inflated money on what is happening, I would bet it on the Nixon team's ability to disintegrate the dollar — in the name of a one world currency; dissolve our military capability in the name of disarmament, destroy the economy in the name of sudden food, water, paper and energy crisis, and direct the national ship into the international waters of conciliation to a one world socialist alliance in the name of "peace with honor."

It is well past time to pick out the donkey, the cart and the boy in this contrived, confusing scenery; for the fact is that spiraling government debt, and spiraling debt interest, and brazen government created shortages can be stopped if the American people understand what is happening and refuse to march off the cliff into socialism, and if we will consider our freedom worth the time to write our congressmen, who continue approving an unbalanced budget and the printing of more inflated money. What will you do to deflate the bet? — Steve Huddlestun, Ontario.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Haig is no Haldeman

WASHINGTON — It doesn't say enough to assert that aide Alexander Haig gets less access to President Nixon than some White House watchers have imagined.

This is not really new, but informed sources stress again that Haig is not and never has been the kind of "managerial" aide that H.R. Haldeman was — with the co-equal support of former aide John Ehrlichman in many important ways.

(In this capital, incidentally, the circuit still buzzes with the notion that Haldeman continues indirectly to advise Mr. Nixon via calls to Ronald Ziegler and others.)

Ziegler, of course, acknowledged limited telephone contact. But if, as some observers of the President's establishment think, Haldeman still quietly serves today, it is at more than physical distance and thus may be severely restricted in value.

Naturally he can't issue orders to men in high station. If either Ziegler or any other Haldeman "transmitter" tries to effectuate the former chief of staff's suggestions or recommendations, casting real weight should be difficult. One source tells me he doubts Ziegler could even get through to at least one department head he knows.

However, this may be, this source thinks Mr. Nixon from an early time on allowed himself to be "crippled" by excessive dependence on the Haldeman-Ehrlichman team.

They offered him a blend of services — executing orders, managing and organizing activities, feeding in ideas from other sources — which the President plainly accepted as being performed with high competence.

They were able to do this while always avoiding the kind of tough criticism, of hard interchange, which the President inescapably equates with disloyalty. This aspect is what distinguishes them from such advertised consultative aides as Melvin Laird and, briefly, John Connally. The Haldeman-Ehrlichman manner of command, striking fear widely, made them effective as Haig is not.

Their makeup and their blend of service plus intense loyalty fit the President to perfection. He, through such heavy dependency upon them for so many things, was left free to pursue the foreign affairs functions of his job which he considers not only his special realm but the key to greatness in any president's performance.

Yet the widening judgment here is that Mr. Nixon has consistently misread both the history and the nature of the presidency, that he has given away too much in not being his own man in broader areas than foreign affairs.

Shrewdly, Haldeman and Ehrlichman made Richard Nixon, his welfare and his wishes (as they read them) their sole "project."

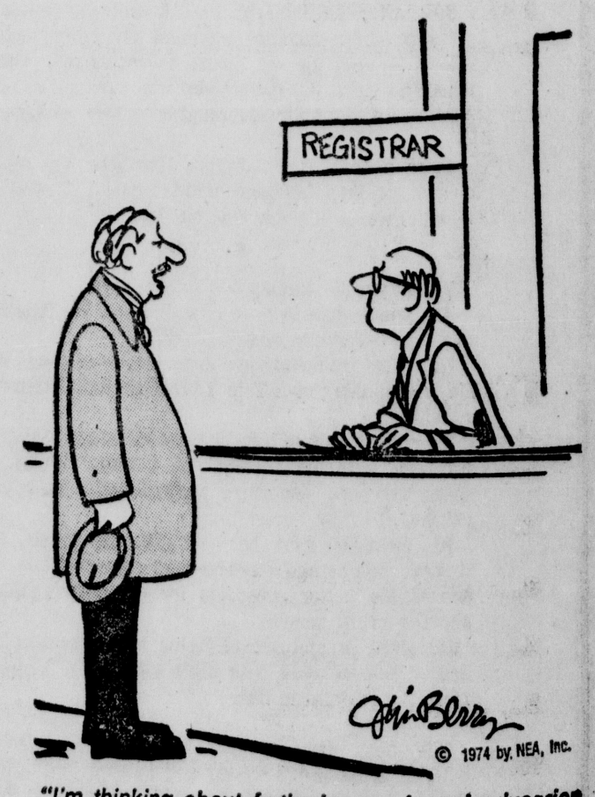

By that fact, largely conceded in their public utterance, they became his cripplers. But it takes two to tango. He let them cripple him. In his very narrow concept of the presidency, he wanted dependency upon them in large reaches of domestic affairs — obviously not excluding politics.

Personal caretakers, men who make a president or any-one else their all-consuming "project", are clearly not easy to come by. The mix of skills required is rare.

That's why Haig doesn't measure up, and why it's plausible to believe Haldeman continues — as one removed — to take a hand. But the inevitable handicaps in the present setup also explain why things are not moving smoothly in the White House.

From Mr. Nixon's view, one of the worst consequences of Watergate is that, forcing the Haldeman-Ehrlichman resignations, it exposes his self-imposed crippling — and the damage that may inflict upon the whole nation through an aftermath of fumbling.

New wing already in use at San Antonio Community Hospital

UPLAND — The first patients have been admitted into San Antonio Community Hospital's newly completed 28-bed orthopaedic unit.

The $360,000 medical-surgical wing, located on the hospital's fourth floor, provides patients with the latest in hospital equipment and facilities.

All rooms of the new wing are equipped with swing-away bedside cabinets which house electrical controls for adjusting beds, selecting channels for television, radio or closed-circuit programed music, changing lighting levels and activating a sophisticated nurse-call system.

The European-designed communication system allows personnel to be automatically informed of patient needs through special signal lights. The lights also show the location of nursing personnel by patients' room numbers.

Emergency buttons signal other staff members of the unit when extra help is needed during emergencies. A voice communication system allows uninterrupted, natural communication between patients and nurses.

In addition to the new equipment, the wing features a sun porch on its north side for use by recuperating patients.

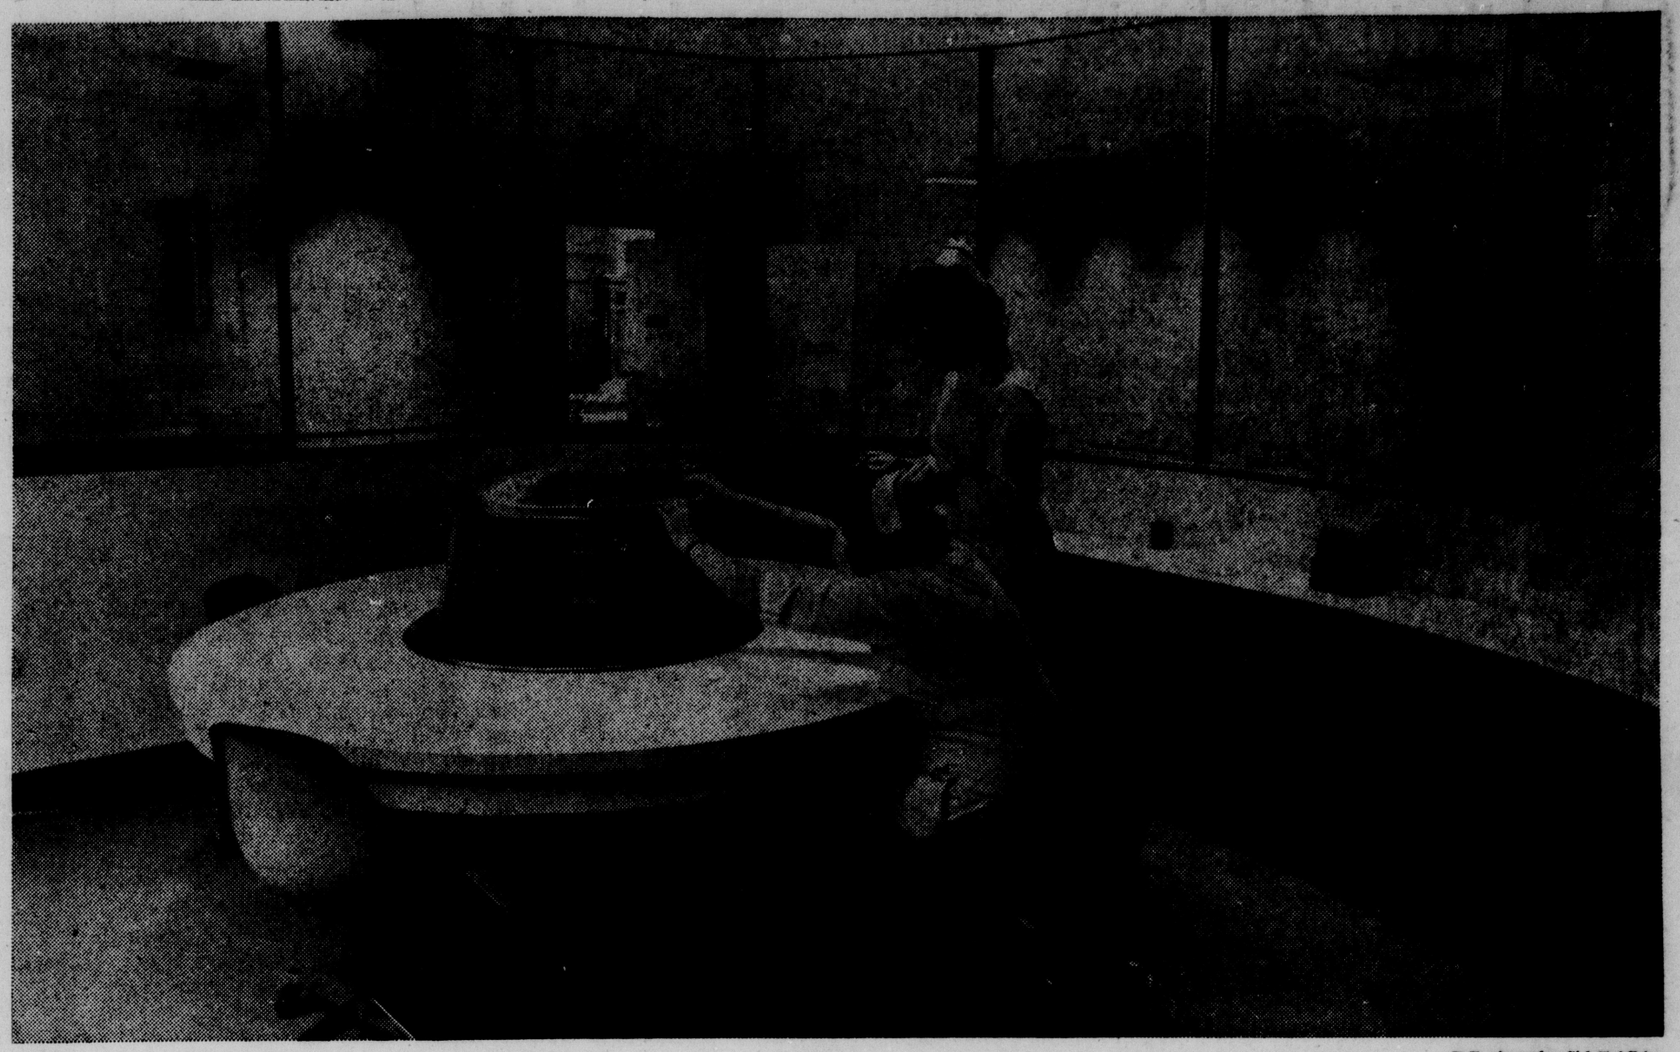

The new wing, under construction for the past 10 months, is part of the hospital's long-range $22 million construction and expansion program.

The program includes a $6 million expansion and modernization of the emergency room, pharmacy, radiology, laboratory, dental clinic, nuclear medicine and electroencephalography departments.

Additional parking space and expansion of the power plant is included in the program to be completed by spring of 1975.

An 18-bed, $1.5 million mental health unit is also scheduled for construction beginning this July.

Architects for the entire project are Harnish, Morgan and Causey of Ontario.

Upland, Ontario added to RTD 10-cent route

LOS ANGELES — Starting Monday, Feb. 4, residents of Upland and Ontario can ride Rapid Transit District Line 148, which joins the two cities, for just a dime.

The experimental 10-cent fare, requested by the city councils of both cities, will allow residents to ride any distance on the line. However, no transfers will be issued.

The reduced fare is an effort to attract more riders to the line which runs from Francis Street in Ontario to San Bernardino Road in Upland.

In addition to the fare reduction, transit officials will make a test run next week of a proposed addition to the route above Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

The additional mileage, if approved, would provide service to the residents of the Los Olivos housing project, according to Upland City Manager Elwin Alder.

Trio of W.E. communities eyes consolidation

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda are apparently destined to unite, but it will not be a "shotgun affair."

Representatives of the three communities met with the Local Agency Formation Commission recently. They agreed in principle with procedural steps, but with a more deliberate approach than the basic proposal of one year.

One year is not sufficient to bring all the loose ends together, representatives of the communities advised the agency. One suggestion was for a five-year transition, such an allowance having previously been granted to Bloomington.

But members of the agency believed the matter could be brought to fruition within a lesser time provision, fearing that the whole situation might suffer from too much delay.

There is only a minimum of opposition in the three communities, one informal poll at a meeting showing only a scattering of dissenters from the more than 200 present.

It was suggested by one member of the agency that the time be extended to three years, but this failed to get support. An extension to five years also was questioned. The proposal for a one year provision aroused the most interest.

The consensus was that the community proceed with its work and report back to the board in a year, offering evidence that substantial progress was being made. But the representatives of the communities asked for a year's time proviso, it being agreed that further time would be granted if required.

It was acceptable to all that the entire matter be put over until the agency's Feb. 13 session.

Ontario, Upland and Fontana have expressed a desire to annex the area, but this was vigorously opposed. It was unanimously agreed by the residents of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda that preserving their identities and traditions was vital.

Speaking for the agency, chairman Walter E. Stewart expressed gratitude for the sincere efforts of the communities to bring about incorporation. Those heard for the petitioners were Stanley Prosser, Stanley Allen and Don Hansen.

With only five members present, the agency postponed action on most of its agenda until the Feb. 13 session.

A solution to 4-card major

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "In the '30s it was common practice to open one spade with a hand like the one held by South. Opener would be afraid to lose the spade suit if he didn't bid it first. This practice fell into general disrepute. People were playing too many 4-3 and even 4-2 spade fits with disastrous results."

Jim: "There seemed to be no way to handle this type of hand until Philip Flannery of Pittsburgh devised a special convention. The opening bid of two diamonds is artificial and shows five hearts, four spades and 12-16 high-card points."

Oswald: "The bid is supposedly forcing, but in today's hand responder elected to pass with a terrific match-point result."

Jim: "East and West can't get into the bidding on any sequence. North and South have no trouble making two diamonds and actually South made an overtrick after the defense started with three rounds of clubs. South won the third club in dummy; cashed his two high hearts to get rid of dummy's last club and eventually lost a trump and a spade."

Oswald: "It is possible to get to a diamond contract after South makes a normal heart opening, but in this particular field almost everyone went set at one notrump or two hearts so that the Flannery bidder nearly scored a top.

Smith Bros. Trade, Mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bearded Smith Brothers, whose portraits have appeared on boxes of cough drops for more than a hundred years, were the actual founders of a company based on their father's secret recipe for "a flavorsome and efficacious cough candy."

In 1866, William and Andrew Smith started the cough drop concern in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., according to Robert Marston and Associates, Inc. When their pictures first appeared on the box over the word "trademark," the printer mistakenly split the word so that William became "Trade" and Andrew "Mark."

Rattles & straws

Look, Ma! Many cavities

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Don't you think that the cute television food commercials aimed at children are just too sweet for words?

They're not. Plenty of words are being spoken and written about the irresponsibility of food manufacturers and television stations and networks beaming at moppets bright little advertisements for candy, cookies, snacks, soft drinks, fake fruit drinks and sugared cereals.

At a recent federal hearing on children's TV advertising, Sen. George McGovern said, "At the same time the medium is subjecting the minds of our children to hundreds of hours of nutrition miseducation, it is doing virtually nothing to provide them with the fundamentals of good nutrition and good health." (Typical bleeding heart. What does he want — kids with good teeth and strong bones?

Dr. Abraham E. Nizel of the Tufts University school of dental training said, "We should ban the advertising of all sugar-sweetened products on children's television programs." (Another trouble-maker. Where would his dental school be if kids quit eating candy bars?)

One Robert Choate, a concerned citizen, last year helped set up an organization called On Second Thought in Washington, D.C., to challenge the nutritional claims of cereal manufacturers. A sort of Ralph Nader of baby teeth, he was supported by a lot of lunatic-fringe groups such as the Consumers Federation of America, the Society for Nutrition Education, and others.

The Federal Communications Commission, the most vacillating of the many government agencies supported by the taxpayer, took its customary no-action action on Choate's protest. The FCC hasn't taken a positive step since the invention of radio.

Choate sent professionally produced, illustrated, public service spot announcements aimed at improving children's eating habits to 70 television stations, asking that they be aired during the kids' TV-watching hours — 5 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. The results were predictable: 42 stations declined to state, 29 ran the announcements once. If a soft drink manufacturer will pay you $5,000 to show children a sprightly ad for teeth-rotting bubbly, why should the station run a free announcement on the virtues of an apple?

Choate got just as far in his approach to the networks — not quite to first base. They all declined. ABC said the spots raised questions of "accuracy, controversy and taste" — not like a good clean whisky advertisement. CBS whined "we do not consider commercials as 'food advice' . . . we do not consider nutrition and health broadcasts as necessary." NBC slithered off with "We are not equipped to make a scientific judgment with respect to this controversy," Beautiful.

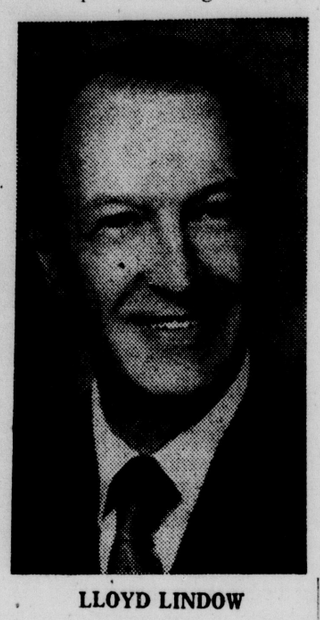

Clearly there is no reason for television — stations or networks — to concern itself with problems of health, if they don't pay their way. The Game of the Week is one thing; children's bicuspids are quite another.

Deposits of calories like bank deposits

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB —I am an instructor of physical education, and was a student when you visited our campus. Since then I have encountered some people who have disagreed with me when I told them that eating food late at night didn't tend to make you fatter than eating the same food any time of the day. I remember you discussing this matter and explaining that it was like "putting money in the bank — not when, but how much." Could you please give me any information so I can document my statement to these disconcerting people?

DEAR READER — I am always flattered when someone remembers something I have said in a lecture. You have quoted me correctly.

I too have had an occasional person question this fact. Proving it to your hecklers is a little bit like proving that the sun comes up in the east. The statement is based on one of the most fundamentl laws of nature, the law of conservation of energy. It states, as you will find in any adequate college text of physics, "energy can neither be created nor destroyed."

A calorie is a unit of energy, described as the amount of heat energy required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade. Energy in our food is measured in calories. It follows that the calories in our food can neither be increased nor decreased by the time of day they are eaten, a calorie is a calorie in the morning, at noon, in the evening, at night — seven days a week, 52 weeks a year. People who do not understand this or will not accept it are ignoring the fundamental laws of nature.

This principle also applies to many diets that have been proposed. There is no magic way to defy the laws of physics. Our body is a calorie processor. We use the calories in the food we eat, or we store them as fat. Like all energy systems, it is cumulative. That means the changes in your body at the end of a day, a week or a month represent the sum total of the energy in, minus the energy used. If you eat more energy than you expend you get fat. The person who expends more energy than he eats uses the energy in the fat stores to make up the difference.

So, it doesn't make a particle of difference whether you eat 2,000 calories for breakfast and 400 calories all the rest of the day — or whether you eat only 400 calories for breakfast and 2,000 calories before going to bed. The end result is 2,400 calories in, and if you don't use that much that day the extra colories are stored in fat.

People who do eat a lot of food at night are most likely to get fat, for quite different reasons. Most people who don't get food energy during the day tend to be less active. They are not active at night either. The net result is their energy expenditure is usually (but not always) low. However, that doesn't alter the basic law of energy. These people eat more calories than they use. Until someone finds a way to circumvent the law of conservation of energy, a calorie will still be a calorie. When that law is circumvented, look carefully to the west in the morning, you may see the sun rising in the west after all.

Careers at stake in Super Fight II

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unlike Super Fight I of three years ago, no title will be at stake for Super Fight II tonight when Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier meet in a 12-round match . . . only the boxing careers of the two men who have dominated the sport the last 10 years.

A shot at the heavyweight crown, currently held by George Foreman, awaits the winner.

Oblivion, but hardly on a pauper's scale, beckons the loser.

For sheer ability, drama and excitement, both inside the ring and out, the son of Super Fight must rate a poor second to the orginal but a sellout throng of 20,000 "beautiful people" contributing to a $1 million "live" gate will be on hand at Madison Square Garden for the event.

Ali and Frazier have been guaranteed $850,000 each against 32 ½ percent of all rights, including theater television. The bout will be shown on theater TV in some 50 countries with approximately 1.8 million seats available in U.S. and Canadian theaters. With the promoters expecting to gross between $17 million and $18 million for the TV rights, Ali and Frazier stand to collect about $2.5 million apiece.

Fight fans in European countries will remain awake into the early morning hours to watch the fight while most of the new African nations will receive the bout, as will most Middle East countries, Japan and Hong Kong.

Ticket prices for Madison Square Garden were scaled from $100 down to $20 but scalpers are reported to be getting from $150 to $200 a seat for choice locations. The gate will be an indoor record for a non-title fight.

It's only one month shy of 10 years since Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, took the heavyweight title from the late Sonny Liston at Miami. At 32, Ali is more than a step slower than he was during his prime but the oddsmakers have made him an 8-5 favorite to avenge the loss he suffered to Frazier via a 15-round unanimous decision on March 8, 1971.

At Sunday's televised weigh-in, in which precautions were taken that the two fighters would not meet face-to-face, an unusually subdued Ali scaled 212 pounds, three less than he weighed for Super Fight I.

Frazier, two years younger than his opponent, tipped the scales at 209, 3 ½ pounds more than three years ago but more importantly, five less than one year ago when, admittedly flabby and out of shape, he was knocked out in the second round by Foreman in Kingston, Jamaica.

Ali and Frazier were kept apart and security at the weigh-in was super tight to prevent any reoccurrence of last week's impromptu "wrestling" match between the two at a taping of a television show. For their actions, Frazier, who admitted he "lost my cool" and Ali were each fined $5,000 by the New York State Athletic Commission for "conduct demeaning to boxing" and were threatened with similar punishment should they tangle again before meeting in the ring.

Frazier, when asked if he would win by a knockout or decision, refused to make a prediction except to say, "I'll be around for the 12 rounds. I ain't going any place."

★ ★ ★

"Joe's nervous, flighty, fidgety, I'm the stronger man," Ali boasted, "Look at my weight. I'm exactly what I said I would be. This will be no contest. I'm gonna be so fast in the first round that those people who bet on Frazier will have time to change their bets. I won't predict how it'll end, but I'm not gonna make the mistakes of the first fight. I'm gonna dance, dance, dance."

Bruins turn attention to archrival Trojans

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With the business of who's No. 1 in the nation behind them, UCLA's mighty Bruins return to the subject of the Pacific-8 basketball race and archrival University of Southern California.

"Right now," said John Wooden, "USC is the most important game on our schedule."

The Bruins, who took apart Notre Dame 94-75 during the weekend to end the Irish's one-week reign as the country's top collegiate hoop team, are at home to the 14-2 Trojans Saturday night.

Interestingly, UCLA, which will return to No. 1 in national ratings this week, isn't No. 1 in its own conference.

Oregon leads the Pac-8 with a 5-0 record followed by UCLA (4-0) and USC (3-1).

The Bruins may be feeling their muscles after smashing Notre Dame but the old master, Wooden, will be sure to remind them of a statistic this week.

In nine seasons at Pauley Pavilion, the Bruins have won 128 games and lost twice. The two losses? To USC, naturally.

Bill Walton played as if he had a personal score to settle with the Irish, the team that ended UCLA's NCAA record 88-game winning streak.

He poured in 32 points and pulled down 11 rebounds, hitting 16 of 19 shots against 6-9 Notre Dame center John Shumate.

"The real Bill Walton is back," explained Wooden, "and that makes an obvious difference."

In the first Nore Dame game, won by the Irish 71-70, the 6-11 redhead from La Mesa, Calif., was coming off a three-game layoff because of an injured back.

"It was simply a matter of Bill lacking conditioning because he missed so much playing time," the 26-year UCLA coach explained. "He's in top shape now, though."

Wooden denied his two-time All-America center played the Notre Dame rematch as if he was on a vendetta.

"No, I don't believe he did," he said. "Bill's not that kind of person."

UCLA, now 15-1, has 10 games remaining, all league contests. After USC, the Bruins are home the following weekend against Oregon and Oregon State.

Notre Dame takes a 12-1 record into a Tuesday night game at South Bend, Ind., against Marquette.

West not satisfied after Lakers' win

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — Everyone agreed that Jerry West played a good game . . . except Jerry West.

The 35 (he'll be 36 in May) year old Laker guard made his first start since Dec. 11. Still troubled by the pulled groin muscle that has bothered him for six weeks now, he appeared to be quicker than he has been at any time since returning to action.

West played 31 of a possible 48 minutes. He scored 18 points, the same as Gail Goodrich, got six rebounds and four assists and was credited with two steals as the Lakers defeated the crippled Milwaukee Bucks Sunday night at the Forum, 99-92.

The Bucks were without the services of Lucius Allen, Mickey Davis, Dick Cunningham, and Russell Lee. And Oscar Robertson is playing injured ala West.

Coach Bill Sharman said, "Number 44 (West) played the best game since he came back to the lineup. It looked to me like he had good quickness and penetrated very well."

Jim Price, who replaced West while the veteran guard was out, also played 31 minutes (Goodrich played 35) and led the Lakers in scoring with 20 points.

Price said, "I think it helped him (West) to start. He was warmed up and loose. It's probably harder for him to come off the bench cold. He really helped us out there."

But West, who probably sets the highest standards of personal excellence of any professional athlete, sharply disagreed.

"I thought I was lousy," he told writers as he sat on the training table as trainer Frank O'Neill worked on him.

"I don't know," he continued, "I just don't feel like I'm doing enough things in the game. I'm just not able to play. I made mistakes. I used bad judgment."

Nor would the 14-year veteran use his injury as an excuse. "It shouldn't make any difference whether I start or don't start," he muttered. "I think the only advantage to starting is that I'm warm.

"It takes an awful lot to satisfy me and it's hard to accept anything less than those standards," he continued. "I felt quicker the last two or three games, but I didn't have control of myself. Two or three times I did the right thing (mentally) but ended up doing the wrong thing."

Five West passes went astray in the game which contributed to the Lakers' usual turnover trouble (19).

"I didn't think I would get as tired (as quickly) as I do," he admitted. "I'm not 100 percent. I tried two or three times to go to the basket and couldn't."

All of which does nothing to dispell repeated rumors that the all-time great will soon announce his retirement.

Sharman, as does almost everyone connected with the organization, devoutly hopes West will continue playing.

"I want to start him every game and will do so unless he asks me not to," said the Laker coach. "I feel he can play another two years. In some ways you are better at 35. But he's such a great player and has had such great success that he can't stand not meeting his standards."

SAL turning into runaway after upsets

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

What was figured to be a close and interesting race is now turning into a two-team runaway in the San Antonio League.

It's not a surprise that one of the two teams is till in the running for the 1974 SAL championship. Ganesha, favored to capture this year's title, is still unbeaten in league action (6-0) and holds a one-game lead over the second place team — the Montclair Cavaliers.

It is a surprise that the Cavs are where they are in the standings. Montclair entered league play with a 5-7 record three weeks ago, and now has a five-game winning streak tucked under its belt.

So where is the rest of the field?

Three teams (Claremont, Chino and Garey) are lagging two games behind the Cavaliers and three games behind Ganesha. Two more teams (Pomona and Upland) are four games off the Giants' league-leading pace.

It's not much of a race right now.

The eight SAL teams will close out the first round of league play Tuesday afternoon, and will prepare to jump into the second round of action next Friday night. Hopefully the second time around will be a little more exciting.

You can't say the first round lacked interesting qualities, though.

The fact that Montclair is presently in second place is interesting, and the disappointing starts for Claremont and Chino also proved to be unpredictable.

The Wolfpack, once ranked third in CIF this season after entering league play with a 12-1 record, Tuesday will host the Cowboys from Chino, once ranked sixth in the CIF ratings.

At the beginning of SAL play this game would have been one of the biggies of the season, but now it's just a game.

Nichols better than '64?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — His blond hair is getting thinner, lines mark his face near the eyes and his putting isn't as good as he'd like it to be. But Bobby Nichols probably is a better player today at 38 than he was 10 years ago when he won the PGA championship.

He showed how good Sunday when he played consistently while all around him crumbled except Gene Littler, and when it was all over Nichols was the winner by a stroke of the $34,000 top prize and a $5,000 automobile in the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

"Winning feels better as you get older," said Nichols," but it doesn't come any easier. I don't putt as well as I used to and you could say it is due to nerves, but my all-around play is better."

Nichols closed with a three-under 69 and had a 72-hole score of 13 under par 275. That was good enough for a one-stroke victory over the veteran Littler, who had a finishing 66 on his home course, and Rod Curl, the likeable Wintu Indian from Redding, Calif., who scrambled to a 70. Second place money was worth $15,725 to Littler and Curl.

Nichols thus becomes the only other champion of 1974 besides Johnny Miller, who didn't play in the Williams event after winning the Crosby National Pro-Am and the Phoenix and Tucson Opens on successive weeks to launch the 1974 tour.

This week the pros move on to Honolulu for the Hawaiian Open and Nichols will be there along with Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Miller. Nichols who hadn't planned on playing all the events on the winter schedule, changed his mind in a hurry after winning the Williams.

"I'll play all the others," he said, meaning he'll go to Palm Springs, Calif., for the Desert Classic next week and the Glenn Campbell-Los Angeles open a week later.

Curl, who started the final round here tied for the lead with Nichols, played well on the front nine at Torrey Pines on a summer-like day that attracted 25,000 fans and pushed the week's total to 82,000.

But his game started to come apart on the backside. He took a bogey on the 10th when he made a bad wedge shot and missed a five foot putt, recovered with birds at 13 and 15, but bogied the par-four 17th and missed a six-foot putt on 18 that would have tied him with Nichols and set up sudden death.

Cook thinks fuel limit will alter California 500

ONTARIO — Rules limiting the amount of fuel U.S. Auto Club championship cars may burn this year go into effect with the California 500 March 10.

"It's going to alter the strategy of the California 500 drastically," said Speedway General Manager Jim Cook.

"Before the cars could go the distance by averaging 1.4 miles per gallon. Now they'll have to get 1.8 miles a gallon to make it."

An allocation formula established by USAC restricts the amount of Methanol each car may use during practice, qualifying and race activity.

The Cal 500 kicks off the nine-event 1974 championship car schedule.

At Ontario, the first of three 500-milers this year, the cars will be limited to 200 gallons each for practice, 30 for time trials, 57 for the 100-mile qualifying races and 280 for the race.

"We feel," added Cook, "This will make the race more competitive than it has ever been before. There will be less engine strain on the engines. That . . . . should keep more cars running longer."

Now in its fifth year here, the Cal 500 has previously been held on Labor Day weekend.

USAC's allocation standards will reduce total fuel consumption for the nine events by approximately 30 per cent, cutting the fuel used at Ontario from 154,740 to 108,800 gallons.

Kings feel future schedule helps their playoff chances

INGLEWOOD, Calif (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, who won only five games in the first two months of the season, are positive they're going to make the playoffs for the first time in five seasons.

The reason: The schedule.

Although they lost 5-3 to the Rangers at New York Sunday night, the Kings find themselves in fifth place and only two points behind fourth-place Atlanta in the NHL West.

The Kings have 30 games left and 19 of them are at home. In March, they're at home 11 times and on the road only twice.

Bob Berry will be Los Angeles' lone representative in the NHL All-Star game at Chicago Tuesday.

Juha Widing scored two goals and Dan Maloney one in the Kings' first loss in four games against the Rangers this season.

For Widing, the highest scoring King in history, the goals were his 14th and 15th of the season.

Ex-King Ted Irvine scored a pair of goals and added an assist for New York, which now has won five games and tied one since Emile Francis returned as coach seven games ago.

"Los Angeles has been playing real good against us this year," said Irvine. "They sit back, something like Chicago, and wait for the break."

The Kings don't play until Thursday night when they host the New York Islanders. They're at home against California Saturday night.

Drag races get underway Friday despite energy crisis

POMONA — Despite the energy crisis, the National Hot Rod Association's 1974 drag racing season of national events will open on a healthy note Friday.

Prize money of $281,700 has been posted for the 14th Annual Winternationals, the season's tradition curtain raiser at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here.

The purse is part of more than $2 million that will be awarded in the NHRA's eight national events.

"We view it as a healthy outlook for '74," said NHRA President Wally Parks.

"The energy crisis has caused a great deal of concern in some areas but it hasn't reduced drag racing's appeal as a sport and showcase. More than 50 product lines will be represented among awards sponsors at the Winternationals."

In addition to the continued big money offered, no reduction in entries is expected. Some 700 are anticipated, with the biggest share coming from the West Coast.

The Winternationals get under way with a full day of qualifying and class eliminations leading up to the Sunday finals. The finals feature championships in eight separate eleminator categories.

Sanderson out of Boston lineup

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Bruins said Sunday that center Derek Sanderson will be out of action four to six weeks with a broken left foot.

Sanderson suffered the injury Saturday night against the New York Islanders when he stopped a Brian Spencer shot with his skate.

Ashe defeated in Philly

Laver does it again

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — "I think his record against me is about 1,000 to one," said Arthur Ashe. "I think I beat him once in an exhibition. All I know is that when they give out the money at the end of the tournament, it seems his total always has one more zero at the end."

Ashe was referring to Australian Rod Laver who handily defeated him 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the $100,000 U.S. pro Indoor tennis championships before 12,466 at The Spectrum.

The 34-year-old Laver, who has beaten Ashe 16 consecutive times, earned $15,000 for winning the first tournament on the World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour. Ashe, 30, took home $7,000 for finishing second in the 84-player field.

Laver maintained it's a mystery to him how he sustains his mastery over Ashe.

"There's no reason at all,' the red-headed lefthander said. "Anybody can win. We both play a serve and volley game.

"This was the best tennis we've played together. Arthur serves extremely well and I was lucky to get him a lot of his serves. He missed some volleys that hurt him."

Ashe concurred with his opponent.

"Whenever I lose a match,' he said, "it's usually because I miss some volleys and today I did miss some forehand volleys."

Laver, who was seeded sixth, took advantage of Ashe's early problems to break his service in the fourth and sixth games and win the first set easily, 6-1.

Having gained the momentum, Laver also took the second set 6-4 after breaking Ashe's service in the seventh game.

While Ashe, seeded eighth, was struggling with his forehand, Laver was using his forehand and backhand to drive effective passing shots down the lines.

"Laver's a helluva man to play," said Ashe. "It's always tough playing against a lefthander in the early part of the match."

Lakers nip Milwaukee

The game, a crowd pleaser from the outset, was close all the way. The lead changed hands 18 times. The score was tied 13 times. Sixteen times the Lakers led by two points or less. The Bucks led by two points or less 29 times.

The Lakers finally caught Milwaukee for the last time, 89-89, on Price's layin with 4:26 left in the game. The Bucks had scored their 88th and 89 points on Oscar Robertson's layin with 5:14 remaining.

The only points the Bucks scored in the last 5:14 were on Curtis Perry's 22-foot jumper on which he was fouled by Price and made it a three-point play.

That came with just 41 seconds left in the game and the Lakers holding a 97-89 lead.

The Lakers are off until Friday when they host Phoenix.

Sharks begin road trip with 6-3 victory

CHERRY HILL, N..J (UPI) — The Los Angeles Sharks started off their five game eastern road swing with a 6-3 victory Sunday over the Jersey Knights in a World Hockey Association game.

Jersey got two early goals off former teammate Jim McLeod, traded recently to the Sharks, but were unable to hold off the fast skating visitors as Los Angeles scored three first period goals to lead 3-2 after one period.

The teams traded goals in the second period and Jersey seemed to pick up momentum late in the third session.

But a third period goal by Alton White off a deflection from a Hall Willis blue line shot and a late goal on a breakaway by rookie Reg Thomas sealed the Knights' fate.

A brawl at the conclusion of the first period between the Knights' Kevin Morrison and the Sharks' Jim Neikamp and other shoving matches enlivened the action.

The Knights are now 8-4 since their move from New York.

Aaron sets record straight

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Henry Aaron said Sunday night that the bats and baseballs he uses to surpass Babe Ruth's home run record will definitely be given to the baseball Hall of Fame, and what's more the sport has taken special precautions to assure that the balls are the correct ones.

There had been some controversy last week when Aaron signed a $1 million contract with Magnavox and some sources said the balls and bats used in the recordtying and setting would be given to the electronics firm.

"I want to set the record straight," Aaron said. "Magnavox will be able to use the balls and bats in promotions for two or three years and after that they're my personal possessions and I will send them to Cooperstown."

Aaron also said that there is no way someone could present an official national league baseball to him and claim it was the one he had hit. National League umpire Bruce Froemming confirmed that the umpires are given special baseballs to use every time Aaron steps to the plate.

"They have special markings on them which show up only under a special light," Froemming said. "The markings are changed so that control can be maintained and an accurate record is kept of each home run ball Aaron hits."

Froemming said the special balls had been used since the time of Aaron's 700th home run last season.

Aaron was in Milwaukee to receive a special "Super Star" award from the Milwaukee baseball writers. A sell-out crowd of more than 900 was in attendance and the [illegible] three standing ovations during the course of the writers 21st annual Diamond Dinner.

Aaron needs only one home run to tie the career record of 714 set by Babe Ruth and he expects to get it sometime in April.

It marked the second time in three years that Ms. Mitchell had won her namesake tourney.

PORT ST. Lucie, Fla. (UPI) — Joe Data sank a 35-foot putt on the 18th hole Sunday to clinch a place in the finals of the $13,000 PGA match play championship.

The 28-year-old assistant pro from Deepwater, N. J. defeated Stan Bryon of West Palm Beach, Fla., one-up in semifinal play Sunday at the St. Lucie Country Club.

Freed leads MSAC alumni to victory

WALNUT — Led by major leaguer Roger Freed, the alumni defeated the varsity 3-2 Sunday in the Fifth Annual Mt. San Antonio College Alumni baseball game sponsored by the MSAC Community Services.

The alumni started in a hurry against varsity hurler Pat Corcoran in the top of the first, as ex-Mounties Jeff Stout and Craig Barnes singled. Freed followed with a booming double to center, scoring Stout and sending Barnes to third. Barnes then tallied as Corcoran uncorked a wild pitch.

After the varsity had gotten one run back in the bottom of the second, the alumni scored what proved to be the winning tally in the top of the third.

Jim Ramos reached first on a walk, swiped second, raced to third on a flyout, and scored on an overthrow.

The varsity scored their final run in the fourth, as Jeff Corkill tripled and scored on an error. They made a couple other challenges to the alumni, but steady pitching and a couple of stellar defensive plays by alumni rightfielder Gus Rubio kept the score at 3-2.

"Broadway Bryon" Jaffee, Coley Smith, Bob Manning, and Dan Drake all hurled scoreless innings for the alumni, while Guy Freeland picked up the win by pitching the third and fourth frames.

Corcoran was the only varsity player with more than one hit, as he collected two of their five safetys. Barnes, a performer on last season's champion USC squad, had a single and a double for the alumni.

Regular season play begins Feb. 5 for MSAC when they travel to Rio Hondo.

Singer honored by Shriners

ANAHEIM — Angels 20-game winner Bill Singer has been selected as the Outstanding Sportsman of 1973 by the Westwood Shrine Club and will be honored at a dinner at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Wednesday, Feb. 13.

Sam Jacoby, president of the Westwood Shrine Club, announced the award on behalf of the officers and board of directors.

"Bill was chosen for best representing the Shrine spirit and credo of 'strong legs run so that weak ones may walk," said Jacoby.

Stu Nahan, sports director of KABC-TV, will emcee the stag dinner, beginning at 7 p.m. There will be no public sale of tickets. More than 800 Westwood Shrine Club members and honored guests are expected to attend.

USC switches grid dates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's football game with Oregon State this year has been switched from Sept. 21 to Oct. 26, Trojan Coach John McKay announced Thursday.

McKay, also the USC athletic director, said the 1975 game with the Beavers has been moved from Corvallis, Ore., to Los Angeles, because the Coliseum has a larger seating capacity.

"By playing in Los Angeles, each team should gross an additional $60,000 per game," McKay said.

This season's USC-Oregon State game was changed so the Beavers could fit a game with Ohio State at Columbus into the Sept. 21 date. USC was originally scheduled to be idle on Oct. 26.

The Trojans' 11-game 1974 schedule includes seven home games, all to be played during the daytime. The Trojans open their season Sept. 11 at Arkansas and finish at home against Notre Dame Nov.

Milton Richman

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — You've heard of guys leaving their fight in the gym or in the dressing room, but when is the last time you ever heard of one leaving it in a TV studio?

Joe Frazier may have left his there last week.

I have the distinct feeling he did.

There are some things in this world you simply can't run away from, one of them being Muhammad Ali's lightning quick left hand and the other his mouth, and it strikes me Joe Frazier is about to find that out tonight when the Madison Square Garden house lights dim, the bell sounds for round one and he's in there all alone with the one man he'd love to grind into little pieces—but can't.

This fight, like most others, figures to be settled on condition.

Physically, there isn't a lot to choose between the 32-year-old Ali and the 30-year-old Frazier. Both have worked slavishly to get themselves back to where they were at 25 and have succeeded to a miraculous degree within the limitations of nature.

Emotionally, though, it's an entirely different story.

Muhammad Ali's head is on straight. He knows precisely what he has to do and the best way to do it. With Joe Frazier it's something else again.

The feeling I get is that he still hasn't swept that terrible beating he took from George Foreman out of his mind. The feeling I get is he was further embarrassed by what happened when he allowed Ali to goad him into Wednesday's episode in that television studio.

The feeling I also get is that Muhammad Ali will be about as superior to Joe Frazier tonight as Miami was to Minnesota in the Super Bowl two weeks back, and that it'll be all over by the sixth round, maybe earlier, with Frazier's handlers huddling anxiously over him and the referee holding Ali's hand aloft.

Kidding with Ali a few days ago, Frazier asked him whether he learned anything by looking at the film of their first fight three years ago.

Ali didn't answer directly, but the fact is he has learned a great many things about Frazier.

He learned Smoking Joe doesn't always smoke. For all his aggressiveness, Frazier goes into leg-weary "slumps" along the way. Along with that, he's even easier to hit than Ali imagined and then one other thing—a little detail which could turn out to be the key in tonight's contest—Joe Frazier is, so naturally aggressive, he's always going forward that he doesn't know how to move back!

Had he been able to do so, had he been capable of covering up and backpedaling, he might've lasted longer with George Foreman.

Getting back to Wednesday's brawl in the studio, though, one good laugh did come out of it, I think, in light of those $5,000 fines plastered upon both Ali and Frazier by Edwin B. Dooley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

One of the reasons for the fines, Dooley explained with a perfectly straight face, was because the two fighters "demeaned the sport of boxing."

Now, I ask you, how could anyone possibly demean boxing?

Something else puzzles me, too. Virtually everyone who witnessed the Wednesday flare-up between Ali and Frazier agreed it was no phony, it was authentic enough so that either one of the fighters could have broken a vertebra in his back while falling off the wooden platform they started on.

Only those who weren't there insisted it was a put-up job. They didn't see it, but somehow they knew it was contrived.

What these skeptics really show is that they don't know Joe Frazier. Muhammad Ali will do anything for a prank, a gag or a gimmick. Joe Frazier won't. He'd never premeditatedly be a part of any stunt like Wednesday's—first because it goes against his basic thinking and second because he doesn't have the imaginativeness to think up something like that on impulse.

That's why he was embarrassed about the whole thing later. That's why he apologized, and that's why I think it did something to his confidence.

All those who are so sure Joe Frazier was "play acting" Wednesday remind me of that Aesop's fable in which an entertainer goes up on a stage and imitates the squeal of a pig so faithfully that the audience applauds him enthusiastically.

Then an amateur walks up and offers a similar performance but his showing is deemed so poor, the crowd hoots him off the stage. Before leaving though, he pulls his coat open and shows he has a real pig under it which he has been pinching.

Aesop said the moral of all this is that critics are not always to be depended upon. Another way of saying that is sometimes people don't even recognize the truth when it's right there in front of them.

Cale, Junior feel it will be big year

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough and Junior Johnson think 1974 is going to be a big year for them.

The driver-owner team may be right, too.

Runner-up to Benny Parsons in the NASCAR Grand National point standings last year, Yarborough won the season's stock car inaugural Saturday— the rain-delayed Winston Western 500.

Scoring his first victory ever in a road race, the 34-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran won by 3.06 seconds over Mr. Stock Car Racing himself, Richard Petty.

"I could see Richard in my mirror," said Yarborough. "But I didn't know whether to worry more about him or running out of gas.

"I knew I could run fast enough to keep ahead of him but that meant using up fuel faster and I might have run out. But things worked out."

Driving Junior Johnson's 1973 Chevrolet, Yarborough did run out of gas right after the finish and had to be pushed into the winner's circle.

Saturday's race was only 335 miles. The event was halted by rain the previous weekend after 165 miles.

Yarborough won first prize money of $15,425 in the $103,000 race.

Following Petty, of Randleman, N.C., across the finish line, in order, were David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C.; Parsons, Ellerbe, N.C., and Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala.

The next event on the Grand National schedule is the Daytona 500 Feb. 17. That race has been cut to 450 miles this year because of the energy crisis.

Ashe defeated in Philly

Laver does it again

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — "I think his record against me is about 1,000 to one," said Arthur Ashe. "I think I beat him once in an exhibition. All I know is that when they give out the money at the end of the tournament, it seems his total always has one more zero at the end."

Ashe was referring to Australian Rod Laver who handily defeated him 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the $100,000 U.S. pro Indoor tennis championships before 12,466 at The Spectrum.

The 34-year-old Laver, who has beaten Ashe 16 consecutive times, earned $15,000 for winning the first tournament on the World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour. Ashe, 30, took home $7,000 for finishing second in the 84-player field.

Laver maintained it's a mystery to him how he sustains his mastery over Ashe.

"There's no reason at all," the red-headed lefthander said. "Anybody can win. We both play a serve and volley game.

"This was the best tennis we've played together. Arthur serves extremely well and I was lucky to get him a lot of his serves. He missed some volleys that hurt him."

Ashe concurred with his opponent.

"Whenever I lose a match," he said, "it's usually because I miss some volleys and today I did miss some forehand volleys."

Laver, who was seeded sixth, took advantage of Ashe's early problems to break his service in the fourth and sixth games and win the first set easily, 6-1.

Having gained the momentum, Laver also took the second set 6-4 after breaking Ashe's service in the seventh game.

While Ashe, seeded eighth, was struggling with his forehand, Laver was using his forehand and backhand to drive effective passing shots down the lines.

"Laver's a helluva man to play," said Ashe. "It's always tough playing against a lefthander in the early part of the match."

Lakers nip Milwaukee

The game, a crowd pleaser from the outset, was close all the way. The lead changed hands 18 times. The score was tied 13 times. Sixteen times the Lakers led by two points or less. The Bucks led by two points or less 29 times.

The Lakers finally caught Milwaukee for the last time, 89-89, on Price's layin with 4:26 left in the game. The Bucks had scored their 88th and 89 points on Oscar Robertson's layin with 5:14 remaining.

The only points the Bucks scored in the last 5:14 were on Curtis Perry's 22-foot jumper on which he was fouled by Price and made it a three-point play.

That came with just 41 seconds left in the game and the Lakers holding a 97-89 lead.

The Lakers are off until Friday when they host Phoenix.

Sharks begin road trip with 6-3 victory

CHERRY HILL, N..J (UPI) — The Los Angeles Sharks started off their five game eastern road swing with a 6-3 victory Sunday over the Jersey Knights in a World Hockey Association game.

Jersey got two early goals off former teammate Jim McLeod, traded recently to the Sharks, but were unable to hold off the fast skating visitors as Los Angeles scored three first period goals to lead 3-2 after one period.

The teams traded goals in the second period and Jersey seemed to pick up momentum late in the third session.

But a third period goal by Alton White off a deflection from a Hall Willis blue line shot and a late goal on a breakaway by rookie Reg Thomas sealed the Knights' fate.

A brawl at the conclusion of the first period between the Knights' Kevin Morrison and the Sharks' Jim Neikamp and other shoving matches enlivened the action.

The Knights are now 8-4 since their move from New York.

Equipment will go to Hall

Aaron sets record straight

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Henry Aaron said Sunday night that the bats and baseballs he uses to surpass Babe Ruth's home run record will definitely be given to the baseball Hall of Fame, and what's more the sport has taken special precautions to assure that the balls are the correct ones.

There had been some controversy last week when Aaron signed a $1 million contract with Magnavox and some sources said the balls and bats used in the recordtying and setting would be given to the electronics firm.

"I want to set the record straight," Aaron said. "Magnavox will be able to use the balls and bats in promotions for two or three years and after that they're my personal possessions and I will send them to Cooperstown."

Aaron also said that there is no way someone could present an official national league baseball to him and claim it was the one he had hit. National League umpire Bruce Froemming confirmed that the umpires are given special baseballs to use every time Aaron steps to the plate.

"They have special markings on them which show up only under a special light," Froemming said. "The markings are changed so that control can be maintained and an accurate record is kept of each home run ball Aaron hits."

Froemming said the special balls had been used since the time of Aaron's 700th home run last season.

Aaron was in Milwaukee to receive a special "Super Star" award from the Milwaukee baseball writers. A sell-out crowd of more than 900 was in attendance and the [illegible] three standing ovations during the course of the writers' 21st annual Diamond Dinner.

Aaron needs only one home run to tie the career record of 714 set by Babe Ruth and he expects to get it sometime in April.

It marked the second time in three years that Ms. Mitchell had won her namesake tourney.

PORT ST. Lucie. Fla. (UPI) — Joe Data sank a 35-foot putt on the 18th hole Sunday to clinch a place in the finals of the $13,000 PGA match play championship.

The 28-year-old assistant pro from Deepwater, N. J. defeated Stan Bryon of West Palm Beach, Fla., one-up in semifinal play Sunday at the St. Lucie Country Club.

Data will square off against Dennis Tiziani in Monday's 36-hole final match for the $1,900 first prize money.

Tisiani, of Madison, Wis., beat Dennis Bradley, of Pittsford, N. P., one-up during the semifinals of the five-day tourney.

THE INTERNATIONAL Lawn Tennis Federation has extended the olive branch to the new World Team Tennis league and the new league's president says peace may be in the offing.

Freed leads MSAC alumni to victory

WALNUT — Led by major leaguer Roger Freed, the alumni defeated the varsity 3-2 Sunday in the Fifth Annual Mt. San Antonio College Alumni baseball game sponsored by the MSAC Community Services.

The alumni started in a hurry against varsity hurler Pat Corcoran in the top of the first, as ex-Mounties Jeff Stout and Craig Barnes singled. Freed followed with a booming double to center, scoring Stout and sending Barnes to third. Barnes then tallied as Corcoran uncorked a wild pitch.

After the varsity had gotten one run back in the bottom of the second, the alumni scored what proved to be the winning tally in the top of the third.

Jim Ramos reached first on a walk, swiped second, raced to third on a flyout, and scored on an overthrow.

The varsity scored their final run in the fourth, as Jeff Corkill tripled and scored on an error. They made a couple other challenges to the alumni, but steady pitching and a couple of stellar defensive plays by alumni rightfielder Gus Rubio kept the score at 3-2.

"Broadway Bryon" Jaffee, Coley Smith, Bob Manning, and Dan Drake all hurled scoreless innings for the alumni, while Guy Freeland picked up the win by pitching the third and fourth frames.

Corcoran was the only varsity player with more than one hit, as he collected two of their five safetys. Barnes, a performer on last season's champion USC squad, had a single and a double for the alumni.

Regular season play begins Feb. 5 for MSAC when they travel to Rio Hondo.

USC switches grid dates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's football game with Oregon State this year has been switched from Sept. 21 to Oct. 26, Trojan Coach John McKay announced Thursday.

McKay, also the USC athletic director, said the 1975 game with the Beavers has been moved from Corvallis, Ore., to Los Angeles, because the Coliseum has a larger seating capacity.

"By playing in Los Angeles, each team should gross an additional $60,000 per game," McKay said.

This season's USC-Oregon State game was changed so the Beavers could fit a game with Ohio State at Columbus into the Sept. 21 date. USC was originally scheduled to be idle on Oct. 26.

The Trojans' 11-game 1974 schedule includes seven home games, all to be played during the daytime. The Trojans open their season Sept. 11 at Arkansas and finish at home against Notre Dame Nov.

Milton Richman

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — You've heard of guys leaving their fight in the gym or in the dressing room, but when is the last time you ever heard of one leaving it in a TV studio?

Joe Frazier may have left his there last week.

I have the distinct feeling he did.

There are some things in this world you simply can't run away from, one of them being Muhammad Ali's lightning quick left hand and the other his mouth, and it strikes me Joe Frazier is about to find that out tonight when the Madison Square Garden house lights dim, the bell sounds for round one and he's in there all alone with the one man he'd love to grind into little pieces—but can't.

This fight, like most others, figures to be settled on condition.

Physically, there isn't a lot to choose between the 32-year-old Ali and the 30-year-old Frazier. Both have worked slavishly to get themselves back to where they were at 25 and have succeeded to a miraculous degree within the limitations of nature.

Emotionally, though, it's an entirely different story.

Muhammad Ali's head is on straight. He knows precisely what he has to do and the best way to do it. With Joe Frazier it's something else again.

The feeling I get is that he still hasn't swept that terrible beating he took from George Foreman out of his mind. The feeling I get is he was further embarrassed by what happened when he allowed Ali to goad him into Wednesday's episode in that television studio.

The feeling I also get is that Muhammad Ali will be about as superior to Joe Frazier tonight as Miami was to Minnesota in the Super Bowl two weeks back, and that it'll be all over by the sixth round, maybe earlier, with Frazier's handlers huddling anxiously over him and the referee holding Ali's hand aloft.

Kidding with Ali a few days ago, Frazier asked him whether he learned anything by looking at the film of their first fight three years ago.

Ali didn't answer directly, but the fact is he has learned a great many things about Frazier.

He learned Smoking Joe doesn't always smoke. For all his aggressiveness, Frazier goes into leg-weary "slumps" along the way. Along with that, he's even easier to hit than Ali imagined and then one other thing—a little detail which could turn out to be the key in tonight's contest—Joe Frazier is, so naturally aggressive, he's always going forward that he doesn't know how to move back!

Had he been able to do so, had he been capable of covering up and backpedaling, he might've lasted longer with George Foreman.

Getting back to Wednesday's brawl in the studio, though, one good laugh did come out of it, I think, in light of those $5,000 fines plastered upon both Ali and Frazier by Edwin B. Dooley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

One of the reasons for the fines, Dooley explained with a perfectly straight face, was because the two fighters "demeaned the sport of boxing."

Now, I ask you, how could anyone possibly demean boxing?

Something else puzzles me, too. Virtually everyone who witnessed the Wednesday flare-up between Ali and Frazier agreed it was no phony, it was authentic enough so that either one of the fighters could have broken a vertebra in his back while falling off the wooden platform they started on.

Only those who weren't there insisted it was a put-up job. They didn't see it, but somehow they knew it was contrived.

What these skeptics really show is that they don't know Joe Frazier. Muhammad Ali will do anything for a prank, a gag or a gimmick. Joe Frazier won't. He'd never premeditatedly be a part of any stunt like Wednesday's—first because it goes against his basic thinking and second because he doesn't have the imaginativeness to think up something like that on impulse.

That's why he was embarrassed about the whole thing later. That's why he apologized, and that's why I think it did something to his confidence.

All those who are so sure Joe Frazier was "play acting" Wednesday remind me of that Aesop's fable in which an entertainer goes up on a stage and imitates the squeal of a pig so faithfully that the audience applauds him enthusiastically.

Then an amateur walks up and offers a similar performance but his showing is deemed so poor, the crowd hoots him off the stage. Before leaving though, he pulls his coat open and shows he has a real pig under it which he has been pinching.

Aesop said the moral of all this is that critics are not always to be depended upon. Another way of saying that is sometimes people don't even recognize the truth when it's right there in front of them.

Cale, Junior feel it will be big year

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough and Junior Johnson think 1974 is going to be a big year for them.

The driver-owner team may be right, too.

Runner-up to Benny Parsons in the NASCAR Grand National point standings last year, Yarborough won the season's stock car inaugural Saturday— the rain-delayed Winston Western 500.

Scoring his first victory ever in a road race, the 34-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran won by 3.06 seconds over Mr. Stock Car Racing himself, Richard Petty.

"I could see Richard in my mirror," said Yarborough. "But I didn't know whether to worry more about him or running out of gas.

"I knew I could run fast enough to keep ahead of him but that meant using up fuel faster and I might have run out. But things worked out."

Driving Junior Johnson's 1973 Chevrolet, Yarborough did run out of gas right after the finish and had to be pushed into the winner's circle.

Saturday's race was only 335 miles. The event was halted by rain the previous weekend after 165 miles.

Yarborough won first prize money of $15,425 in the $103,000 race.

Following Petty, of Randleman, N.C., across the finish line, in order, were David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C.; Parsons, Ellerbe, N.C., and Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala.

The next event on the Grand National schedule is the Daytona 500 Feb. 17. That race has been cut to 450 miles this year because of the energy crisis.

OLD BUDDIES—Even though his Notre Dame team suffered a 94-75 loss to UCLA, Irish coach Digger Phelps (R) has a friendly and smiling pat for UCLA's John Wooden after Saturday's battle.

Johnson the difference

Irish saw new team

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — The UCLA team that beat Notre Dame's fighting Irish Saturday night was not the same team the Irish defeated a week earlier, Coach Digger Phelps said Sunday.

"Notre Dame's trouble was that UCLA made some changes in the lineup," Phelps said.

Those changes, Phelps said, paced the Bruins to a 94-75 victory over the visiting Irish, who a week earlier had ended the Bruins' 88-game win skein with a one-point win at South Bend.

"They put Marques Johnson in at the one forward and don't let anybody tell you he's not a great player," Phelps said of Saturday night's loss. "Then they moved Dave Meyer to guard on the left side and he got the ball to (Bill) Walton very well. They just had super team balance and Walton and (Keith) Wilkes played a great game and they just beat us.'

Phelps said the Bruins had too much size for the smaller Irish.

Johnson, a 17-year-old freshman and the first freshman starter for UCLA in Coach John Wooden's career with the Bruins, was the key to the Bruin victory, Phelps said.

"Johnson simply gave them added strength on the boards," the Irish coach said.

"Wooden made these changes and it made them a much better team than we played a week ago," he said. They certainly adjusted very well to the changes in only one week and it's still UCLA's basketball."

But Phelps still took pride in the previous week's 71-70 win over the Bruins, a win which gave the Irish a short-lived view from college basketball's top spot.

"We've got nothing to be ashamed of, considering what we had two years ago and we've made great progress in two years," Phelps said.

"They'll never be able to take away from us what we did last week and it's been a great week for us. Our objective is still the same —to get an NCAA bid—and now we've got to get ready for Marquette," he said.

The Irish host 6th ranked Marquette Tuesday night.

Ducks take Pac-8 lead after victory

By United Press International

Betcha' can't name the team leading the Pacific Eight basketball team race today.

Even though UCLA probably regained the number one spot among the nation's college cage powers by thumping Notre Dame 94-75 Saturday night, Oregon leads the Pac-8 with a 5-0 record after taking Oregon State 67-61 Saturday afternoon in a wild contest that saw 57 fouls called, including two technicals on the Duck bench.

Oregon is no UCLA, but it is no fluke, either. Stu Jackson's three-point play with 26 seconds to go iced the Ducks' 11th win against five setbacks. Soph sensation Ron Lee led the Ducks with 20 points.

UCLA, which by the way is 40 in the Pac-8, led a great night for Coast quintets with its win as inspired Bill Walton poured in 32 points and 20 were added by Keith Wilkes, who thus atoned for the bad day he had in the one-point loss to Notre Dame that cost the Bruins their 88-game win streak and their No. 1 rating.

USC, 11th rated going into Saturday's action, might crack the top 10 with its 70-60 win at Fordham as Gus Williams led Troy with 16.

And ninth-rated Long Beach State was awesome in a 106-71 win over Northern Illinois as muscular Leonard Gray hooped 10 of 14 shots, and 22 points, while Fresno State ran its record to 12-3 with a 77-66 victory over Denver. Brilliant Bulldog forward Charles Bailey meshed 23 in that one.

Only Nevada Las Vegas sounded a clunker for Coast cage filberts as the Rebels were upset by old nemesis Houston 75-72. Ricky Sober registered 19 for Vegas, which saw its hope for national recognition dashed and its record skid to 12-4.

The Pac-8 got two wins as Washington was too tall for Seattle in a surprisingly easy 88-64 affair and Rickie Hawthorne hit the jumper at the buzzer to give Cal the 62-60 nod over San Jose State.

The Pac-8 gets back to fratricidal action this weekend with Cal at Stanford Friday while Oregon meets Oregon State in a Portland game that doesn't count in the standings. It's Washington State-Washington in the Saturday afternoon tiff then USC is at UCLA Saturday night.

Cowboys expected to pick 'Too Tall' to open pro draft

DALLAS (UPI) — Owning the No. 1 pick in the NFL player draft Tuesday for the first time in their history, the Dallas Cowboys are expected to select Tennessee State's 6-8, 260-pound defensive lineman, Ed "Too Tall" Jones.

The Cowboys will open the drafting at 9 a.m. CDT Tuesday thanks to a trade last year which sent defensive lineman Tody Smith and receiver Billy Parks to Houston in exchange for the Oilers' No. 1 and No. 3 draft picks.

The Oilers' No. 1 draft pick turned out to be the one to have since Houston finished with the worst NFL record for the second year in a row.

Although no Cowboy officials have said publicly the team would take Jones, they have been hinting at it for weeks and last week the club sent safety Cornell Green to Tennessee State for an appreciation dinner.

No other pro teams sent a representative.

Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' player personnel chief, has said Jones has the ability to "dominate a game."

The Cowboys, rather than drafting by need, have historically gone with the "best athlete" theory and it has worked to the extent that Dallas has built its team almost totally from drafting and the signing of free agents.

"We've always drafted the best athlete available, regardless of position," said Dallas president and general manager Tex Schramm. "That will hold true this year, with one notable addition.

"Since we have the first choice we will select the player we think has the best chance of any eligible player to become a superstar in the NFL. We've never had that luxury before."

Speculation had centered on a trade involving Dallas quarterback Craig Morton before the drafting day, but Schramm said it appeared unlikely that would happen. Morton had asked to be traded early last season.

Dallas will be one of six teams to have two first-round picks. Chicago, Baltimore, San Francisco, Minnesota and San Diego will also draft twice in first round.

Evert whips Billy Jean in Mission Viejo finals

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (UPI) — Nineteen-year-old Chris Evert showed what a difference a week makes on the women's pro tennis trail Sunday.

The attractive miss from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was beaten in the finals of the first Virginia Slims event of the year at San Francisco by Billie Jean King 7-6, 6-2.

A week later, Miss Evert reversed the defeat by turning back Mrs. King 6-3, 6-1 in 55 minutes.

The Evert-King score now reads: Chris five, Billie Jean four.

"I think it was more of what Billie Jean did than what I did that made the difference," Miss Evert said. "She made several mistakes this time that she didn't makemake up north."

"I don't think Billie Jean had a good day. She has so many things on her mind concerning women's tennis."

Mrs. King, 30, agreed.

"My mistaks weren't forced errors," she offered. "They were just my errors. I missed so many easy shots.

"I knew what I had to do but I just couldn't do them. It was just one of those weeks for me."

The victory was worth $10,000 and a $6,000 sports car for Miss Evert. However, she was on the losing team in the doubles finals with Mrs. King, bowing to unseeded Australians Lesley Hunt and Kerry Harris 7-6, 6-4.

SAL chasers now face elimination

Claremont (15-4, 3-3) is presently riding on a three-game losing streak after falling to Ganesha, Garey and Montclair. And Chino, which entered league play three weeks ago with a 9-1 seasonal record, is just coming off a 45-43 overtime loss to Pomona.

But even though the two teams are just about out of the running for the league crown, it still is the big game Tuesday in the SAL.

Other games Tuesday afternoon include Upland at Montclair, Ganesha at Garey and Damien at Pomona. All varsity games begin at 4:45 p.m., just after the junior varsity contests.

With Ganesha and Montclair running away like they are from the rest of the pack, the big race could be for third place and a possible berth in the post-season CIF playoffs.

That's why the Claremont-Chino matchup is so important Tuesday.

Chino has been led by the high-scoring duo of forward Tim Smith and guard Bob Hairston. Smith is presently the sixth leading scorer in the SAL with an 18.3 average, while Hairston is eighth in the the league with a 16.5 average.

There isn't a single Claremont player in the top ten of the SAL scoring race, but center Bruce Abraham is still leading the Wolves with his 13.8 average.

The two teams met once earlier this year in the Chino Tournament when Claremont survived three overtimes before emerging with a 74-72 victory over the Cowboys. That was Chino's only loss in non league play.

What also should be an interesting matchup is the Upland-Montclair confrontation.

Not only are these two West End clubs fierce rivals, but Upland needs a victory in order to stay alive for a CIF berth and Montclair needs the win in order to stay close to Ganesha in the title chase.

Upland is paced by the SAL's leading scorer, forward Curt Oldenkamp. The 6-2 forward is averaging 24 points per game. He'll be aided by teammate Stu DuVall, who is the fourth-leading scorer in the league. The Highlanders' 6-5 center is averaging 19.2 points per game.

Montclair has a scoring weapon of its own.

Senior center Mark Gosswiller (6-6) has been the guiding force for the Cavaliers so far this season, averaging 21.2 points per game in league (third best) and better than 20 points per game on the season.

Tuesday will be the first meeting between these two clubs this season.

The tall and experienced Ganesha five shouldn't have too rough a time with the young and inexperienced Garey quintet.

If it was any other team, Ganesha might get caught looking ahead to next Friday's contest against Montclair. But since the Giants are facing the defending league champion Vikings, it should be a different story.

You see, the Giants have a few scores to settle.

Garey defeated Ganesha three times last year, which accounted for half of the Giants' season losses. Two of those three Giant losses came in league play.

All-CIF center Cleve Porter, the league's second-leading scorer with a 22.7 average, is the key figure in the Giants' lineup. But the presence of forward Broderick Hunter and guard Earl Wilson make the Giants a triple threat. Wilson has been unbelievable in league play, averaging 18.2 points per outing to place him as the seventh-leading scorer in the SAL.

Garey will be paced by sophomore forward Gary Carpenter, averaging 15.8 points per league game, junior forward Delbert McDonald (14.5) and junior guard Billy Evans (15.0).

Pomona as impressive in its slow-down tactics against Chino over the weekend, but the Red Devils probably won't need them Tuesday.

Coach Ed Taylor's Devils face a smaller Damien five, considered one of the best outside shooting clubs in the league.

Pro athletes work for Superstar title

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — Twenty-four sports superstars swam, played golf, lifted weights and slugged baseballs today for the sake of $82,000 in prize money and a little off-season exercise.

The annual superstar contest began its second year in this west coast Florida resort town with two days of semi-final competition.

Included in the list of events are bowling, the 100-yard dash, the half-mile run, bicyclig and an obstacle race course, but the athletes can compete in only seven of the 10 events, excluding the sport in which they make their living.

As a result, baseball's Tug McGraw will be perfecting his breast stroke; tennis star Arthur Ashe could be swinging a baseball bat and skier Jean Claude Killy may be racing around a dirt track.

The 24 pros were divided into two 12-man groups. The top three in each group will enter the finals next month to compete against six semifinalists from last August's competition. The final victory purse totals $122,000.

Also from the baseball world are Pete Rose, Jim Palmer, Reggie Jackson, Brooks Robinson and Bobby Bonds. Stan Smith and Rod Laver will shelve their tennis rackets to join the play.

Rodeo performer Larry Mahan, soccer player Kyle Rote Jr., race car drivers Bobby Allison, Craig Breedlove and Jody Scheckter, boxers Bob Foster and Jerry Quarry, wrestler Dan Gable, track star Bill Toomey and football players Carl Eller, Franco Harris, O. J. Simpson, Roger Staubach, Paul Warfield and Dick Anderson are also on the lists.

The six winners of this week's semifinals will compete against trackman Bob Seagren, basketball players John Havlicek and Jim McMillian, ice skater Art Schenk, skier Karl Schranz and hockey player Yvan Cournoyer.

Seagren was the big money winner last year.

Pierce wins race a day at Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Don Pierce has 24 wins in the first 24 days of Santa Anita and seven of them are stakes victories.

"I had so much horse under me that I knew I could go any time with him," said Pierce following his five-length triumph aboard Triangular in the $55,500 San Marcos Handicap Sunday.

"Usually he just lopes along. But today he really took hold of the bit."

The vastly improved 7-year-old gelding beat 5-2 favorite Big Spruce convincingly in the mile and one-quarter turf event to demonstrate he's a strong threat in upcoming major grass stakes this year.

"I wanted to stay with Big Spruce," added Pierce. "I knew that with any kind of fast pace there would be no horse that could catch him when he tired."

Kentuckian was third, nosing out Captain Cee Jay.

Purchased last December from the Hobeau Farm of Jack Freyfus by Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Taylor of Ellensburg, Wash., Triangular was clocked in 2:04 4-5 and paid $9.40 to win.

Triangular's third win in his last four starts was worth $33,000 to the Taylors.

Pension benefits cushion ousted state legislators

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The bitterness of political defeat and forced retirement will be sweetened for legislators this year by special lucrative pension benefits linked with reapportionment.

Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed state budget contains almost $500,000 in retirement funds for lawmakers for the coming year, fattend from previous years, in part, because of "projected increases in retirement resulting from reapportionment."

A number of legislators are expected to quit rather than run in new districts drawn by the state Supreme Court. Others are predicted to lose their reelection bids because they will be running in unfamiliar territory. And some lawmakers are giving up their seats to run for higher office.

Senate Republican leader Fred W. Marler Jr. of Redding is one of those expected to quit. Six-term Assemblyman Harvey Johnson, D-El Monte, also has said he will retire rather than face a primary battle against freshman Assemblyman Joseph P. Montoya, D-La Puente.

The legislators' retirement system, supported primarily with taxpayers' funds, basically allows generous benefits at age 60 with four years service as a lawmaker or at any age with 15 years of service.

For example, from Sen. Stephen P. Teale, D-Rail Road Flat, retired in 1972 after 20 years service. He receives a pension of $14,148, only $41 a month less than the top salary be received for his legislative duties.

A special clause was written into the retirement law in 1971 to provide unusual benefits in reapportionment years. The provision requires a contribution of 8 per cent of a legislator's annual salary.

If a lawmaker resigns or loses his seat during a year in which his district is redrawn, he can receive a pension immediately—regardless of age —if he has served four years.

When the clause was enacted, it applied to lawmakers elected before 1970—all those holding office at the time. It does not include legislators elected since then. But that feature is expected to be updated this year.

Sen. Arlen Gregorio, D-San Mateo, is critical of special retirement benefits granted solely because of reapportionment.

"It's a terrible rationale," he said in an interview. "I don't see any justification at all for it soley because of reapportinment."

In 1972, legislators also voted to boost the retirement credit they will receive for serving during 1973 and 1974 as part of a legislative pay raise bill.

And lawmakers who win reelection this year can also gain the special reapportionment pension benefits granted to those who quit. If those who are reelected make contributions at the 8 per cent rate, they will be entitled to the same early and immediate pension benefits.

2 students save drowning child

By JACK BURSON
P-B Staff Writer

CLAREMONT — A 2-year-old boy, found nearly drowned at the bottom of a swimming pool here, was revived by a student nurse Sunday morning.

Police credit the young woman, Nan Olsen, 20, Los Angeles, and her companion, Mark Mahan, 20, 690 W. San Jose Ave., with saving the life of Carrie L. Reese.

Officer Gus Kitterle gave this account:

Carrie and his 3-year-old brother. Kevin, wandered away from their home at 650 W. San Jose Ave. to the apartment buildings nearby at 690 W. San Jose. Somehow, they got through a gate to the pool. There is a fence around the pool, which is located at the rear of the apartment buildings.

Carrie either jumped or fell in and his brother ran toward the front of the buildings in search of help. He was noticed by Mahan, a resident in the process of moving out. He and several other young persons were loading furniture when they saw the child.

They said Kevin pointed towards the pool, saying "Brother, brother," and Mahan and the others dropped what they were doing and ran towards the pool.

Mahan vaulted the fence and saw Carrie lying at the bottom of the pool. The young man dived in and retrieved him from about five feet of water.

Mahan tried mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in an effort to revive the victim, but he wasn't succeeding. At that point, Miss Olsen arrived and took over. She managed to restore Carrie's breathing.

Firemen reached the scene, gave the boy oxygen and he was taken to Pomona Valley Community Hospital for further treatment. He was admitted to the pediatrics ward and was reported in satisfactory condition there today.

Kitterle said he believes that if the victim had been in the pool one more minute, he would not have survived.

"His eyes were buldging out and he had turned blue when they got him out," the policeman said.

Israelis leave Egyptian soil as pullback begins

AVALANCHE VICTIMS

Rescue workers prepared to mount a snow vehicle Sunday in a storm to search for two girls buried in an avalanche near North Bend, Wash. Rescue operations were conducted through the night under lights and flares but there is little hope for the girls, Jean D. Kisman, 10 of Seattle and Linda D. Angell, 13, of Renton, Wash. Rescuers said the snow was wet and it was unlikely there are any air holes.

Move opens way home to trapped Arabs

By United Press International

Cheering Israeli soldiers handed over their control of one-third of the west bank of the Suez Canal today to United Nations forces, lifting the siege of Suez City and freeing the encircled Egyptian 3rd Army in the Sinai.

A force of 600 U.N. troops in blue helmets and armed only with black Finnish Valmett automatic rifles immediately moved into the vacated positions. Egyptian forces will take over at later in the day, Finnish Col. Reino K. Raitasaari, commander of UN forces in the area, said.

UPI Correspondent Richard C. Gross reported from Suez City that wisps of black smoke curled into the blue sky from dozens of locations as the Israelis burned what they could not take with them. The withdrawing Israelis previously blew up Egyptian missile sites.

The chief of staff, Lt. Gen. David Elazar, denied earlier that Israeli was bound by the Suez front disengagement agreement to leave Egyptian military installations untouched, although he said civilian property would not be damaged.

Israel and Syria, which have yet to agree to separate their forces, reported tank and artillery battles along the tense Golan Heights truce lines. Israel reported no casualties, but Syria said 40 Israelis were killed or wounded.

Military sources in Tel Aviv said the Israeli withdrawal would be followed later in the day by a thinning out of Egyptian forces along the East Bank of the 102-mile-long waterway.

Israeli halftracks, armored personnel carriers, jeeps, trucks and buses all crowded with helmeted Israelis jammed the Cairo-Suez road in the first military withdrawal carried out by the Jewish state since it surrendered the Sinai in 1957.

The UN forces formally took control of the highway at midday following a dawn transfer of the Gulf of Suez port of Adabiya, Israel's southernmost point of occupation. The Israelis also handed over their cease-fire line position at Kilometer 101 of the highway.

"We held a short parade formation in the presence of the Swedish U.N. troops who were rather curious about it, as well as our friends, the Egyptians, on the other side," said Lt. Col. David, commander of the Israeli truce line post.

"Then we pulled the flag down, folded it up and, with a last salute, we said a nice goodbye and packed up," he told a radio interviewer.

Brown Jr. declares his candidacy for governor

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Pledging a "new spirit of activism" and no new taxes immediately, Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. today announced his candidacy for governor, an office his father held for eight years.

"With proper planning, California will again have blue skies, an educational system second to none and a prosperous economy," the 35-year-old Democrat declared.

Brown promised no new taxes in the first year if he is elected but added there would be some shifting of programs with heavy emphasis on education.

"We can live within the present tax rate," he said.

Brown also stressed the need for the state to regain control of its own oil.

"California should take out the oil and allocate it to the various utility companies to prevent brownouts and blackouts," he said.

Brown, who as secretary of state had built a reputation as a tough enforcer of campaign finance reporting laws, announced plans to follow in the footsteps of his father at news conferences called for San Diego, Los Angeles and San Francisco.

At the campaign kickoff, Brown said in the next few months he intends to "outline programs that will create a new spirit of activism and hope in state government."

He said if elected his "first act" would be a reorganization of government with one clearly defined energy and research agency and a separate agency charged with environmental protection and planning.

Brown said he would "restore excellence" to the educational system and put a halt to "irresponsible attacks" on the university of California. He also pledged to intensify job-placement programs for the unemployed and press the fight to "diminish the influence of big money in politics."

Brown, son of former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who lost a third term bid to Ronald Reagan in 1966, became the fifth officially announced candidate for the June 4 Democratic primary gubernatorial nomination.

Mercury drops to 28; ranchers fan citrus crops

Citrus ranchers in La Verne, Upland, Chino and Alta Loma used wind machines this morning to protect their crops from the chilly temperatures that slipped down to 28 degrees in some agricultural areas.

The frosty weather came after sunny and clear weather Sunday that sent many local residents to deserts, mountains and the beaches to enjoy the sunshine.

Earl Adams of Snow Crest Lodge at Mt. Baldy said the resort area did a brisk business Sunday with an estimated 20,000 to 24,000 visitors. Adams said there is plenty of snow beyond the lodge area and a three foot snow pack at the ski lift.

A storm Saturday brought snow, rain and sleet to the San Bernardino Mountains and chains are still required in the Running Springs and Big Bear area.

Oil-squeeze advocate vows some reduction in fuel prices

By United Press International

The architect of the Arab "oil weapon" promised today eventual cuts in fuel prices, but petroleum sources saw no end in sight to the boycott of shipments to the United States.

Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani said today in Tokyo his country favored reductions in recent oil prices hikes in view of their adverse impact on the world economy.

Yamani, the man most responsible for designing the Arab oil cutbacks and boycotts imposed during last October's Middle East War, said, however, the price drops would not take place immediately.

Yamani also warned Japan, France, Britain and West Germany against joining the the United States in a confrontation with oil-producing nations.

He said the interests of the developed countries were best served by bilateral deals helping the oil-rich countries industrialize in return for assured supplies of petroleum.

Yamani isued his warning at a news conference at the Japan Press Club in response to President Nixon's call for a meeting of oil-consuming nations Feb. 1 in Washington.

In Beirut, diplomatic sources predicted Arab oil producers— with Saudi Arabia taking the lead—would turn down an appeal by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat for lifting the fuel embargo of the United States.

Sadat recently called for a "gesture" by the Arab oil states because of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts in working out the Israeli-Egyptian troop pullback accord.

At the same time, a group of Arab and non-Arab oil specialists from producing countries met in Vienna today to stabilize steeply rising oil prices and prevent economic chaos for buyers and sellers of petroleum.

Sources said the first task of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) would be to establish future prices. The current levels were frozen until the end of March.

Lying to FBI

Porter, Nixon re-election unit aide, pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Herbert L. "Bart" Porter, who told the Senate Watergate Committee he had kept quiet for fear he would be accused of "not being a team player," pleaded guilty today to one count of lying to the FBI about the scandal.

U.S. District Judge William B. Bryant let Porter go free without bond and postponed sentencing until the court gets a probation report.

At Bryant's request, a prosecuting attorney described briefly what he would have sought to prove in court had there been a trial. Bryant asked Porter if he had any "quarrel" with the government's statement, and Porter said he did not.

The statement related what Porter had told the Senate committee in June—that Porter told the FBI on July 19, 1972 that he had a conversation with Jeb Stuart Magruder, deputy director of President Nixon's re-election campaign, about plans to use $100,000 to finance protection for campaign speakers.

"There was no such conversation and the government is ready to prove it," the prosecuting attorney said.

The actual use of the money was not mentioned during the brief court proceeding, but it was understood that Porter's conversation with Magruder dealt with $100,000 passed to G. Gordon Liddy to finance the Watergate break-in.

Porter's plea in effect waived a right to jury trial. After getting Porter's assurance that he understood this, Bryant asked him, "Do you understand the penalty?"

"I believe it is five years or $10,000 or both," Porter said.

Bryant then read the charge and asked Porter how he pleaded.

"I plead guilty, your honor," Porter said.

Porter, former scheduling director for the Committee for the Re-election of the President, told the Watergate committee that Magruder had asked him to perjure himself.

Tornadoes, winds lace South, Texas

By United Press International

Tornadoes and high winds knocked down buildings and wires in southern and southwestern states today and left casualties in their wake.

The storms in the South followed a day of turbulent windy weather for the northeastern quadrant of the United States, which brought building damage and some blackouts to states from Michigan to New York, where winds of more than 60 miles per hour were clocked. One death was recorded in New York.

The tornadoes hit over a wide area, one wrapped a mobile home around a tree and overturned another in Pinehill, Tex., injuring a 71-year-old woman. Another touched Collins and moved on to McGehee, in the southwestern part of Arkansas, leaving one person slightly injured and considerable damage to roofs and whole buildings.

At least four persons were injured when tornadoes swept over an area southwest of Jackson, Miss., and damage was reported to other homes in extreme northwest Mississippi.

At least 40 homes and two industrial plants were damaged by high winds in Fayette, northwestern Alabama, before dawn, leaving no reported injuries but damage estimated into the thousands of dollars.

U.S. acts to even heating oil prices, improve gas supply

By WILLIAM E. CLAYTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal government will move this week to end the price fluctuation in home heating oil that has caused some homeowners to pay 50 per cent more than their neighbors, energy chief William E. Simon said today.

Simon also told the Senate subcommittee on Intergovernmental Relations that the home heating oil crisis has been manageable so far —but that the crunch is far from over.

Simon, head of the Federal Energy Office, said the price fluctuations were caused by the difference between cheaper domestic-produced heating oil and the more expensive imported oil. He said new rules to be published in the Federal Register this week would assure each supplier an equitable share of both products.

"This situation is particularly visible in New England, which historically has been dependent on imported products," Simon said. "We in the FEO are deeply concerned when a homeowner pays 50 per cent more for heating oil than does a next door neighbor who uses a different supplier. We consider the situation unfair and intolerable."

The sooner the heating oil situation can be stabilized, the sooner oil producers can shift the emphasis of production back to gasoline, Simon said. The sooner this can be accomplished, the less likely will be the chances of gasoline rationing.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said Sunday rationing may be a reality between April and June unless the Arab boycott ends.

"I don't think there's much doubt about it, unless there are some developments overseas which would indicate that we will get extra crude material which will make it possible for us to draw down on inventories," Jackson said.

Simon was asked by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., whether it seemed unlikely that rationing would be ordered before the end of April.

"In my job, that is an eternity," Simon said. But he said within two weeks the FEO will decide when it can nudge refiners to shift their concentration from heating oil to gasoline.

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, asked Simon if he thought "we are over the heating oil crunch this winter."

"No sir, we are not," Simon said. "Or we would have already started shifting production back from middle distillates to gasoline. We have still got a critical distillate situation."

The heating oil situation has been manageable so far, Simon said, because the weather has been mild; Americans have shown "magnificent response" to conservation requests; the Arab oil embargo leaked for a time; and the government was successful in encouraging refineries to concentrate on heating oil.

Simon earlier had guaranteed most of the nation's utilities they would have enough residual fuel oil to meet 95 per cent of power needs in February.

Both houses of Congress plan to take final action this week on a bill giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the fuel shortage.

Late '73 was bad for oil firm's income

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Standard Oil Company of Ohio (Sohio) announced Sunday a 40 per cent drop in the 1973 fourth quarter earnings compared to the same period in 1972, although earnings for the year were up 24 per cent.

Earnings were $11.6 million compared to $19.3 million before an extraordinary loss of $2.2 million the last period of 1972.

The drop in fourth quarter earnings was attributed to the increased costs of crude oil which were not recovered in petroleum product prices because of Cost of Living Council rules.

However, earnings of $74.1 million for the 1973 year increased 24 per cent over $59.7 million in 1972.

Fourth quarter revenues were $386.6 million, up 7 per cent over the 1972 revenues of $360.2 million. Revenues for the year totaled $1.48 billion, an increase of 8 per cent over $1.37 billion in 1972.

Net income for 1973 was $89.4 million, including extraordinary gains of $15.3 million resulting from sale of certain oil properties and uranium interests. This compares to an extraordinary loss in 1972 of $2.2 million which reduced net income to $57.5 million.

Hawaii begins mandatory gas rationing plan

HONOLULU (UPI) — Hawaii motorists today launch "Gasplan," the nation's first mandatory gasoline rationing program, in an effort to end the panic at the pumps.

The fuel crisis has been harsher in Hawaii than in most other states. Motorists with blankets and coffee have lined up for blocks and spent entire nights waiting for the gas stations to open.

There have been fights, arrests and even shootings at service stations, prices have soared and so have car thefts by thieves who don't bother siphoning the gas.

Details of the rationing plan were announced by acting Gov. George Ariyoshi after officials of Hawaii's five major oil companies emphasized in weekend public hearings that the state's fuel situation will remain tight at least through March.

Starting today, gasoline dealers are selling on an "odd-even" basis — cars with license plates ending in even numbers can get gas on even-numbered calendar days while those with odd numbers have their turn on odd-numbered days.

All gas stations must start selling gas by 6 a.m. or earlier. No gas sales are allowed during the rush hours or on Saturday and Sundays. The plan applies mainly to the most-populated island of Oahu, with the neighbor islands of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai exempt, along with emergency vehicles and commercial vehicles that have existing accounts with particular stations.

Ariyoshi emphasized that even with Gasplan, "The end of our gasoline troubles is going to depend on the cooperation of the public in reducing individual gasoline consumption."

The big oil companies serving Hawaii, Standard Oil of California, Shell, Union Oil, Phillips Petroleum and Texaco, have been subpoenaed by Ronald Amemiya, administrator of the rationing system, to account for the gasoline shortage. Ariyoshi is acting governor while Gov. John Burns recuperates from cancer surgery.

The spokesman for Standard Oil, the state's largest supplier, said the company had a 26-to 28-day supply of gas on hand and that the total amount of gas available is one-third less than required to meet the demand.

Arab warns oil users about D.C. parley

TOKYO (UPI) — Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani warned Japan and European countries today not to go to the Deb. 11 Washington meeting proposed by President Nixon if they were seeking a confrontation with the oil producing nations.

He said the interests of Japan, France, Britain and Germany are best served by bilateral deals, in which they help backward, oil-rich countries to industrialize, in return for assured supplies of petroleum.

"If the idea is to unite them for a confrontation, it will be a serious matter for both consumer and producer nations," Yamani told a news conference at the Japan Press Club. "It will be an especially serious matter for Japan, which depends almost 100 per cent on imported oil."

The first Japanese comment came from Kiichi Miyazawa, a former minister of international trade and industry and an influential Conservative party member of the lower house of the Diet. He said Yamani's statement is "a headache" for Japan.

"Actually the statements made by Mr. Yamani today concerning this conference give a great headache to Japan," Miyazawa said. "...Prime Minister Tanaka has said that Japan will join the meeting but he has stressed that the oil producing countries approve of this move. Actually, I think the OAPEC (Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries) overall opinion is against the meeting."

Yamani sai , "We have no objection to dialogue, but if they (America) are having this conference for political reasons —to have a confrontation —we won't cooperate."

Yamani said that "the price of oil in the future won't be in terms of dollars, but technology and industrialization." Yamani repeated today that Saudi Arabia's government favors a reduction in oil prices, but said it will not happen immediately.

Yamani said Saudi Arabia thinks the present price levels reflect the true value of oil, but "due to the effects on the balance of payments of other countries, we think we should sacrifice a little. This is an individual Saudi Arabian policy."

"Some consumer countries have a very strong interest in bilateral arrangements with producer nations," the oil minister added. "Japan is first among these. France, Germany and Britain also have such an interest."

Yamani said that in view of this, the oil consuming nations were not likely to find much common ground of interest at the Washington meeting.

President labors over Union talk

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon spent the weekend working on his State of the Union address, the legislative proposals he plans to present this week to Congress.

Aides said Nixon, working on his familiar yellow lined pads, is trying to extract the most important points from the State of the Union report, a separate document to be sent to Congress which has already been prepared and runs over 100 pages. His chief speechwriter, Ray Price, and White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig were called to Camp David Sunday to help prepare the speech.

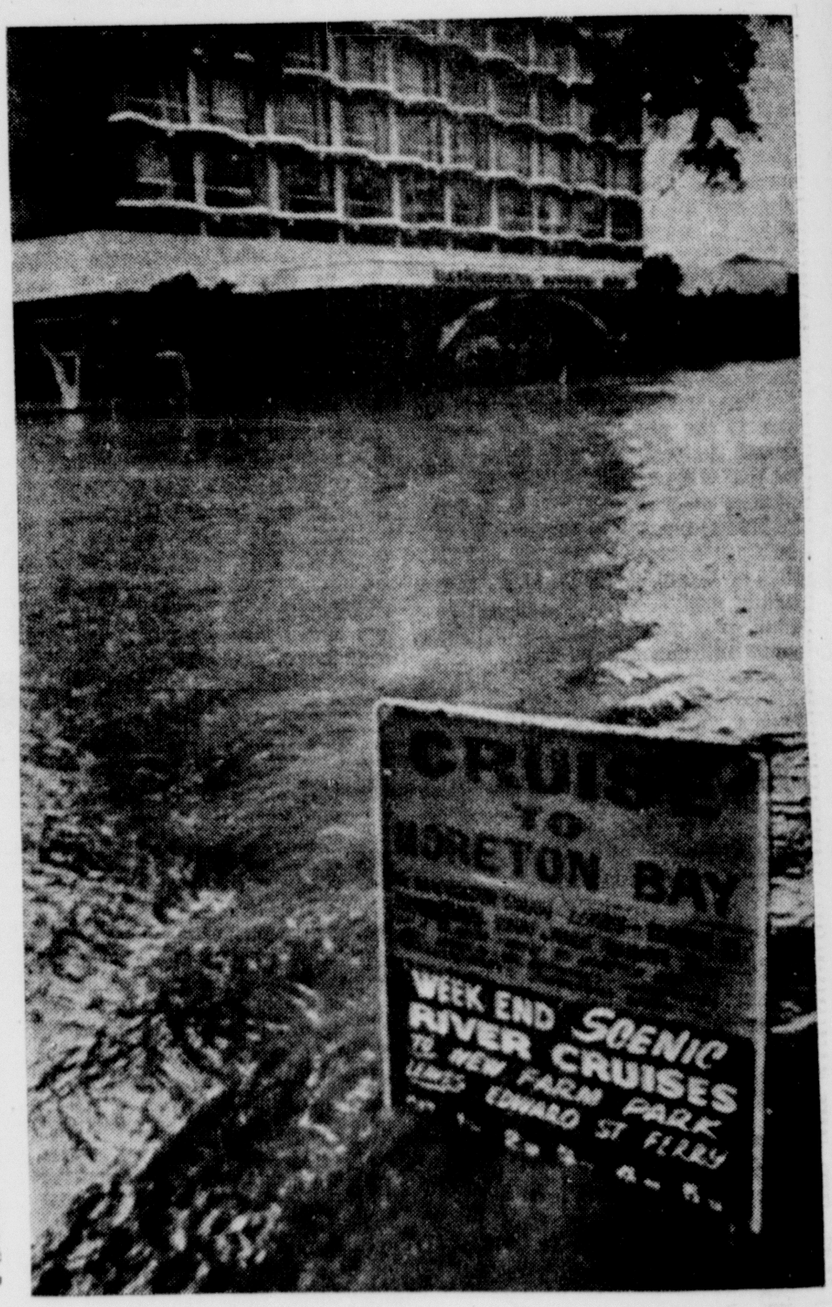

The address has been scheduled for Wednesday evening. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said he thought Nixon would be in a "very, very tough" spot speaking to a Congress that has given the House Judiciary Committee $1 million to study whether evidence exists for impeachment.

Although some congressmen —including the powerfull Senate Whip, Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. —have urged the President to discuss the Watergate scandal, it is not known whether he will do so or stick to domestic affairs.

The Washington Star-News reported Sunday that Nixon "has received conflicting suggestions from his advisers on whether he should address the scandal directly or leave it as an unspoken counterpoint to the rest of the speech."

Aides said Saturday that Nixon hopes to show in the speech that he is not "consumed" by Watergate-related problems and is looking forward to grappling with other national issues.

It was not known if the speech would touch on foreign affairs, but aides said a separate "state of the world" address was not planned at this time. They said most of the remarks will contain new material but mostly be a restatement of prior positions. They are expected to touch on Nixon's proposals for education, health care, energy, urban mass transit and national security needs.

Dallas police open massive search for grocery killers

DALLAS (UPI) — An intensive round-the-clock manhunt for the persons responsible for a wave of grocery robbery - killings failed today to fullfil Police Chief Donald Byrd's mandate to "have those bastards in jail by Monday morning."

Byrd mobilized a crew of 100 plainclothes officers last Friday after the ninth robbery-shooting and told them to go "full blast after the bunch responsible."

They were told to conduct a thorough search of apartment house parking areas and streets in search of a distinctive old model car used in the Friday incident that resulted in the fifth death since Jan. 4.

Meanwhile, owners and clerks of small convenience groceries—the type which has almost exclusively been the target of the gummen—admittedly are living scared. Some are taking extra precautions.

"I admit it's got us all shook up," said one owner in the South Dallas black neighborhood which has been hit three of the nine times.

"We stay pretty busy, except maybe late at night," he said. "We now have two men working at all times. At night, one stands at the back of the store where he can be seen. He holds a double barrel shotgun."

Some clerks have become philosophical.

"I was scared when the shootings first started," said the woman clerk in another South Dallas store. "But now I think if it's going to happen, it's going to happen."

Still another woman clerk commented, "We're all praying for the best ... that's all we can do."

Three persons were questioned Sunday but homicide detective Sgt. Frank Mote said they did not look like strong suspects.

Minutes after Friday's ninth shooting in an area grocery, Byrd assembled all available uniform and plainclothes commanders in his office and ordered them to have the men responsible "in jail by Monday morning." Six of the victims have died.

Forrest Vance Fuller, 45, the ninth person shot in the wave of drive-in grocery store killings, remained in critical condition today. He was shot in the head by two men who took the cash register from the store and drove away in a 1967 faded Canary yellow Chevrolet.

Although the car is very distinctive, with pieces of chrome missing from its side, rust visible on parts of the car, and a hammered out look to the trunk, police stopped all cars remotely answering the discription during the weekend.

The robbery-murders began on Jan. 4. They have occurred in predominantly black neighborhoods and all nine of the victims were white.

Claims cut in jobless rate

Nixon asks VA aid hike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon recommended to Congress today a $13.6 billion program for veterans benefits in the coming fiscal year that would include an 8 per cent increase for schooling and higher pensions to cover rising living costs.

In a special message, Nixon claimed to have reduced joblessness among Vietnam veterans and summarized: "On the whole, the situation of the American veteran today is a good one. The average veteran has a higher income, more education and better health than nonveterans of the same age."

Veterans Administrator Donald W. Johnson said total federal outlays in fiscal 1974 were estimated to be $13.2 billion, meaning the increase for next fiscal year beginning July 1 will be $400 million.

Although educational benefits for individual veterans will increase by 8 per cent, it was estimated that cost will decrease from $3.2 billion in the current year to $2.6 billion next year because of a 200,000 decrease in the number of veterans enrolled in educational programs.

Nixon reported that unemployment for the Vietnam GIs has declined from 11 per cent in 1971 to 4.4 per cent—below the national average.

Under the GI bill, the allowance for a single veteran in school full time is $220 per month. Nixon advocated that this be boosted by 8 per cent or $17.60 a month.

Nixon, sketching his program in broad outlines, asked Congress to provide automatic cost - of - living adjustments in VA pension payments which now go to 1 million veterans and 1.3 million survivors of veterans. Similar adjustments are built into the Social Security program.

Additionally, Nixon asked for a restructuring of the pension program to funnel more money to poorer pensioners. He said some veterans now receive less total income than welfare recipients.

In a bow to veteran organizations and other groups disturbed by a 1968 law changing the traditional observance of Veterans Day to the fourth Monday in October, Nixon urged new legislation switching the date back to Nov. 11—the anniversary of the end of World War I.

"In view of the confusion which has arisen and in view especially of the position taken by the veterans themselves, I believe it would be wise to repeal the 1968 change of the Veterans Day observance," Nixon told Congress.

In advance of Nixon's message, Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., described unemployment among Vietnam veterans as "a national disgrace" and charged they were being shortchanged on their school benefits.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., issued a statement saying he hopes Nixon would accept reforms suggested by a special veterans opportunity committee he headed.

Krogh: Advised Dean to explain facts to Nixon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Egil Krogh says that he advised John W. Dean III to see President Nixon and tell him everything about the Watergate scandal and its cover-up in the White House.

Krogh, the former head of the White House "plumbers" unit, said Sunday that he and Dean talked on March 20, the day before Dean says he went to Nixon and tried to tell him of the coverup of the breakin at Democratic National Headquarters and that Watergate was becoming a "cancer on the Presidency."

Krogh was interviewed on CBS television's "60 Minutes."

Krogh said the conversation with Dean, who was fired April 30 as White House counsel, convinced him that Nixon was not involved or even aware of the coverup. "Bud" Krogh quoted Dean as saying, "the President is being badly served. He just doesn't know what's going on."

Krogh said he advised Dean to see the President and "lay it all out on the table."

Barmaid is shot; two men arrested

ONTARIO — A 41-year-old Ontario barmaid was shot by a man police say intended to rob patrons at the Bamboo Hut at Holt Boulevard and Campus Avenue early Sunday morning.

Patsy Trewett of 421 W. Sunkist St. was listed in fair condition this morning at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland with a gunshot wound of the lower abdomen.

Police reported that a man, identified as Harold Sims Williams, 39, of 293 Franklin Ave., Pomona, walked into the bar early Sunday morning. Mrs. Trewett told police that the suspect walked up to her and without saying a word shot her.

Patrons in the bar, hearing the shot, attacked Williams and managed to wrestle a .38-caliber pistol from his hands. Police said that someone in the bar apparently struck Williams over the head with a pool cue, knocking him to the floor. During the fight, police said a second shot was fired. The bullet went through a patron's jacket on a coat rack and lodged in a juke box.

When officers arrived at the scene Williams was lying in the grass at the rear of the bar suffering multiple injuries.

Detectives arrested Williams and booked him in the West End Jail on suspicion of attempted robbery and attempted murder. After interviewing Williams, police went to an apartment at 1449 E. D St. and arrested James John Depolo, 27, on suspicion of attempted robbery and attempted murder. Detectives said this morning Williams is believed to have gone into the bar with the intent of committing a robbery. Depolo, according to police, drove Williams to the bar.

Williams was taken to Doctors Hospital in Montclair for treatment of a scalp laceration and bruises before he was taken to the West End Jail for booking.

Chinoan attacked by trio in Upland

CHINO — An 18-year-old Chino youth was listed in satisfactory condition this morning at Chino General Hospital with head injuries suffered early Saturday when he was attacked by three youths who forced his car off the road in Upland.

Paul Espinoza of 12741 Oaks St. told police that he had taken some girls home in the Los Olivos area of Upland Saturday morning and was driving home when he was chased and his car forced off the road between Grove and Sultana avenues. He said three youths in the other car then broke his windshield, dragged him out of the car and began beating him with tire irons.

Upland Police said that Espinoza managed to drive his car back to Chino but collapsed at his home from loss of blood.

Police this morning were still searching for the three youths all described as Caucasians, driving a 1963 or 1964 Chevrolet blue car with numerous primer spots. Espinoza said the car had rocket type hub caps and was lowered all the way around.

Stolen vans recovered; 5 youths held

UPLAND — Upland police recovered three van trucks stolen off the sales lot of Arena Ford, 555 W. Foothill Blvd., and arrested five juveniles ranging in age from 13 to 15 on suspicion of automobile theft Sunday.

Police said that the three vans, one red, one blue and the other orange, were stolen about the same time from the car company's sales lot. The thefts were reported by John White of Arena Ford Co. about 9:44 p.m. Saturday.

At 12:11 a.m. Upland Police Officer Daniel Emerson said two vans matching the description of two of the stolen vans, being driven on Arrow Highway near Second Avenue and stopped them. Emerson confirmed that the two vans were stolen and arrested four youths in the vans on suspicion of auto theft. Later the third van was found wrecked at Foothill Boulevard and Campus avenue. A fifth juvenile was taken into custody on car theft charges later.

Ontario police said the five juveniles are suspected of committing at least six residential burglaries in the Ontario area in the last few weeks.

The youths have been petitioned to juvenile hall by both Ontario and Upland Police.

Bright day, dime fares crowd buses

Bright, sunny weather brought out crowds of riders Sunday to the bus station in Pomona for the first regular day of 10-cent Sunday fares on the Southern California Rapid Transit District system.

Garry Augusta, ticket clerk at the Pomona station, estimated Sunday's crowds were twice as large as those a week ago Sunday when the RTD started the reduced fares as a one-day experiment.

The success of the low-fare program prompted the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors last week to subsidize the bus company with $575,000 to continue the dime-fare plan at least through the spring months, possibly even the summer.

Buses throughout the RTD system were reported jammed Sunday, and one RTD spokesman said the idea "seems to have caught on."

Passenger volume a week ago swelled by an estimated 82 per cent when the fares were reduced to a dime, and bus officials said they think there were twice as many riders this past Sunday.

Extra buses were put into service along heavily used routes and in some cases buses carried so many passengers that drivers had to zip by some corners, unable to pick up any more riders.

Next Sunday reduced fares will be available only in Los Angeles County unless officials in Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties offer RTD subsidies of their own.

Security guard says someone shot at him

CLAREMONT — A uniformed security guard told police Saturday night that someone fired two shots at him while he was on patrol at First Street and Berkeley Avenue.

Billy J. Cowan, 24, La Puente, employed by the Continental Security Service of Industry, said he was leaving his patrol car when the two shots were fired. Cowan had stopped at the southeast corner of the intersection to check valves on a large oil tank.

Cowan said he saw a figure running away and fired four shots after it. The figure either tripped or was hit, the security guard said. But the Pomona police department's helicopter crew assisted in trying to locate the sniper and no one could be found.

Police said there were two bullet holes in the windshield of Cowan's patrol car. Two expended bullets, found inside the car, were being examined today at the sheriff's crime lab.

The weapon fired accidentally, sheriff's deputies said, when it was picked up by a friend of Mecate's, James E. Patterson, 16, of the same address. The revolver had been loaded earlier by the victim's brother, 17-year-old Ray Mecate.

Deputies said the three youths were preparing to go hunting and were gathering their equipment. The victim was taken first to Queen of the Valley Hospital and later transferred to Loma Linda University Medical Center.

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (UPI) — Joy Brown, 19, has become the first mailman, or rather, mail-person in the northern New York city.

She left a local community college after passing a Civil Service examination and said the position was "a better job than I'd get anywhere else, and I get lots of exercise."

Even city dogs haven't given her much trouble.

"I just walk along like I'm not afraid," she said.

Arms cut, not control, solon urges

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington said Sunday the United States should press for "disarmament, not arms control" at the second stage of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT).

"We have forces that we don't really need to maintain at that level only because of the Russian level. What's wrong with both of them coming down and saving those billions? This would be a real test of their sincerity and of their alleged interest in world peace.

"I want the whole world to know that we want disarmament, not arms control, disarmament at new and lower levels of equivilancy."

Jackson was interviewed on CBS television: "Face the Nation."

Mid-term deadline sets lawmakers scrambling

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The legislature this week faces a new mid-session deadline that is expected to trigger a hectic scramble by lawmakers attempting to win rapid-fire passage of their proposals.

In past years, such frenzied action came only in the final few days of the session. But for the first time, it will occur virtually at the start of the new year's legislative activity.

The reason for the expected bustle this week is that any bill introduced in 1973 will automatically die at midnight Wednesday unless it has cleared its house of origin.

The rule was instituted as part of the legislature's new two-year session and designed to serve as a half-time buzzer for lawmakers.

The Senate has canceled Tuesday and Wednesday committee hearings, and the Assembly has scheduled an unusual Wednesday floor session in anticipation of the deadline crunch.

Included among the bills jeopardized by the deadline is an "emergency" measure creating a so-called "energy czar" to help handle California's energy shortage.

The Senate Finance Committee is expected to act on the bill late today, just in time to clear the Senate by the mid-session deadline.

Other 1973 measures which could be killed would provide for secret farm union elections, impose life sentences for drug pushers, create a state lottery and require extensive food labelling.

If a proposal fails to clear either the Assembly or Senate before the deadline, a lawmaker still could introduce it in a new 1974 bill.

However, legislators technically are prohibited from reintroducing a measure that was substantially the same as a bill defeated during the prior year, although it appears that this rule will be broken frequently.

Four other Shelton stepchildren, Michael Lovell, 16, Richard Lovell, 19, Larura Lovell, 15, and Tony Lovell, 13, were seriously injured, Brownfield said.

Ex-congressman begins sentence on perjury count

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI) — Former Rep. John W. Dowdy, D-Tex., described as a sick man who has suffered enough, goes to prison today to begin serving a six-month term for perjury.

Dowdy, 62, was convicted in 1971 on eight counts of bribery, conspiracy and perjury for accepting a $25,000 bribe in return for trying to block a Justice Department investigation of a Baltimore home improvement firm.

The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals threw out all but the perjury counts and reduced the original 18-month sentence to six months. The U.S. Supreme Court has refused to intervene.

Dowdy's attorney argued during a federal hearing earlier this month that the Texas Democrat, a veteran of 20 years in the House, was in ill health and the jail term would kill him.

Crosby well, leaves hospital

BURLINGAME, Calif. (UPI) — Bing Crosby, wearing his soft felt hat at a jaunty angle, strolled out of the hospital Sunday, two weeks after surgery for removal of a lung abscess.

Doctors forecast a complete recovery and said the operation would have no effect on the 69-year-old crooner's voice. "Bing will have the same melodious voice," said Dr. Stanley Hanfling, his personal physician.

Crosby had been hospitalized since New Year's Eve for a stubborn lung ailment thought to be caused by a rare African fungus disease he picked up while on a safari.

He ate all but the holes!

CARSON, Calif. (UPI) — After an eight-year stretch with the Marines and assorted years as a truckdriver, Jerry Wright is able to eat just about anything.

During the weekend the 35-year-old Los Angeles area man downed 28 doughnuts in 15 minutes and surpassed the existing British record of 20 listed in the Guiness Book of Records.

Wright smiled at the 600 other groaning contestants and announced that he felt fine. He said he occasionally eats 18 doughnuts at a sitting. "Every once in a while," he said, "I just get the urge for doughnuts."

Brezhnev in air en route to Havana

MOSCOW (UPI) — Leonid I. Brezhnev flew to Cuba today for talks with Premier Fidel Castro and what Western diplomats said may be a toplevel review of Communist strategy in Latin America.

The general secretary of the Soviet Communist party took off from Moscow's Vnukovo airport shortly after 8 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT) aboard a special Aeroflot IL62 jet.

He was to make one refueling stop in Gander, Nfld., enroute to Havana where he was expected to arrive in the early afternoon.

The trip is Brezhnev's first to Cuba and the first by any Soviet leader since Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was there in October, 1971. Castro was last in Moscow in December, 1972.

In a televised interview last week, Castro described Brezhnev's visit as the most important in Cuban history. (Havana radio, in a report monitored in Miami, said the Soviet leader's trip was of "exceptional political importance to all Cuban people.")

Some diplomats said the Soviets have asked Cuba to tone down anti-American statements during the visit in order not to compromise Brezhnev's detente policy with the United States.

There have been reports in Moscow recently that Communist leaders from all the Latin American countries will be on hand in Havana for some of the talks.

Miss Chinatown U.S.A. named

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The new Miss Chinatown U.S.A. is 21-year-old Pamela Fong, who was chosen from 16 contestants representing Chinese communities throughout the United States.

The 5-foot-7 Sacramento State University coed received her title Saturday night in a ceremony ushering in the Chinese Lunar Year, 4,672—the year of the Tiger.

Miss Fong will have a seat of honor when festivities climax Feb. 2 with the traditional Golden Dragon parade through the narrow streets of San Francisco's Chinatown, which with 67,000 persons is the largest community of Chinese descent in the United States.

Truman Capote convalescing

PALM DESERT, Calif. (UPI) — Author Truman Capote, convalescing from a respiratory ailment at Eisenhower Medical Center, was expected to be released before Friday, doctors said today.

The author of the best-selling "In Cold Blood" was hospitalized with a minor infection last Wednesday and was prevented from covering the start of the Houston, Tex., mass murder trial for the Washington Post.

Picture albums of Mussolini, Hitler bought

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two photograph albums of Nazi dictator Adolf Hitler and Fascist leader Benito Mussolini have been purchased for $10,000 by an unknown person.

Auctioneer Maurice Powers said the brown leather set of pictures was taken from Hitler's library in 1945 by an American paratrooper whose unit captured Berchtesgaden, Hitler's mountain chalet in the Bavarian Alps.

The albums of 325 photographs were purchased during the weekend by an unnamed bidder who sent his offer by mail.

Federal Reserve Board asks more control of banks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board controls 75 per cent of the money supply in the United States, but its officials say the $50 billion that it doesn't control stopped it from reducing inflation in 1973.

The system's board of governors asked Congress Sunday to extend their monetary controls over the 8,400 nonmember banks. A letter from Chairman Arthur F. Burns said assets in these banks were growing three times faster than member banks and one official added in a briefing that they undermined the board's ability to control the economy.

"In essence, the proposed legislation would strengthen the central bank's ability to manage the nation's supply of money and credit by making the growing amount of demand deposits outside of Federal Reserve member banks responsible to Federal Reserve action," Burns wrote.

"In these inflationary times, the nation must have the best monetary tools for dealing with our many economic problems."

A member of the system primarily uses the Federal Reserve for check collection services and to get access to such national money supplies as Treasury bonds. The Federal Reserve Board can regulate the assets of national banks, which means that about $155 billion can be restricted for loan or investment purposes as one way of controlling inflation.

Nonmember banks are controlled only by state regulations, which generally are more liberal. They have to rely on national banks for their check collection services, but often can offer higher interest on certain savings accounts.

The legislation would give the Federal Reserve Board control over all reserves except time and savings deposits and the first $2 million in nonmember bank assets. Officials predict this would control all but $3 billion in the nation's monetary system.

The banks which offer "negotiable orders of withdrawal," checks which can be written on interest-paying savings accounts, would specifically be regulated. At present only savings banks in Massachusetts and New Hampshire offer the so-called "NOW" accounts, but officials said controlling the money supply might become more troublesome if the plan expands to savings and loan institutions.

What Federal bank control would do

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Reserve Board says its legislative proposals for increasing control of the monetary system would:

—Facilitate better management of money and credit.

—Increase equity among the nation's financial institutions.

—Permit Federal Reserve credit assistance to a broader range of financial institutions.

—Extend reserve requirements set by the Federal Reserve to all financial institutions that offer checking or check-like services.

—Widen the ranges of reserve requirements from 3 to 22 per cent on demand deposits, up from 7 to 22 per cent; 3 to 20 per cent on negotiable orders of withdrawal (NOW) accounts, up from 3 to 10 per cent; and 1 to 10 per cent on time and savings deposits of member banks, up from 3 to 10 per cent.

—Provide a four-year transition period for non-member banks.

—Not require state banks to become Federal Reserve members and not change supervisory responsibilities of federal and state authorities.

—Not require small nonmember banks, those with less than $2 million in assets, to maintain reserves on demand deposit or NOW accounts.

—Not require any nonmember bank to maintain reserves other than those imposed by states on time and savings deposits.

Three kinds of water in future?

NEW YORK (UPI) — Families of the future may be using three kinds of water.

"One will be the water supplied by the community system," Wilbur K. Hess, head of the Water Quality Association, said recently. "Another will be softened water. A third will be water for drinking and cooking."

Hess said some families already are using these three types. Many others are expected to follow when they find that increased usage of waste water for public supply makes it impractical for all-purposes.

"Everyone is familiar with water softeners in the home," Hess said. "Their use in the future will become almost universal. Look also for the use of bottled water to increase, as well as special purification devices that produce bottled-quality water right in the home."

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Despite growing predictions of an economic recession in 1974, a soft landing, or slowdown in the rate of expansion, is still more likely than a crashdown," says Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis Inc. If Arab oil begins to reflow early in the year, the firm continues, the odds favor a gain of one to two per cent in real growth in the economy compared with an earlier estimate of a two to three per cent growth rate. "Although corporate profits may be five to ten per cent below those of 1973, stock prices could rise to levels near last year's record highs," it adds.

"Investors have always had good imaginations," says Argus Weekly Staff Report, "and with the energy crisis serving as a catalyst, this combination produces a toxic combination of fears." Despite the emotional belief that Europe and Japan will be plunged into a severe recession by the oil shortage, the small amount of information coming out of Europe and the Middle East "suggests that the supply cutbacks made so far are much smaller than have been officially announced," according to the firm.

In a letter entitled, "How We Look at the 1974 Market," Paine Webber, Jackson & Curtis says, "As far as interest rates are concerned, we see a slowing in the growth of demand for short-term funds regardless of the outcome of the energy squeeze." The letter adds, "Thus if, as we expect, the Federal Reserve follows an essentially neutral monetary policy, as the demand for shortterm funds slackens, short-term interest rates should decline, perhaps by as much as 250 to 300 basis points."

Hospital costs rise 8.5% year

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The cost of hospital care has increased an average rate of 8.5 per cent per year during the past 20 years, the National Consumer Finance Association recently reported.

The association said the average daily hospital cost per patient was $16.77 in 1950 and by 1970 had grown to $81.01.

The increase in cost is primarily the result of the growing number of full-time hospital personnel and the introduction of complex, expensive medical and surgical equipment, the association said.

Progress-Bulletin, Pomona, California, Monday, January 28, 1974

Even during the energy crisis, we really move our tail for you.

In just a few short months the crisis in energy has created a whole new way of life throughout the airline industry.

Some of the problems are only a temporary inconvenience. Others may be with us longer.

At Continental, we've had to make some adjustments. But when it comes to service, care, and attention, we haven't changed at all.

On the ground and in the air, you'll find that Continental people have a special knack for handling the unexpected.

Which is only natural, because we've been in the problem-solving business for years.

Talk to a Continental passenger and chances are you'll be talking to a satisfied passenger. The fact is, from January 1970 through October 1973, Continental has had the fewest passenger complaints of any major domestic airline.*

That's why 7 out of 10 people who fly with us once fly with us again.

So if you're looking for travel today that is convenient and comfortable, we'd like to show you the bright side of air travel, 1974 style.

For no matter where you go, to any of Continental's 42 places, we'll fly you there by the same high standards we've always had. And that's a promise.

MRS. LESTER DIXON

The Rev. Herschell D. Rice officiated at the double-ring, evening rites in the First Church of God of Pomona.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin peau and imported chantilly lace fashioned with a high neckline, bishop sleeves and an A-line skirt which swept to a chapel-length train. Her Juliet cap held a fingertip-length veil of silk illusion trimmed in matching lace.

She carried a colonial cascade of white carnations, bridal pink roses, baby's breath and miniature ivy.

Miss Karen Bono was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Frederick Dixon Jr., Mrs. Charles Regehr and Miss Karen Bosacker. Mrs. Randy Powell handled the guest book.

Cousins of the groom, Michelle and Mark Dixon, were flower girl and ring bearer, respectively.

Frederick Dixon Jr., was best man for his brother. Ushers were Bradley Dixon, Bruce Good and Larry Evans.

The newlyweds greeted guests during a reception at Griswold's Indian Hill Inn, Claremont.

The fashion show, following the noon luncheon at Griswold's Pavilion, will feature haute couture originals by Countess de Turiani, men's fashions from John P. Evans for men and sportswear from Gunter-Project II.

Funds from the show will benefit some new project at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

THE TREAT FAMILY — Clarence and Virginia Treat and their sons, Dean and Jamey, will perform at the Pomona Ebell tea Friday afternoon with a program of folk and contemporary music.

The two-day examination for PLS is given twice a year by the National Association of Legal Secretaries, International, with the cooperation of colleges and universities throughout the United States. The examination was prepared by a committee composed of leading educators, practicing attorneys and experienced legal secretaries.

The examination is offered to those who have been legal secretaries at least five years and are members of the National Organization of Legal Secretaries. The test covers written communication skills and knowledge, legal secretaries procedures and other skills. The examination is administered locally by Mrs. Frankie Schesser, an instructor at Chaffey College.

Mrs. Conda Takanabe, PLS chairman, and her committee will present a mock examination on Feb. 23 at Chaffey College for those interested in taking the national examination at a later date. Mrs. Cantu and Mrs. Betty Gustafson, the first PLS in the Ontario association, will assist.

"Where Food is Made with Butter 'n' Love"
It's Griswold's aim to provide the finest dining experience anywhere. Sometimes we have problems that aren't funny at the time, but laughable later. For example a mermaid ice carving for the Indian Hill Country Club Buffet was nearly completed before the chef noticed he hadn't allowed for the most alluring parts of the mermaid. "The whole project was a bust," he said.
Perfect, however, were Chuck Bailey's array of 30 different salads. Chef Don Huston is responsible for the seven entrees, such as Ratatoulle, Boulabaisso, Roast Duckling a l' orange...
Wednesday is Gourmet night at the Country House in Redlands. Chef Ruth Brogan creates a seven course meal that is always a great dining experience.

Auto device eliminates need to ever change oil

VISALIA (UPI) — This city of 33,000 has found one way to fight the oil shortage. Lubricating oils in city trucks and car engines are never changed yet the vehicles run better than ever.

The secret is an electric oil refiner invented by an Oklahoma mechanic in the mid 1960s and now used on 100,000 different vehicles and industrial engines around the U.S. It eliminates indefinitely the need for oil changes.

Easily attached to any type of engine, the device utilizes a simple cotton filter and a patented heat exchanger refining process to cleanse oil of all impurities, solid or liquid. Its inventor says it is the only device of its kind in the U.S. and probably the world.

Wally Pardue, superintendent of general services for the city of Visalia, bought three of the devices on a trial basis in June of 1972. He was so impressed by the results he has since purchased 79 more.

One city patrol car ran the same oil for 52,000 miles and mechanics found the oil in its original clean condition with no visible wear in the engine.

"I'm a skeptical person by nature," says Pardue. "I've seen these things come and go. I don't pay much attention to them. This one here intrigued me and it has lived up to the claims. I'm satisfied."

The refiner is manufactured by Product Research, Inc., based in Tulsa, Okla., and headed by Glenn Prier, the mechanic who invented the device.

John Deniz, California regional director for the firm, is convinced the device will conserve huge amounts of lubricating oil if adopted throughout the U.S. and there are indications it will be.

The small company has had a million dollars in orders over the past two months with no letup in sight.

Cost of the refiner for an auto is about $60 with installation requiring 15-20 minutes.

Pardue figured cost of the refiner plus four filter changes in a 40,000-mile year and labor costs at $70.20 compared to a normal servicing cost (14 oil changes for 40,000 nearly pays for itself in the first year and then the savings increase.

Visalia's fire trucks each hold 35 quarts of oil, and Pardue says the city will save three 55 gallon barrels of oil each year on the fire trucks alone.

Deniz notes there are seven engines for every person in the U.S. and says all of them could use the same oil indefinitely if a refiner were used.

The oil companies are showing interest, and Deniz says Texaco recently contracted to use the refiners for all its stationary engines in Texas.

And the Atomic Energy Commission is using the electric refiners on huge stationary engines in Nevada which require 500 quarts of oil.

The firm recommends the cotton oil filters be changed every 8,000-10,000 miles, a task easily accomplished by the operator of the vehicle at a cost of about $2.50 per filter.

When the filter is changed, a quart or two of oil is added to replace the oil lost in the used filter and through engine wear and to make up for detergent breakdown.

The device has no moving parts and is guaranteed for three years.

The refiner first hit the U.S. market in 1968, but because of marketing problems, skepticism about product claims and plenty of oil, interest in the refiner didn't pick up until the current fuel shortage.

Now trucking firms and municipalities threatened with cutbacks are looking everywhere for ways to economize.

Fresno center credited with reducing confrontations of blacks and police

By JERRY HENRY

FRESNO (UPI) — Several years ago confrontations between police and minority residents of Fresno's predominantly black west side were causing growing concern.

When police made arrests or even asked questions they were sometimes met by hostile crowds and at times fought off physical attacks from onlookers.

Today the incidence of such confrontations has dwindled to almost zero. While there may be many reasons explaining the change, Fresno police are convinced much of the credit should go to the West Fresno Police Center established in 1971.

"There have been no large disturbance confrontations since the thing got going," said Sgt. Joseph Trejo, who heads the center's day-to-day operations. "Even once when a policeman shot a person we kept people calm. We got right out on it and informed them about what was going on."

Two-way communication between the police and residents probably is the cornerstone of the center's operation.

Trejo and his officers follow up after field officers have made calls in the area to see if there is any additional information and if the people involved are satisfied with police service. They also try to keep the people informed of the outcome of cases.

The officers, who have substituted blue blazers for regular police uniforms, also attend public meetings in the neighborhood and speak at schools to let people know who they are and what they are doing. They do not make regular field calls.

"Certainly the major objective has been established," said Police Chief Hal Britton. "The hostility that manifested itself several years ago has dissipated...people are seeing the policeman in something other than in an enforcement role."

Another goal is to cut down on the rate of crime and drug use in the area.

Trejo said while comprehensive figures are not yet available there are indications progress is being made. He said, for example, preliminary figures show there were 15 fewer burglaries in the area during May of this year compared with May of last year.

The police center also has gotten involved in community projects to better the area which at the same time help eliminate crime potential.

For example, Trejo said the center, working with the advisory committee and other agencies, was successful in getting rid of an abandoned service station

The Committee takes its show on the road

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The Committee, an improvisational comedy troupe which played for a decade in San Francisco's North Beach, is taking its message on the road.

The group's half-dozen members thrived for years by taking ideas suggested by their audience and turning them into satirical skits. But after 10 years they felt they were getting stale, so for a while.

But now they are back together, and taking off on a nationwide tour for the first time.

"You can't stay in one place too long," said Larry Hankin, one of the original cast members. "You've got to get out on the road and find out what's going on."

The Committee's satire is based primarily on controversial topics and how people feel about them. After soliciting an audience's idea, the cast members consult briefly, then launch into a satirical skit, usually successfully. When they find they have touched a real vein of humor, the skit becomes a regular part of their repertoire.

"We sit around and share each other's head," Hankin said.

The Committee was started in 1963 by Alan Myerson, who had worked with the Second City group in Chicago and taught actors' workshops in New York. He brought the cast to San Francisco as their permanent base "because he was looking for a really good city and figured San Francisco was going to happen," Hankin said.

Now, though, Myerson and the cast feels its time for a geographical change.

"If you're any kind of artist, you've got to be in touch with people," Hankin said.

Their tour begins in Chicago, then will travel on to other cities.

"I've never been to the Midwest," said Hankin, "now that's America, too."

Sharp pickings in Oscar derby

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Nominating ballots are in the mail to Motion Picture Academy members to select the five best pictures, actors and all the other eventual Oscar contenders.

Not for years have the pickings been so good for movies. More top grade films were released in 1973 than during the previous five years.

One picture is certain to be nominated: "The Exorcist."

There's a possibility an X-rated movie will be nominated for the first time: "Last Tango in Paris."

There were other prime prospects: "Paper Moon," "American Graffiti," "Save the Tiger," "Serpico," "The Day of theJackall," "The Sting" and "Cries and Whispers."

Academy voters would also have the choice of pictures less heralded: "Oklahoma Crude," "Jesus Christ Superstar," "Blume in Love," "Day of the Dolphin," "Mean Streets," "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams."

Many of the contenders will be showing for months to come because they were released the last week of the year to be fresh in the minds of voters.

Academy members are swayed by box office impact of films, critical reviews and friendships with producers, directors and stars.

Best acting nominees could weil include Marlon Brando for "Last Tango in Paris." He won the Oscar last year but refused to pick it up, sending a bit-playing actress in an Indian costume to harrangue the audience.

Jack Lemmon's nomination for "Save the Tiger" is a certainty. Other prospects are Al Pacino (Serpico), Jack Nicholson (Last Detail), Robert Redford (The Way We Were), Steve McQueen (Papillon), Lee Marvin (The Iceman Cometh), Martin Balsam (Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams) and Gene Hackman (Scarecrow). Another likely prospect is Robert Blake for "Electra Glide in Blue."

The popularity of "The Exorcist," plus a powerful debut as an actor may win Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist Jason Miller a nomination for his role as a priest.

In recent years, actresses have lagged far behind actors as prospective Oscar winners because so few outstanding roles are written for women.

But five actresses will be winnowed out for nominations. Among them, surely, will be Joanne Woodward for "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams." And Liv Ullmann promises to be a contender for "Cries and Whispers."

Two youngsters have a shot at the golden ring—little Tatum O'Neal (who costarred with papa Ryan O'Neal in "Paper Moon," and 13-year-old Linda Blair who played the possessed child in "The Exorcist."

More likely to win nominations, however, are Ellen Burstyn (The Exorcist), Marsha Mason (Cinderella Liberty), Susan Anspach (Blume in Love), Barbra Streisand (The Way We Were) and Glenda Jackson (A Touch of Class).

Nominations will be announced Feb. 19 when each of the categories will be reduced to five nominees.

The academy immediately will set up screening dates for all performances, pictures and artistic and scientific achievements to give members a chance to familiarize themselves with the nominees.

On April 2 the Academy Award presentations will be made and the madness will begin all over again.

Bit Parts: George Pal signed Ron Ely for the title role in his "Doc Savage" movies . . . Merv Griffin will be the special guest on the "Sonny and Cher Show" Jan. 30 . . . Charlton Heston will head the all-star cast of "Earthquake" at Universal Pictures.

New computer may replace Richter scale

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Seismologists will be able to locate and determine the magnitude of earthquakes in about 10 minutes with a new system being developed by University of California scientists, the school has reported.

Professor Bruce Bolt, director of UC's Earthquake Observatory, said the computerized system will reduce work that usually takes at least an hour to "about 10 minutes."

The system contains a minicomputer with a read-out screen similar to a television set that will allow the operator to "talk" with it by touching the screen with a dot of light.

Bolt said the cost and simplicity of the new system will be such that it can be used in poorer countries and rural areas.

Bolt also said it could lead to standardization of a new measurement scale for earthquakes, replacing the Richter scale now in general use.

Cal Poly comic satire leaves them laughing

By MATE TATE

"Day of Absence," a stark but comic satire performed by black actors in white face, brings laughter from the audience from beginning to end. The Cal Poly drama department presentation is an hour of exceptional entertainment.

The sale by Dougles Turner Ward deals with the panic in a small Southern town, dripping with traditions of paternalism and narrow-minded acceptances, when the "nigras" disappear. The panic is personified even more when the vanishing act includes certain "prominent citizens" who were actually passing for white.

Director Isaiah Sanders has wrung from his cast remarkable fortitude in maintaining straight faces while spilling forth the beliefs and attitudes of the old, lily-white South. The best defense against racism is shown in these black folks' ridicule of the system that degrades their humanity.

Karvin Johnson as a storefront sitter, businessman and Reverend Pious; Neal Ellis as Mayor R. E. Lee; Michael Anderson II as Jackson, and Maggie Hines as the club woman lend the greatest credibility to their roles.

Ellis is the epitome of closed-minded, boisterous and gruff authoritarianism of a Southern official convinced of the rights of the Confederacy. Tiny Confederate flags are painted on each of his cheeks. The attire of white suit, shoes and socks and a massive cowboy hat top off this exacting image.

Johnson is the most versatile performer, assuming the proper tone and characteristic with each changing role. His evocation is clear, precise and thoroughly convincing.

Anderson projects himself well as the frenetic and absolutely hounded mayor's assistant. He literally shakes in fear of what has suddenly befallen his beloved town because even "faithful Uncle Toms and nigra informers have vanished without a trace."

Miss Hines' every move brings to mind the Southern belle. Her concern about the "collapse of our indigenous institutions" and the possibility of "gallant men" being drained of their "worship and idolatry" of Southern belles is shrilled from a prissy mouth rich with lip rouge.

Mayor Lee's original optimism—"Sherman marched through Georgia, once. Lincoln freed the slaves, momentarily. Southern courage, chivalry and fortitude wins out"—soon changes to anger with "our people" because "Business is business and fun is fun. You've had your fun; now come home!" This appeal changes just as swiftly to tears and pleading.

"Deterioration rapidly escalates" as "factories stand idle from the absence of non-essential workers," sheriffs go insane without the ability to project violence on dark heads, babes and old go uncared for and an "orgy of destruction" is followed by "all the aberrations of a town gone berserk."

The Southern accents of these California actors are astonishingly real to the discerning ear.

Barbara Drapkin, Ellen Cochran and Lynne Lundquist are seen only on the faces of the cast. This trio of ladies possess the artistic flair that created the remarkable makeup jobs.

The cast of characters gives one the opportunity to laugh at idiosyncrasies. Often the best thereapy in the world is laughter.

Creating things of beauty easy as cutting up a log

POMONA — Don't toss that old limb into the fireplace, it is a potential candlestick or bowl.

At least, that's the experience of Herb Weightman of Pomona. Appalled at the cost of a piece of walnut he wanted to buy, Weightman decided to dig among his scrap wood and see what could be salvaged.

Oranges and orange trees have long been a part of his life. For 30 years, he was associated with the Pomona Fruit Growers Association, serving as manager at the time the firm was disbanded.

In 1944, Weightman and his wife purchased an orange grove. While they still live on the same property, the last trees were removed eight years ago and the wood chopped up and saved.

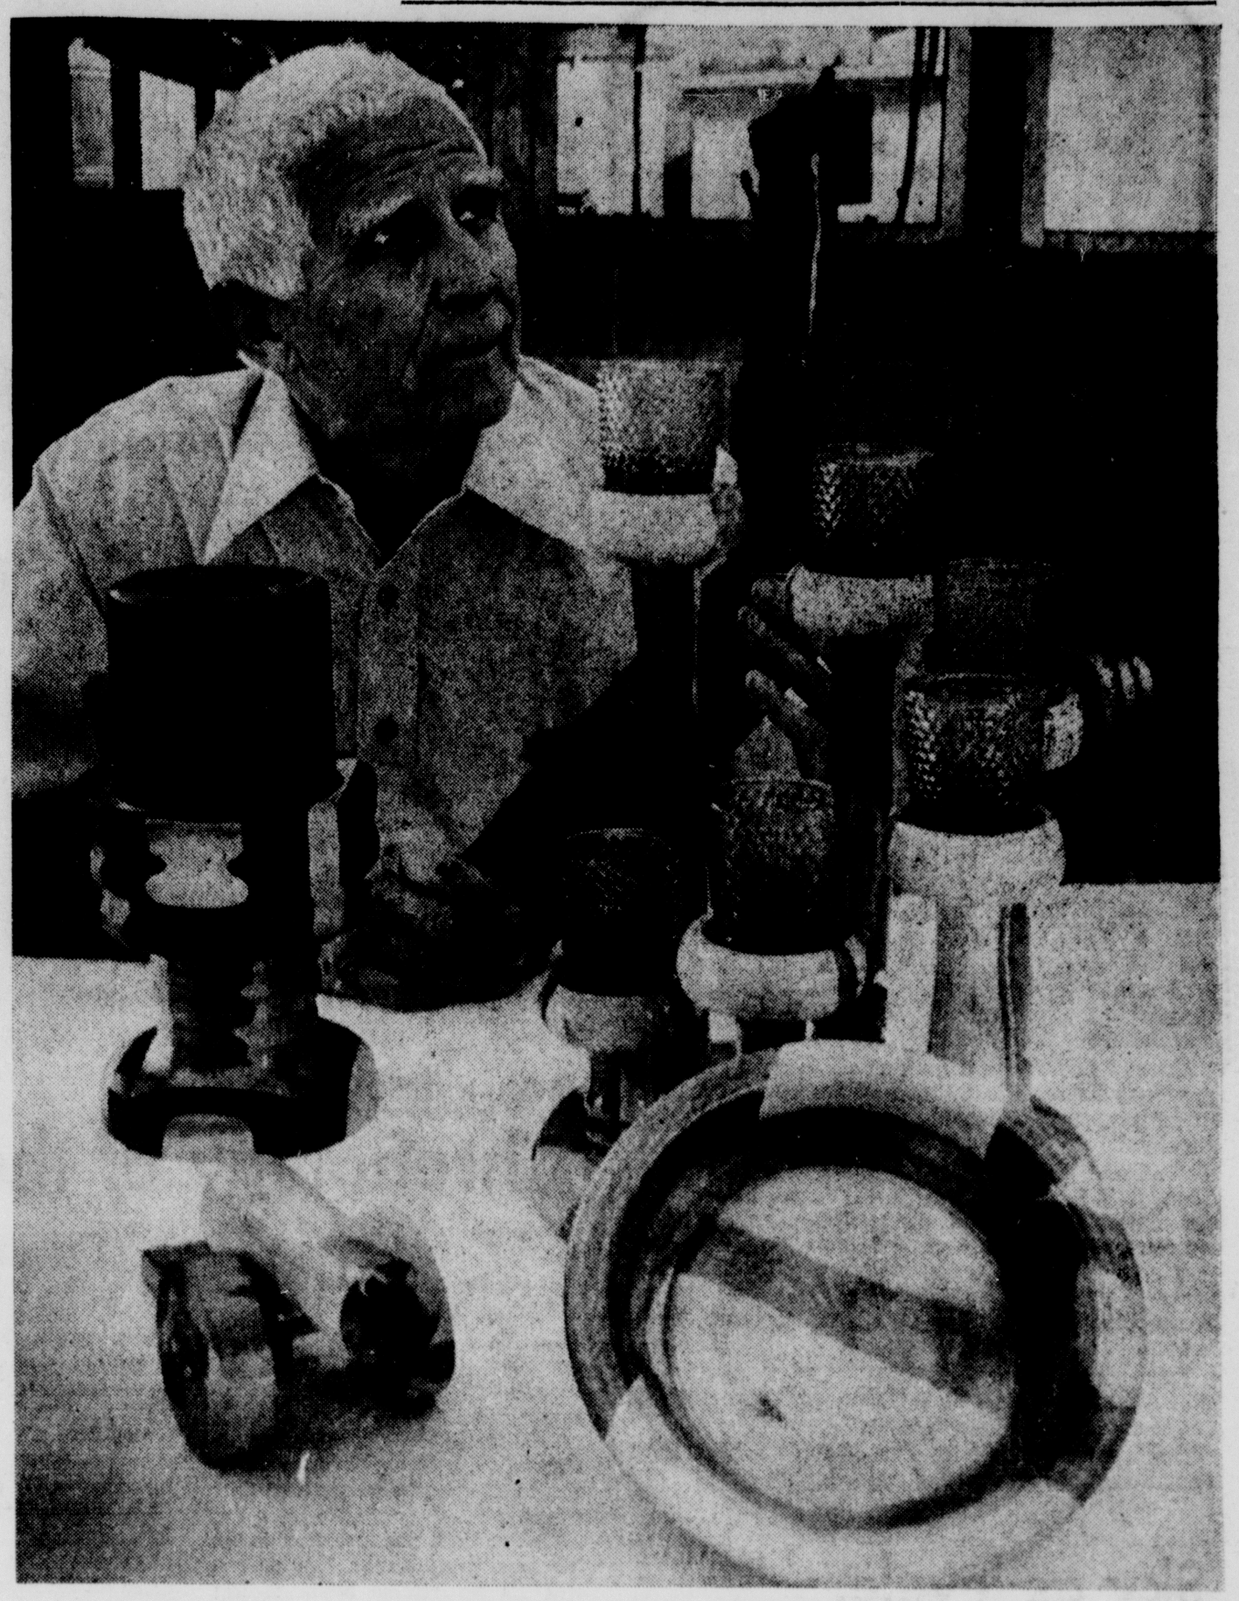

This is the wood — scraps and stumps — which provide the materials for his attractive wood items. And, states Weightman, "I've got enough wood for the rest of my life."

After selecting a branch or stump, he begins turning it on a lathe until the splits are removed, then he works with the pieces gleaned. Larger items, and even many smaller ones, are created from laminated pieces, producing a variety of textures, grains and colors. The orange wood ranges in tone from extremely dark to almost white and the grain has many patterns.

The wood, Weightman says, is medium hard and lends itself well to various woodwork techniques.

Oiling the completed pieces enhances the grain and highlights the color tones. Many of his pieces are highly polished and coated with clear varnish.

Weightman now operates the Pomona Swim School and relegates his woodwork to "just a hobby" but he feels that if more people knew that they could work with scrap orange wood, which is plentiful in the valley, they'd enjoy making items for their homes or as gifts.

I ordered a short side extension for a saw from an eastern machine and tool company on Oct. 12, 1973.

Although I wrote to the firm in November, I have not received the merchandise and have heard nothing from the company.

This order was for my son and it was his $4. I would appreciate anything you can do about getting us the merchandise or a refund. — Mrs. J.H., Chino.

According to the company, you were advised by form letter that its stock was depleted and shipment would be made as soon as the accessory was available.

Following our inquiry, the company shipped you one of its display room units.

I'm another veteran having problems.

When I terminated my enrollment at Cal Poly at the end of the 1973 spring quarter, I notified the Veterans Administration in Los Angeles and returned a $220 check, figuring I owed it to the VA.

VA officials wrote to me saying they had overpaid me $330. I sent them a money order for the amount and threw away the letter, thinking that was the end of it.

Soon after, I received another letter telling me that I only owned $110 because of the $220 check I sent back. So I figure that they owe me that $220.

Soon after that incident, the VA dealt me another bum hand.

I applied for advance payment eligibility and reported to school to pick up my check as instructed. The check was there, all right, but the amount was wrong.

All in all, the VA owes me at least $440. — J.P., Pomona.

After a letter from Action Line, the VA sent you three checks totaling $440 and notified you that your entitlement benefits would be exhausted on June 14.

Thank you for finding JOVE 2 for me.

The young man in prison has just had his first furlough, four days, and seems to be doing well.

He writes frequently and sends copies of songs he is writing. He is something of a Tom T. Hall or Kris Kristofferson in the making.

We will be able to help him get his songs heard since we are affiliated with the Academy of Country Music. One of his songs has been performed professionally already through our efforts.

His counselor says he is a different person than he was several months ago when he was convicted. He is considered one of the better prospects for complete rehabilitation and success on the outside.

He lived in and out of foster homes most of his life and drifted into stealing with other kids in the same situation. — Mrs. M.S., Diamond Bar.

The young man you write about is due for parole in April.

JOVE 2, federally funded and located in Pasadena, obtains employment for ex-offenders. JOVE stands for job placement, on-the-job training, vocational training and education.

Upland man seeks new chair in the Assembly

UPLAND — Tim Dolan, vice president of Driftwood Dairy of El Monte and an Upland resident, has become the fifth candidate to announce for the 65th Assembly District seat.

Dolan, a Republician, was defeated in his 1972 candidacy for 72nd District Assemblyman by Democratic incumbent John Quimby. The newly-created 65th District includes Pomona, Ontario, Upland, Montclair, Chino and adjacent unincorporated areas in southwestern San Bernardino County.

Other candidates in the June primary election include Chino businessman Pete Vander Poel, Pomona Planning Commissioner Clyde Stephens, Chino City Attorney William McVittie and Pomona City Councilman Charles W. Bader.

Dolan, 32, says his campaign will be people-oriented.

"The keynote of my campaign will be an effort to bring the people of our district into a more reciprocal relationship with their state government. We have the finest elective system in existence, but the system succeeds only when every individual becomes involved," the candidate said.

Dolan said the issues that most concern people in the district must also be the top priority of their assembly representative.

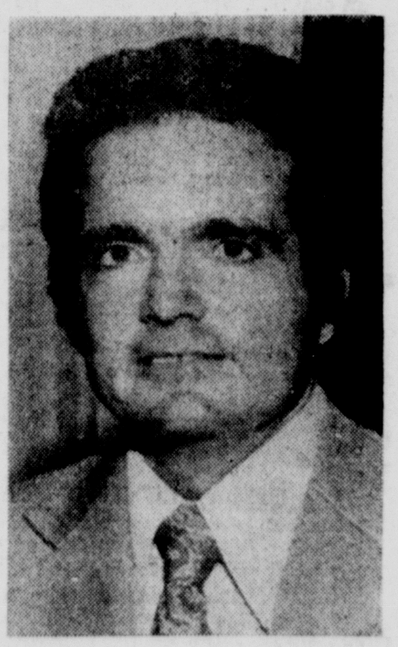

"My background as a private businessman with experience in a variety of areas including agriculture, transportation and computer technology will be relevant to the business of government. Our state is an enormous operation, but despite its size, it must remain responsive to the citizens.

"Through closer contact and real communication with the residents of our district, I hope to restore confidence in the political process."

Dolan attended Chaffey College and Mt. San Antonio College and is a licensed airline transport pilot. As a special project each year he works with the City of Chino and its Sister City program in San Juan del Rio, Mexico. As a pilot, he donates his time and transportation to students who visit Chino as a part of the program.

He has been a volunteer in Republican campaigns since 1962.

He and his wife, Darlene, and three children live in Upland.

Soviet detente-- no love affair

"Peace and detente are very much on people's minds these days."

That is a truism. But it has a special significance when spoken by someone like Alexander I. Zinchuk, Soviet Consul General, as it was recently in an address to the Commonwealth Club of California in San Francisco.

The need for detente, he explained, lies in the fact that Red China, the Soviet Union and the United States are nuclear powers, and also members of the Security Council. Relations between them, and the effect of those relations upon world affairs, depends upon "how they behave towards each other in the international arena."

Giving President Nixon full credit for bettering relations between his nation and ours, Zinchuk said that the present detente is based on the mutual realization that "confrontation had to be abandoned and channels of cooperation had to be found if peaceful coexistence was to become a reality."

Zinchuk pointed to a number of indications of improving relationships throughout the world, but most interesting was his definition of what detente really means:

"It does not mean that our interests are identical. The Soviet Union and the United States have different interests in different areas. Detente means that we must not have confrontations that could lead to war. At the same time, it means that we have reached a level of understanding which permits us to cooperate in areas of trade and economic development."

Then came the key sentence: "But to avoid possible disappointments, both sides would be better off not to equate detente with mutual love."

That's for sure; but it's nice to have a high level Soviet official acknowledge it publicly.

Sky as leveler

Being an astronaut is a demanding, confining, rigorous job. Long and highly disciplined training, the need for supremely sharp physical and mental condition and great emotional stability, cast the space men in an almost super-human mold. Almost.

The three crewmen on the scheduled 84-day Skylab flight have learned many things during the first half of their project, probably the most revealing being the fact that they are, indeed, human beings with weaknesses and personal fallibilities no amount of training can remove. And probably shouldn't.

Talking openly during a space-to-earth television press conference Astronaut William R. Pogue admitted quite frankly that at the start of the flight he "tried to operate like a machine and I was a gross failure." Not only is he now operating as a human being "within the limits I possess," but he vows his attitude toward his life and family is going to change for the better, too.

Mission commander Gerald P. Carr echoed Pogue's sentiments. He made the point that "people in our . . . very technical type of work are inclined to move along with blinders on." He feels the mission experience will increase his awareness of "what else is going on besides what I'm doing."

Edward G. Gibson, the mission scientist, had less of a personal adjustment to make, but finds the flight very fulfilling because he actually is doing the work he trained for so long and is contributing to science.

Three brilliant humans who had to leave the earth in order to discover and fulfill themselves.

I resolve...

Going through the annual breaking of New Year's resolutions? Be not dismayed. Your company is legion.

The human frailty that soon sets us stumbling from the new and noble path we have charted for ourselves—too often during the trauma of recovering from New Year's Eve—is basic and simple.

We make resolutions for the wrong reasons.

Philosopher columnist Sydney J. Harris illustrates this by recalling the old folk-saying: "The devil was sick, the devil a saint would be; the devil got well, the DEVIL a saint he'd be." We usually make resolutions to reform or repent when we are sick or tired, disgusted, fearful of mortality. Then our self-esteem regenerates itself, and our resolutions are "airily dismissed as the morbid product of a mind half off its hinges."

Harris uses a musical analogy to pinpoint the true value of resolutions. A musical "resolution," he points out is "the progression of a dissonant tone or chord to a consonant tone or chord," and this is a happy if somewhat cerebral guide to our own resolutions—make them "not as dreary things we must cling to grimly at the expense of pleasure, but as ways of resolving the dissonances in our own personality so that the 'composition' called our life may conclude in consonance."

A rather imposing standard, no? Which is why we so often fail.

Chronology of the Nixon papers

WASHINGTON — President Nixon "must have known" that a backdated deed was used to obtain his celebrated $576,000 tax deduction.

This is the statement of sources who are completely familiar with the preparation of the President's controversial tax returns.

They contend that he not only instructed his subordinates to seek the deduction but kept a sharp eye on their efforts.

The President, who specialized in tax law as a young lawyer, fully understood his tax returns before signing them, stress our sources.

Last day

If an ordinary taxpayer backdated a document to gain a half-million-dollar tax write-off, he would find himself in the soup. Most likely, he would be investigated for filing a false claim and evading taxes.

The question is whether Nixon donated his vice presidential papers before July 25, 1969. This was the last day he could take a tax deduction for the papers.

In his defense, White House loyalists insist he declared his intention to donate the papers before the deadline and left it to underlings to implement his wishes.

We have spent several weeks investigating the President's tax returns. From sources who have followed the developments closely, we can now provide the curious chronology of the Nixon Papers:

In law offices

Before Richard Nixon moved from his New York law firm to the White House, he stored all his pre-presidential papers in his law offices. He decided in December 1968 to make a tax break by donating some of the papers to the government.

Ralph Newman, an expert appraiser of historical documents, was called in from Chicago to evaluate the gift. He selected enough documents to justify the $80,000 tax deduction that Nixon wanted. Then Nixon signed over the documents to the government in a deed, which was also accepted by signature.

—Our sources say Nixon was annoyed with his former law partners over the $128,611 settlement they gave him when he left the firm. He felt they had short-changed him by not taking into account all the clients his name had drawn to the firm. Angrily, he ordered all his papers moved to the archives, which was happy to store them for him.

The deeded papers arrived on March 20, 1969. Six days later, several more dusty crates packed with papers arrived. The archives began processing the deeded papers. The rest were deposited in an area reserved for "courtesy storage."

On another floor

Ralph Newman paid a visit to the archives from April 6 to 8 to complete his appraisal of the deeded papers. Apparently, he didn't even look at the other documents, which were kept on a different floor.

—Congress voted in December 1969 to outlaw tax deductions for private papers. When the President realized what Congress was about to do, he sent his top lobbyist, Bryce Harlow, to Capitol Hill to delay the cut-off date until the end of 1969. Instead, Congress retroactively set July 25, 1969, as the deadline.

Meanwhile, Ralph Newman was summoned from Chicago again to appraise the remaining Nixon papers. He was instructed to set aside enough papers to justify a tax deduction of $500,000.

His appraisal began on Nov. 3 and was completed on Dec. 8, 1969. The following March 27, he sent the archives a complete description of the papers the President claims to have donated the previous year. The formal appraisal was drawn up on April 6, 1970, and was attached to President Nixon's tax returns, which he signed on April 10.

Backdated deed

—Based on Newman's final 1970 appraisal, the President claimed a $576,000 tax deduction. Yet no deductions were supposed to be allowed after July 5, 1969.

To get around this problem, White House aide Edward L. Morgan simply backdated the deed to March 27, 1969. This was notarized by the President's tax attorney, Frank DeMarco, who backdated his notary seal to April 21, 1969.

The backdated deed, of course, wasn't submitted to the archives until April 1970, with the phony explanation that it had been laying around DeMarco's office. The deed contained neither Nixon's signature nor the acceptance signature, which are required under government regulations.

Curiously, the deed was called back by the White House on Sept. 13, 1971. Our sources say the backdated deed was causing some nervous afterthoughts.

Back on hill

In early 1972, the President again assigned his lobbyists to try to repeal the July 25, 1969, cut-off date. This would have removed any question about the legality of the $576,000 tax deduction and the backdated deed.

A proposed bill was drafted and given to Clark MacGregor, then the chief White House lobbyist, who had no luck getting congressional support for it.

Finally, on Jan. 13, 1973, as questions were being raised about the tax deduction, the deed was returned to the archives.

FOOTNOTE: Both Morgan and DeMarco contend that the backdating of the deed was entirely proper, because it formalized what the President had wanted to do before the deadline.

PAUL HARVEY

The super-sex party is a big flop

It's what's next for swinging singles. What rock concerts have been to footloose youngsters, the super-sex party is to unattached adults. Probably there's a dating place in every town, but Barry Sax is making a big business of it.

He contracts with a whole hotel and advertises far and wide for singles to converge for a party. There's nothing illegal about it and, in his advertising, nothing immoral except by inference.

This past year one of his swinging weekends attracted an overflow 10,000 to the Hyatt Regency Hotel near Chicago's O'Hare airport.

There was rock music from six bands, a mixed sauna and swim party, four astrologers, contests with travel prizes and 70 bars in that Disneyland for adult leftovers. But despite the carnival atmosphere and the crowd, loneliness crashed the party.

If any one characteristic is common of us all, it is that we want to be where we aren't. But Stephen Lewis, author of "Sex Among the Singles," says the grass is no greener on that side.

Dr. David Reuben says, "Singles activities, like computer dating, look good on paper. It would seem that all you need do is fill a dance floor or a vacation cruise ship with 500 unattached men and women and each will find what he wants.

"But," says Reuben, "like computer dating, most singles affairs tend to attract a specific category of men and women. They turn up, the same faces attached to the same bodies, week after week, place after place in a dreary, endless search."

Rick Soll came away from Chicago's super-sex party feeling "nasty, wasted." The bash that had begun as a lark with the promise of good times in shared beds and even the possibility of meaningful contact with another human had evolved into shared loneliness instead.

But Barry Sax, the 29-year-old Canadian promoter, plans other and similar parties: "Three days in paradise for $64.00."

Few who spent three days in the cat's sandbox in Chicago will follow him elsewhere, but there are, he insists, "customers everywhere."

The supply of frustrated, fearful and lonely people is limitless, fortunately for him. Unfortunately for them, each one is seeking somebody of substance and solidity but looking in the least likely place.

Nothing was sadder to see than the hollow-eyed, middle-age men and women who left their downtown haunts to bring their hopes to Sax' circus of sex. They ended up sitting morosely in the lobby overdrinking, vindictively enjoying the problems the promoter was having cleaning up the monstrous mess and watching one another pass out.

An inflated bet

Not too many months ago, Mr. Nixon was telling the American people that he would not lead us down the road to wage and price controls, that he would see to it the budget was balanced.

But, somewhere soon after Nixon got his roads crossed up, leading us into the biggest economic rut every — money pollution to the tune of 105 billion dollars for five years in office. The Nixon team pollutes money worse than an oil spill can pollute water.

If I had to bet my inflated money on what is happening, I would bet it on the Nixon team's ability to disintegrate the dollar — in the name of a one world currency; dissolve our military capability in the name of disarmament, destroy the economy in the name of sudden food, water, paper and energy crisis, and direct the national ship into the international waters of conciliation to a one world socialist alliance in the name of "peace with honor."

It is well past time to pick out the donkey, the cart and the boy in this contrived, confusing scenery; for the fact is that spiraling government debt, and spiraling debt interest, and brazen government created shortages can be stopped if the American people understand what is happening and refuse to march off the cliff into socialism, and if we will consider our freedom worth the time to write our congressmen, who continue approving an unbalanced budget and the printing of more inflated money. What will you do to deflate the bet? — Steve Huddlestun, Ontario.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

Haig is no Haldeman

WASHINGTON — It doesn't say enough to assert that aide Alexander Haig gets less access to President Nixon than some White House watchers have imagined.

This is not really new, but informed sources stress again that Haig is not and never has been the kind of "managerial" aide that H.R. Haldeman was — with the co-equal support of former aide John Ehrlichman in many important ways.

(In this capital, incidentally, the circuit still buzzes with the notion that Haldeman continues indirectly to advise Mr. Nixon via calls to Ronald Ziegler and others.)

Ziegler, of course, acknowledged limited telephone contact. But if, as some observers of the President's establishment think, Haldeman still quietly serves today, it is at more than physical distance and thus may be severely restricted in value.

Naturally he can't issue orders to men in high station. If either Ziegler or any other Haldeman "transmitter" tries to effectuate the former chief of staff's suggestions or recommendations, casting real weight should be difficult. One source tells me he doubts Ziegler could even get through to at least one department head he knows.

However, this may be, this source thinks Mr. Nixon from an early time on allowed himself to be "crippled" by excessive dependence on the Haldeman-Ehrlichman team.

They offered him a blend of services — executing orders, managing and organizing activities, feeding in ideas from other sources — which the President plainly accepted as being performed with high competence.

They were able to do this while always avoiding the kind of tough criticism, of hard interchange, which the President inescapably equates with disloyalty. This aspect is what distinguishes them from such advertised consultative aides as Melvin Laird and, briefly, John Connally. The Haldeman-Ehrlichman manner of command, striking fear widely, made them effective as Haig is not.

Their makeup and their blend of service plus intense loyalty fit the President to perfection. He, through such heavy dependency upon them for so many things, was left free to pursue the foreign affairs functions of his job which he considers not only his special realm but the key to greatness in any president's performance.

Yet the widening judgment here is that Mr. Nixon has consistently misread both the history and the nature of the presidency, that he has given away too much in not being his own man in broader areas than foreign affairs.

Shrewdly, Haldeman and Ehrlichman made Richard Nixon, his welfare and his wishes (as they read them) their sole "project."

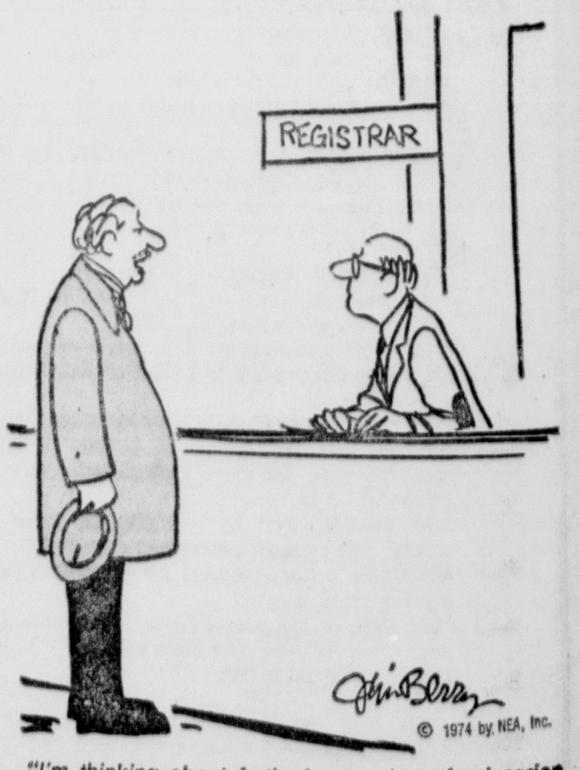

By that fact, largely conceded in their public utterance, they became his cripplers. But it takes two to tango. He let them cripple him. In his very narrow concept of the presidency, he wanted dependency upon them in large reaches of domestic affairs — obviously not excluding politics.

Personal caretakers, men who make a president or any-one else their all-consuming "project", are clearly not easy to come by. The mix of skills required is rare.

That's why Haig doesn't measure up, and why it's plausible to believe Haldeman continues — as one removed — to take a hand. But the inevitable handicaps in the present setup also explain why things are not moving smoothly in the White House.

From Mr. Nixon's view, one of the worst consequences of Watergate is that, forcing the Haldeman-Ehrlichman resignations, it exposes his self-imposed crippling — and the damage that may inflict upon the whole nation through an aftermath of fumbling.

New wing already in use at San Antonio Community Hospital

UPLAND — The first patients have been admitted into San Antonio Community Hospital's newly completed 28-bed orthopaedic unit.

The $360,000 medical-surgical wing, located on the hospital's fourth floor, provides patients with the latest in hospital equipment and facilities.

All rooms of the new wing are equipped with swing-away bedside cabinets which house electrical controls for adjusting beds, selecting channels for television, radio or closed-circuit programed music, changing lighting levels and activating a sophisticated nurse-call system.

The European-designed communication system allows personnel to be automatically informed of patient needs through special signal lights. The lights also show the location of nursing personnel by patients' room numbers.

Emergency buttons signal other staff members of the unit when extra help is needed during emergencies. A voice communication system allows uninterrupted, natural communication between patients and nurses.

In addition to the new equipment, the wing features a sun porch on its north side for use by recuperating patients.

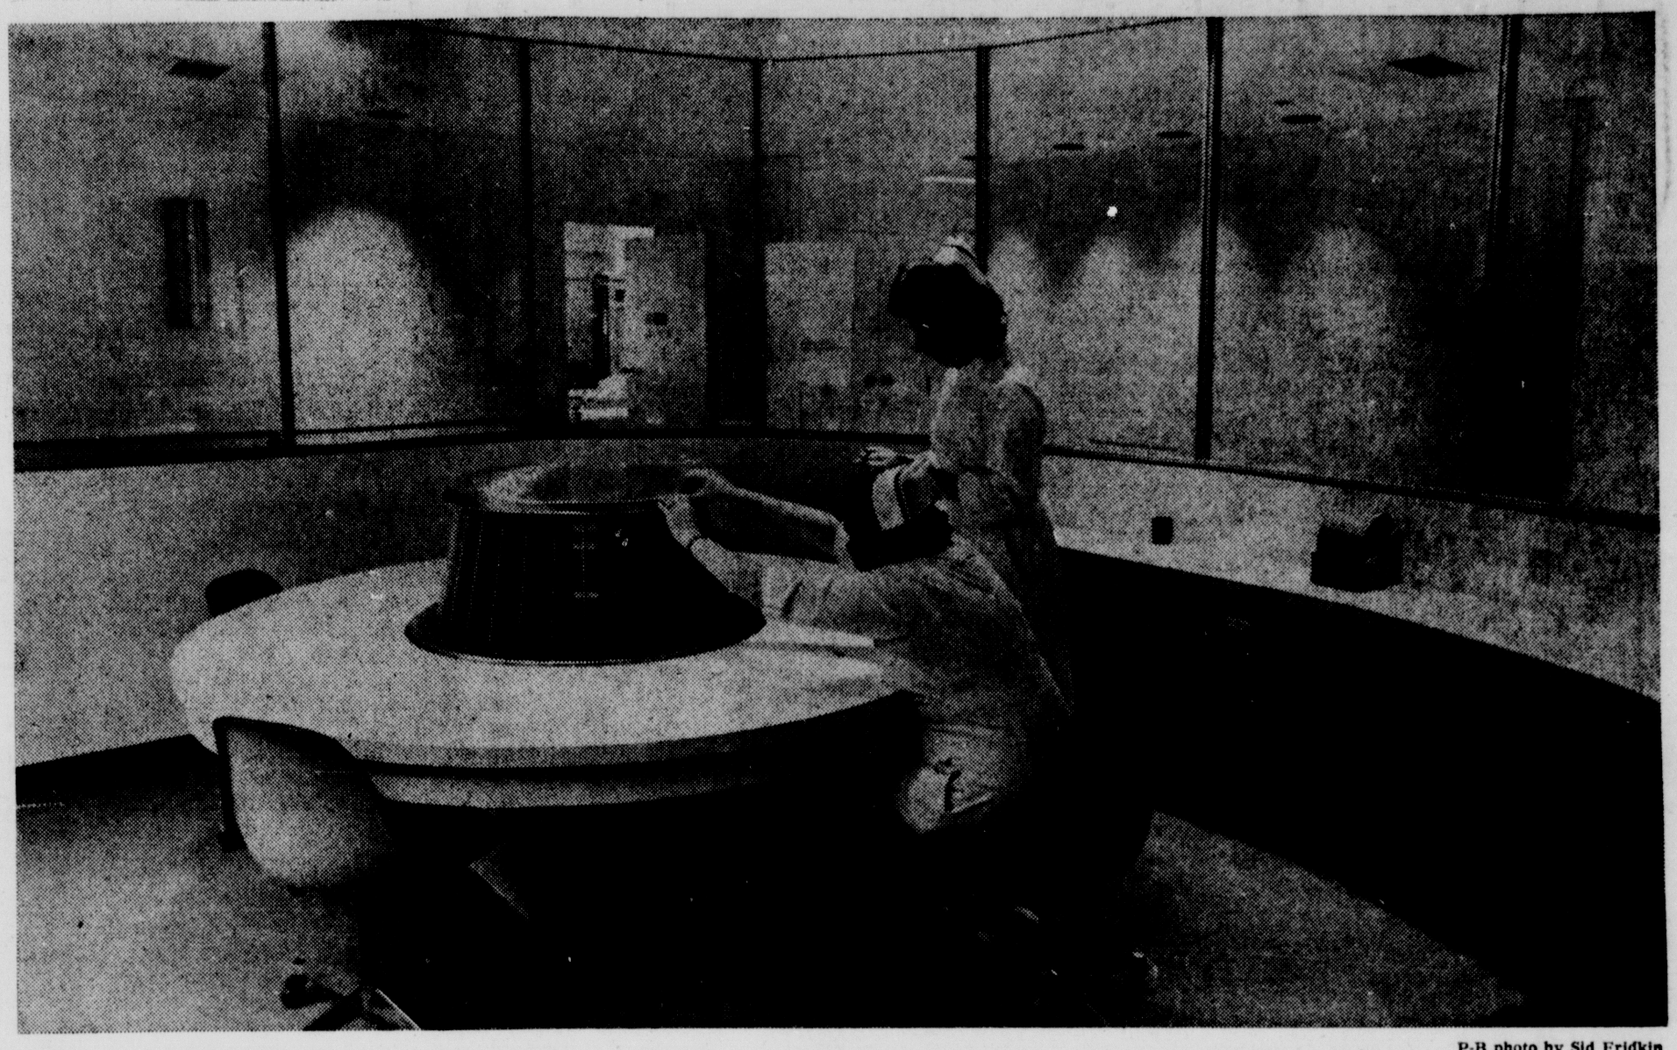

The new wing, under construction for the past 10 months, is part of the hospital's long-range $22 million construction and expansion program.

The program includes a $6 million expansion and modernization of the emergency room, pharmacy, radiology, laboratory, dental clinic, nuclear medicine and electroencephalography departments.

Additional parking space and expansion of the power plant is included in the program to be completed by spring of 1975.

An 18-bed, $1.5 million mental health unit is also scheduled for construction beginning this July.

Architects for the entire project are Harnish, Morgan and Causey of Ontario.

Upland, Ontario added to RTD 10-cent route

LOS ANGELES — Starting Monday, Feb. 4, residents of Upland and Ontario can ride Rapid Transit District Line 148, which joins the two cities, for just a dime.

The experimental 10-cent fare, requested by the city councils of both cities, will allow residents to ride any distance on the line. However, no transfers will be issued.

The reduced fare is an effort to attract more riders to the line which runs from Francis Street in Ontario to San Bernardino Road in Upland.

In addition to the fare reduction, transit officials will make a test run next week of a proposed addition to the route above Foothill Boulevard in Upland.

The additional mileage, if approved, would provide service to the residents of the Los Olivos housing project, according to Upland City Manager Elwin Alder.

The book charts the history of the colleges' growth in the last 20 years, examines the makeup of their student populations and points out the future effect the schools will produce.

Trio of W.E. communities eyes consolidation

SAN BERNARDINO (CNA) — Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda are apparently destined to unite, but it will not be a "shotgun affair."

Representatives of the three communities met with the Local Agency Formation Commission recently. They agreed in principle with procedural steps, but with a more deliberate approach than the basic proposal of one year.

One year is not sufficient to bring all the loose ends together, representatives of the communities advised the agency. One suggestion was for a five-year transition, such an allowance having previously been granted to Bloomington.

But members of the agency believed the matter could be brought to fruition within a lesser time provision, fearing that the whole situation might suffer from too much delay.

There is only a minimum of opposition in the three communities, one informal poll at a meeting showing only a scattering of dissenters from the more than 200 present.

It was suggested by one member of the agency that the time be extended to three years, but this failed to get support. An extension to five years also was questioned. The proposal for a one year provision aroused the most interest.

The consensus was that the community proceed with its work and report back to the board in a year, offering evidence that substantial progress was being made. But the representatives of the communities asked for a year's time proviso, it being agreed that further time would be granted if required.

It was acceptable to all that the entire matter be put over until the agency's Feb. 13 session.

Ontario, Upland and Fontana have expressed a desire to annex the area, but this was vigorously opposed. It was unanimously agreed by the residents of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda that preserving their identities and traditions was vital.

Speaking for the agency, chairman Walter E. Stewart expressed gratitude for the sincere efforts of the communities to bring about incorporation. Those heard for the petitioners were Stanley Prosser, Stanley Allen and Don Hansen.

With only five members present, the agency postponed action on most of its agenda until the Feb. 13 session.

A solution to 4-card major

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "In the '30s it was common practice to open one spade with a hand like the one held by South. Opener would be afraid to lose the spade suit if he didn't bid it first. This practice fell into general disrepute. People were playing too many 4-3 and even 4-2 spade fits with disastrous results."

Jim: "There seemed to be no way to handle this type of hand until Philip Flannery of Pittsburgh devised a special convention. The opening bid of two diamonds is artificial and shows five hearts, four spades and 12-16 high-card points."

Oswald: "The bid is supposedly forcing, but in today's hand responder elected to pass with a terrific match-point result."

Jim: "East and West can't get into the bidding on any sequence. North and South have no trouble making two diamonds and actually South made an overtrick after the defense started with three rounds of clubs. South won the third club in dummy; cashed his two high hearts to get rid of dummy's last club and eventually lost a trump and a spade."

Oswald: "It is possible to get to a diamond contract after South makes a normal heart opening, but in this particular field almost everyone went set at one notrump or two hearts so that the Flannery bidder nearly scored a top.

Smith Bros. Trade, Mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — The bearded Smith Brothers, whose portraits have appeared on boxes of cough drops for more than a hundred years, were the actual founders of a company based on their father's secret recipe for "a flavorsome and efficacious cough candy."

In 1866, William and Andrew Smith started the cough drop concern in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., according to Robert Marston and Associates, Inc. When their pictures first appeared on the box over the word "trademark," the printer mistakenly split the word so that William became "Trade" and Andrew "Mark."

Rattles & straws

Look, Ma! Many cavities

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

Don't you think that the cute television food commercials aimed at children are just too sweet for words?

They're not. Plenty of words are being spoken and written about the irresponsibility of food manufacturers and television stations and networks beaming at moppets bright little advertisements for candy, cookies, snacks, soft drinks, fake fruit drinks and sugared cereals.

At a recent federal hearing on children's TV advertising, Sen. George McGovern said, "At the same time the medium is subjecting the minds of our children to hundreds of hours of nutrition miseducation, it is doing virtually nothing to provide them with the fundamentals of good nutrition and good health." (Typical bleeding heart. What does he want — kids with good teeth and strong bones?

Dr. Abraham E. Nizel of the Tufts University school of dental training said, "We should ban the advertising of all sugar-sweetened products on children's television programs." (Another trouble-maker. Where would his dental school be if kids quit eating candy bars?)

One Robert Choate, a concerned citizen, last year helped set up an organization called On Second Thought in Washington, D.C., to challenge the nutritional claims of cereal manufacturers. A sort of Ralph Nader of baby teeth, he was supported by a lot of lunatic-fringe groups such as the Consumers Federation of America, the Society for Nutrition Education, and others.

The Federal Communications Commission, the most vacillating of the many government agencies supported by the taxpayer, took its customary no-action action on Choate's protest. The FCC hasn't taken a positive step since the invention of radio.

Choate sent professionally produced, illustrated, public service spot announcements aimed at improving children's eating habits to 70 television stations, asking that they be aired during the kids' TV-watching hours — 5 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. The results were predictable: 42 stations declined to state, 29 ran the announcements once. If a soft drink manufacturer will pay you $5,000 to show children a sprightly ad for teeth-rotting bubbly, why should the station run a free announcement on the virtues of an apple?

Choate got just as far in his approach to the networks — not quite to first base. They all declined. ABC said the spots raised questions of "accuracy, controversy and taste" — not like a good clean whisky advertisement. CBS whined "we do not consider commercials as 'food advice' . . . we do not consider nutrition and health broadcasts as necessary." NBC slithered off with "We are not equipped to make a scientific judgment with respect to this controversy," Beautiful.

Clearly there is no reason for television — stations or networks — to concern itself with problems of health, if they don't pay their way. The Game of the Week is one thing; children's bicuspids are quite another.

Deposits of calories like bank deposits

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB —I am an instructor of physical education, and was a student when you visited our campus. Since then I have encountered some people who have disagreed with me when I told them that eating food late at night didn't tend to make you fatter than eating the same food any time of the day. I remember you discussing this matter and explaining that it was like "putting money in the bank — not when, but how much." Could you please give me any information so I can document my statement to these disconcerting people?

DEAR READER — I am always flattered when someone remembers something I have said in a lecture. You have quoted me correctly.

I too have had an occasional person question this fact. Proving it to your hecklers is a little bit like proving that the sun comes up in the east. The statement is based on one of the most fundamentl laws of nature, the law of conservation of energy. It states, as you will find in any adequate college text of physics, "energy can neither be created nor destroyed."

A calorie is a unit of energy, described as the amount of heat energy required to raise the temperature of one gram of water one degree centigrade. Energy in our food is measured in calories. It follows that the calories in our food can neither be increased nor decreased by the time of day they are eaten, a calorie is a calorie in the morning, at noon, in the evening, at night — seven days a week, 52 weeks a year. People who do not understand this or will not accept it are ignoring the fundamental laws of nature.

This principle also applies to many diets that have been proposed. There is no magic way to defy the laws of physics. Our body is a calorie processor. We use the calories in the food we eat, or we store them as fat. Like all energy systems, it is cumulative. That means the changes in your body at the end of a day, a week or a month represent the sum total of the energy in, minus the energy used. If you eat more energy than you expend you get fat. The person who expends more energy than he eats uses the energy in the fat stores to make up the difference.

So, it doesn't make a particle of difference whether you eat 2,000 calories for breakfast and 400 calories all the rest of the day — or whether you eat only 400 calories for breakfast and 2,000 calories before going to bed. The end result is 2,400 calories in, and if you don't use that much that day the extra colories are stored in fat.

People who do eat a lot of food at night are most likely to get fat, for quite different reasons. Most people who don't get food energy during the day tend to be less active. They are not active at night either. The net result is their energy expenditure is usually (but not always) low. However, that doesn't alter the basic law of energy. These people eat more calories than they use. Until someone finds a way to circumvent the law of conservation of energy, a calorie will still be a calorie. When that law is circumvented, look carefully to the west in the morning, you may see the sun rising in the west after all.

Careers at stake in Super Fight II

NEW YORK (UPI) — Unlike Super Fight I of three years ago, no title will be at stake for Super Fight II tonight when Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier meet in a 12-round match . . . only the boxing careers of the two men who have dominated the sport the last 10 years.

A shot at the heavyweight crown, currently held by George Foreman, awaits the winner.

Oblivion, but hardly on a pauper's scale, beckons the loser.

For sheer ability, drama and excitement, both inside the ring and out, the son of Super Fight must rate a poor second to the orginal but a sellout throng of 20,000 "beautiful people" contributing to a $1 million "live" gate will be on hand at Madison Square Garden for the event.

Ali and Frazier have been guaranteed $850,000 each against 32 ½ percent of all rights, including theater television. The bout will be shown on theater TV in some 50 countries with approximately 1.8 million seats available in U.S. and Canadian theaters. With the promoters expecting to gross between $17 million and $18 million for the TV rights, Ali and Frazier stand to collect about $2.5 million apiece.

Fight fans in European countries will remain awake into the early morning hours to watch the fight while most of the new African nations will receive the bout, as will most Middle East countries, Japan and Hong Kong.

Ticket prices for Madison Square Garden were scaled from $100 down to $20 but scalpers are reported to be getting from $150 to $200 a seat for choice locations. The gate will be an indoor record for a non-title fight.

It's only one month shy of 10 years since Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, took the heavyweight title from the late Sonny Liston at Miami. At 32, Ali is more than a step slower than he was during his prime but the oddsmakers have made him an 8-5 favorite to avenge the loss he suffered to Frazier via a 15-round unanimous decision on March 8, 1971.

At Sunday's televised weigh-in, in which precautions were taken that the two fighters would not meet face-to-face, an unusually subdued Ali scaled 212 pounds, three less than he weighed for Super Fight I.

Frazier, two years younger than his opponent, tipped the scales at 209, 3 ½ pounds more than three years ago but more importantly, five less than one year ago when, admittedly flabby and out of shape, he was knocked out in the second round by Foreman in Kingston, Jamaica.

Ali and Frazier were kept apart and security at the weigh-in was super tight to prevent any reoccurrence of last week's impromptu "wrestling" match between the two at a taping of a television show. For their actions, Frazier, who admitted he "lost my cool" and Ali were each fined $5,000 by the New York State Athletic Commission for "conduct demeaning to boxing" and were threatened with similar punishment should they tangle again before meeting in the ring.

Frazier, when asked if he would win by a knockout or decision, refused to make a prediction except to say, "I'll be around for the 12 rounds. I ain't going any place."

★ ★ ★

"Joe's nervous, flighty, fidgety, I'm the stronger man," Ali boasted, "Look at my weight. I'm exactly what I said I would be. This will be no contest. I'm gonna be so fast in the first round that those people who bet on Frazier will have time to change their bets. I won't predict how it'll end, but I'm not gonna make the mistakes of the first fight. I'm gonna dance, dance, dance."

Bruins turn attention to archrival Trojans

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — With the business of who's No. 1 in the nation behind them, UCLA's mighty Bruins return to the subject of the Pacific-8 basketball race and archrival University of Southern California.

"Right now," said John Wooden, "USC is the most important game on our schedule."

The Bruins, who took apart Notre Dame 94-75 during the weekend to end the Irish's one-week reign as the country's top collegiate hoop team, are at home to the 14-2 Trojans Saturday night.

Interestingly, UCLA, which will return to No. 1 in national ratings this week, isn't No. 1 in its own conference.

Oregon leads the Pac-8 with a 5-0 record followed by UCLA (4-0) and USC (3-1).

The Bruins may be feeling their muscles after smashing Notre Dame but the old master, Wooden, will be sure to remind them of a statistic this week.

In nine seasons at Pauley Pavilion, the Bruins have won 128 games and lost twice. The two losses? To USC, naturally.

Bill Walton played as if he had a personal score to settle with the Irish, the team that ended UCLA's NCAA record 88-game winning streak.

He poured in 32 points and pulled down 11 rebounds, hitting 16 of 19 shots against 6-9 Notre Dame center John Shumate.

"The real Bill Walton is back," explained Wooden, "and that makes an obvious difference."

In the first Nore Dame game, won by the Irish 71-70, the 6-11 redhead from La Mesa, Calif., was coming off a three-game layoff because of an injured back.

"It was simply a matter of Bill lacking conditioning because he missed so much playing time," the 26-year UCLA coach explained. "He's in top shape now, though."

Wooden denied his two-time All-America center played the Notre Dame rematch as if he was on a vendetta.

"No, I don't believe he did," he said. "Bill's not that kind of person."

UCLA, now 15-1, has 10 games remaining, all league contests. After USC, the Bruins are home the following weekend against Oregon and Oregon State.

Notre Dame takes a 12-1 record into a Tuesday night game at South Bend, Ind., against Marquette.

West not satisfied after Lakers' win

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

INGLEWOOD — Everyone agreed that Jerry West played a good game . . . except Jerry West.

The 35 (he'll be 36 in May) year old Laker guard made his first start since Dec. 11. Still troubled by the pulled groin muscle that has bothered him for six weeks now, he appeared to be quicker than he has been at any time since returning to action.

West played 31 of a possible 48 minutes. He scored 18 points, the same as Gail Goodrich, got six rebounds and four assists and was credited with two steals as the Lakers defeated the crippled Milwaukee Bucks Sunday night at the Forum, 99-92.

The Bucks were without the services of Lucius Allen, Mickey Davis, Dick Cunningham, and Russell Lee. And Oscar Robertson is playing injured ala West.

Coach Bill Sharman said, "Number 44 (West) played the best game since he came back to the lineup. It looked to me like he had good quickness and penetrated very well."

Jim Price, who replaced West while the veteran guard was out, also played 31 minutes (Goodrich played 35) and led the Lakers in scoring with 20 points.

Price said, "I think it helped him (West) to start. He was warmed up and loose. It's probably harder for him to come off the bench cold. He really helped us out there."

But West, who probably sets the highest standards of personal excellence of any professional athlete, sharply disagreed.

"I thought I was lousy," he told writers as he sat on the training table as trainer Frank O'Neill worked on him.

"I don't know," he continued, "I just don't feel like I'm doing enough things in the game. I'm just not able to play. I made mistakes. I used bad judgment."

Nor would the 14-year veteran use his injury as an excuse. "It shouldn't make any difference whether I start or don't start," he muttered. "I think the only advantage to starting is that I'm warm.

"It takes an awful lot to satisfy me and it's hard to accept anything less than those standards," he continued. "I felt quicker the last two or three games, but I didn't have control of myself. Two or three times I did the right thing (mentally) but ended up doing the wrong thing."

Five West passes went astray in the game which contributed to the Lakers' usual turnover trouble (19).

"I didn't think I would get as tired (as quickly) as I do," he admitted. "I'm not 100 percent. I tried two or three times to go to the basket and couldn't."

All of which does nothing to dispell repeated rumors that the all-time great will soon announce his retirement.

Sharman, as does almost everyone connected with the organization, devoutly hopes West will continue playing.

"I want to start him every game and will do so unless he asks me not to," said the Laker coach. "I feel he can play another two years. In some ways you are better at 35. But he's such a great player and has had such great success that he can't stand not meeting his standards."

SAL turning into runaway after upsets

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

What was figured to be a close and interesting race is now turning into a two-team runaway in the San Antonio League.

It's not a surprise that one of the two teams is till in the running for the 1974 SAL championship. Ganesha, favored to capture this year's title, is still unbeaten in league action (6-0) and holds a one-game lead over the second place team — the Montclair Cavaliers.

It is a surprise that the Cavs are where they are in the standings. Montclair entered league play with a 5-7 record three weeks ago, and now has a five-game winning streak tucked under its belt.

So where is the rest of the field?

Three teams (Claremont, Chino and Garey) are lagging two games behind the Cavaliers and three games behind Ganesha. Two more teams (Pomona and Upland) are four games off the Giants' league-leading pace.

It's not much of a race right now.

The eight SAL teams will close out the first round of league play Tuesday afternoon, and will prepare to jump into the second round of action next Friday night. Hopefully the second time around will be a little more exciting.

You can't say the first round lacked interesting qualities, though.

The fact that Montclair is presently in second place is interesting, and the disappointing starts for Claremont and Chino also proved to be unpredictable.

The Wolfpack, once ranked third in CIF this season after entering league play with a 12-1 record, Tuesday will host the Cowboys from Chino, once ranked sixth in the CIF ratings.

At the beginning of SAL play this game would have been one of the biggies of the season, but now it's just a game.

Nichols better than '64?

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — His blond hair is getting thinner, lines mark his face near the eyes and his putting isn't as good as he'd like it to be. But Bobby Nichols probably is a better player today at 38 than he was 10 years ago when he won the PGA championship.

He showed how good Sunday when he played consistently while all around him crumbled except Gene Littler, and when it was all over Nichols was the winner by a stroke of the $34,000 top prize and a $5,000 automobile in the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open.

"Winning feels better as you get older," said Nichols," but it doesn't come any easier. I don't putt as well as I used to and you could say it is due to nerves, but my all-around play is better."

Nichols closed with a three-under 69 and had a 72-hole score of 13 under par 275. That was good enough for a one-stroke victory over the veteran Littler, who had a finishing 66 on his home course, and Rod Curl, the likeable Wintu Indian from Redding, Calif., who scrambled to a 70. Second place money was worth $15,725 to Littler and Curl.

Nichols thus becomes the only other champion of 1974 besides Johnny Miller, who didn't play in the Williams event after winning the Crosby National Pro-Am and the Phoenix and Tucson Opens on successive weeks to launch the 1974 tour.

This week the pros move on to Honolulu for the Hawaiian Open and Nichols will be there along with Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Miller. Nichols who hadn't planned on playing all the events on the winter schedule, changed his mind in a hurry after winning the Williams.

"I'll play all the others," he said, meaning he'll go to Palm Springs, Calif., for the Desert Classic next week and the Glenn Campbell-Los Angeles open a week later.

Curl, who started the final round here tied for the lead with Nichols, played well on the front nine at Torrey Pines on a summer-like day that attracted 25,000 fans and pushed the week's total to 82,000.

But his game started to come apart on the backside. He took a bogey on the 10th when he made a bad wedge shot and missed a five foot putt, recovered with birds at 13 and 15, but bogied the par-four 17th and missed a six-foot putt on 18 that would have tied him with Nichols and set up sudden death.

Cook thinks fuel limit will alter California 500

ONTARIO — Rules limiting the amount of fuel U.S. Auto Club championship cars may burn this year go into effect with the California 500 March 10.

"It's going to alter the strategy of the California 500 drastically," said Speedway General Manager Jim Cook.

"Before the cars could go the distance by averaging 1.4 miles per gallon. Now they'll have to get 1.8 miles a gallon to make it."

An allocation formula established by USAC restricts the amount of Methanol each car may use during practice, qualifying and race activity.

The Cal 500 kicks off the nine-event 1974 championship car schedule.

At Ontario, the first of three 500-milers this year, the cars will be limited to 200 gallons each for practice, 30 for time trials, 57 for the 100-mile qualifying races and 280 for the race.

"We feel," added Cook, "This will make the race more competitive than it has ever been before. There will be less engine strain on the engines. That . . . . should keep more cars running longer."

Now in its fifth year here, the Cal 500 has previously been held on Labor Day weekend.

USAC's allocation standards will reduce total fuel consumption for the nine events by approximately 30 per cent, cutting the fuel used at Ontario from 154,740 to 108,800 gallons.

Kings feel future schedule helps their playoff chances

INGLEWOOD, Calif (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings, who won only five games in the first two months of the season, are positive they're going to make the playoffs for the first time in five seasons.

The reason: The schedule.

Although they lost 5-3 to the Rangers at New York Sunday night, the Kings find themselves in fifth place and only two points behind fourth-place Atlanta in the NHL West.

The Kings have 30 games left and 19 of them are at home. In March, they're at home 11 times and on the road only twice.

Bob Berry will be Los Angeles' lone representative in the NHL All-Star game at Chicago Tuesday.

Juha Widing scored two goals and Dan Maloney one in the Kings' first loss in four games against the Rangers this season.

For Widing, the highest scoring King in history, the goals were his 14th and 15th of the season.

Ex-King Ted Irvine scored a pair of goals and added an assist for New York, which now has won five games and tied one since Emile Francis returned as coach seven games ago.

"Los Angeles has been playing real good against us this year," said Irvine. "They sit back, something like Chicago, and wait for the break."

The Kings don't play until Thursday night when they host the New York Islanders. They're at home against California Saturday night.

Drag races get underway Friday despite energy crisis

POMONA — Despite the energy crisis, the National Hot Rod Association's 1974 drag racing season of national events will open on a healthy note Friday.

Prize money of $281,700 has been posted for the 14th Annual Winternationals, the season's tradition curtain raiser at the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds here.

The purse is part of more than $2 million that will be awarded in the NHRA's eight national events.

"We view it as a healthy outlook for '74," said NHRA President Wally Parks.

"The energy crisis has caused a great deal of concern in some areas but it hasn't reduced drag racing's appeal as a sport and showcase. More than 50 product lines will be represented among awards sponsors at the Winternationals."

In addition to the continued big money offered, no reduction in entries is expected. Some 700 are anticipated, with the biggest share coming from the West Coast.

The Winternationals get under way with a full day of qualifying and class eliminations leading up to the Sunday finals. The finals feature championships in eight separate eleminator categories.

Sanderson out of Boston lineup

BOSTON (UPI) — The Boston Bruins said Sunday that center Derek Sanderson will be out of action four to six weeks with a broken left foot.

Sanderson suffered the injury Saturday night against the New York Islanders when he stopped a Brian Spencer shot with his skate.

Ashe defeated in Philly

Laver does it again

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — "I think his record against me is about 1,000 to one," said Arthur Ashe. "I think I beat him once in an exhibition. All I know is that when they give out the money at the end of the tournament, it seems his total always has one more zero at the end."

Ashe was referring to Australian Rod Laver who handily defeated him 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the $100,000 U.S. pro Indoor tennis championships before 12,466 at The Spectrum.

The 34-year-old Laver, who has beaten Ashe 16 consecutive times, earned $15,000 for winning the first tournament on the World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour. Ashe, 30, took home $7,000 for finishing second in the 84-player field.

Laver maintained it's a mystery to him how he sustains his mastery over Ashe.

"There's no reason at all,' the red-headed lefthander said. "Anybody can win. We both play a serve and volley game.

"This was the best tennis we've played together. Arthur serves extremely well and I was lucky to get him a lot of his serves. He missed some volleys that hurt him."

Ashe concurred with his opponent.

"Whenever I lose a match,' he said, "it's usually because I miss some volleys and today I did miss some forehand volleys."

Laver, who was seeded sixth, took advantage of Ashe's early problems to break his service in the fourth and sixth games and win the first set easily, 6-1.

Having gained the momentum, Laver also took the second set 6-4 after breaking Ashe's service in the seventh game.

While Ashe, seeded eighth, was struggling with his forehand, Laver was using his forehand and backhand to drive effective passing shots down the lines.

"Laver's a helluva man to play," said Ashe. "It's always tough playing against a lefthander in the early part of the match."

Lakers nip Milwaukee

The game, a crowd pleaser from the outset, was close all the way. The lead changed hands 18 times. The score was tied 13 times. Sixteen times the Lakers led by two points or less. The Bucks led by two points or less 29 times.

The Lakers finally caught Milwaukee for the last time, 89-89, on Price's layin with 4:26 left in the game. The Bucks had scored their 88th and 89 points on Oscar Robertson's layin with 5:14 remaining.

The only points the Bucks scored in the last 5:14 were on Curtis Perry's 22-foot jumper on which he was fouled by Price and made it a three-point play.

That came with just 41 seconds left in the game and the Lakers holding a 97-89 lead.

The Lakers are off until Friday when they host Phoenix.

Sharks begin road trip with 6-3 victory

CHERRY HILL, N..J (UPI) — The Los Angeles Sharks started off their five game eastern road swing with a 6-3 victory Sunday over the Jersey Knights in a World Hockey Association game.

Jersey got two early goals off former teammate Jim McLeod, traded recently to the Sharks, but were unable to hold off the fast skating visitors as Los Angeles scored three first period goals to lead 3-2 after one period.

The teams traded goals in the second period and Jersey seemed to pick up momentum late in the third session.

But a third period goal by Alton White off a deflection from a Hall Willis blue line shot and a late goal on a breakaway by rookie Reg Thomas sealed the Knights' fate.

A brawl at the conclusion of the first period between the Knights' Kevin Morrison and the Sharks' Jim Neikamp and other shoving matches enlivened the action.

The Knights are now 8-4 since their move from New York.

Aaron sets record straight

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Henry Aaron said Sunday night that the bats and baseballs he uses to surpass Babe Ruth's home run record will definitely be given to the baseball Hall of Fame, and what's more the sport has taken special precautions to assure that the balls are the correct ones.

There had been some controversy last week when Aaron signed a $1 million contract with Magnavox and some sources said the balls and bats used in the record-tying and setting would be given to the electronics firm.

"I want to set the record straight," Aaron said. "Magnavox will be able to use the balls and bats in promotions for two or three years and after that they're my personal possessions and I will send them to Cooperstown."

Aaron also said that there is no way someone could present an official national league baseball to him and claim it was the one he had hit. National League umpire Bruce Froemming confirmed that the umpires are given special baseballs to use every time Aaron steps to the plate.

"They have special markings on them which show up only under a special light," Froemming said. "The markings are changed so that control can be maintained and an accurate record is kept of each home run ball Aaron hits."

Froemming said the special balls had been used since the time of Aaron's 700th home run last season.

Aaron was in Milwaukee to receive a special "Super Star" award from the Milwaukee baseball writers. A sell-out crowd of more than 900 was in attendance and the three standing ovations during the course of the writers 21st annual Diamond Dinner.

Aaron needs only one home run to tie the career record of 714 set by Babe Ruth and he expects to get it sometime in April.

Maxine Mitchell wins tourney

MONTCLAIR — The Third Annual Maxine Mitchell Woman's Fencing Tourney sponsored by the West End Fencing Club was held Sunday at Montclair High, and fittingly enough Maxine Mitchell was the winner of the day-long event.

Ms. Mitchell edged Annette Crowe and Sue McCourt in a three-way fence-off for the winner's trophy. Elisa Brown finished in fourth place.

It marked the second time in three years that Ms. Mitchell had won her namesake tourney.

ANAHEIM — Angels 20-game winner Bill Singer has been selected as the Outstanding Sportsman of 1973 by the Westwood Shrine Club and will be honored at a dinner at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, Wednesday, Feb. 13.

Sam Jacoby, president of the Westwood Shrine Club, announced the award on behalf of the officers and board of directors.

"Bill was chosen for best representing the Shrine spirit and credo of 'strong legs run so that weak ones may walk," said Jacoby.

USC switches grid dates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's football game with Oregon State this year has been switched from Sept. 21 to Oct. 26, Trojan Coach John McKay announced Thursday.

McKay, also the USC athletic director, said the 1975 game with the Beavers has been moved from Corvallis, Ore., to Los Angeles, because the Coliseum has a larger seating capacity.

"By playing in Los Angeles, each team should gross an additional $60,000 per game," McKay said.

This season's USC-Oregon State game was changed so the Beavers could fit a game with Ohio State at Columbus into the Sept. 21 date. USC was originally scheduled to be idle on Oct. 26.

The Trojans' 11-game 1974 schedule includes seven home games, all to be played during the daytime. The Trojans open their season Sept. 11 at Arkansas and finish at home against Notre Dame Nov.

Data sinks putt to make finals

PORT ST. Lucie, Fla. (UPI) — Joe Data sank a 35-foot putt on the 18th hole Sunday to clinch a place in the finals of the $13,000 PGA match play championship.

The 28-year-old assistant pro from Deepwater, N. J. defeated Stan Bryon of West Palm Beach, Fla., one-up in semifinal play Sunday at the St. Lucie Country Club.

Data will square off against Dennis Tiziani in Monday's 36-hole final match for the $1,900 first prize money.

Tisiani, of Madison, Wis., beat Dennis Bradley, of Pittsford, N. P., one-up during the semifinals of the five-day tourney.

THE INTERNATIONAL Lawn Tennis Federation has extended the olive branch to the new World Team Tennis league and the new league's president says peace may be in the offing.

Freed leads MSAC alumni to victory

WALNUT — Led by major leaguer Roger Freed, the alumni defeated the varsity 3-2 Sunday in the Fifth Annual Mt. San Antonio College Alumni baseball game sponsored by the MSAC Community Services.

The alumni started in a hurry against varsity hurler Pat Corcoran in the top of the first, as ex-Mounties Jeff Stout and Craig Barnes singled. Freed followed with a booming double to center, scoring Stout and sending Barnes to third. Barnes then tallied as Corcoran uncorked a wild pitch.

After the varsity had gotten one run back in the bottom of the second, the alumni scored what proved to be the winning tally in the top of the third.

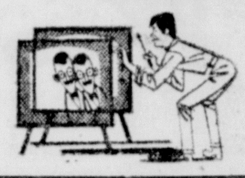

Jim Ramos reached first on a walk, swiped second, raced to third on a flyout, and scored on an overthrow.

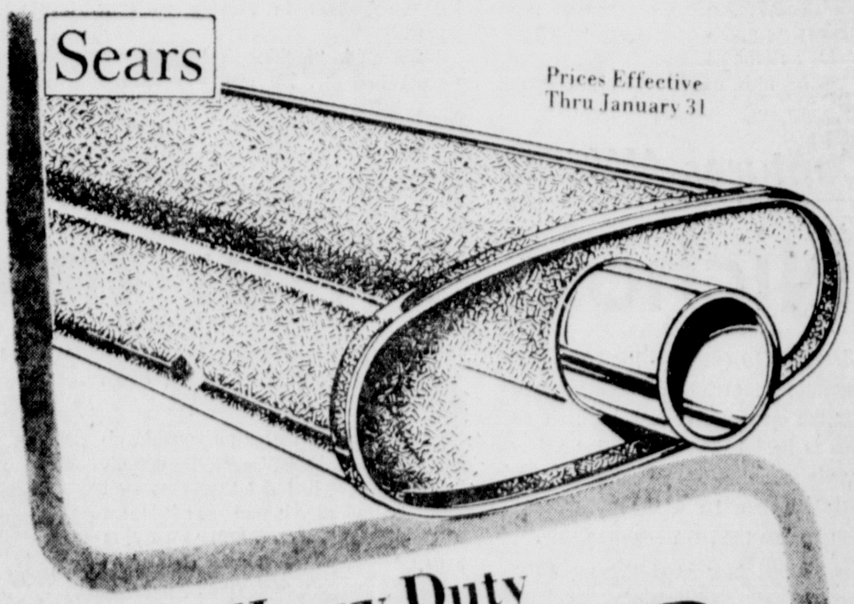

The varsity scored their final run in the fourth, as Jeff Corkill tripled and scored on an error. They made a couple other challenges to the alumni, but steady pitching and a couple of stellar defensive plays by alumni rightfielder Gus Rubio kept the score at 3-2.

"Broadway Bryon" Jaffee, Coley Smith, Bob Manning, and Dan Drake all hurled scoreless innings for the alumni, while Guy Freeland picked up the win by pitching the third and fourth frames.

Corcoran was the only varsity player with more than one hit, as he collected two of their five safetys. Barnes, a performer on last season's champion USC squad, had a single and a double for the alumni.

Regular season play begins Feb. 5 for MSAC when they travel to Rio Hondo.

Milton Richman

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — You've heard of guys leaving their fight in the gym or in the dressing room, but when is the last time you ever heard of one leaving it in a TV studio?

Joe Frazier may have left his there last week.

I have the distinct feeling he did.

There are some things in this world you simply can't run away from, one of them being Muhammad Ali's lightning quick left hand and the other his mouth, and it strikes me Joe Frazier is about to find that out tonight when the Madison Square Garden house lights dim, the bell sounds for round one and he's in there all alone with the one man he'd love to grind into little pieces—but can't.

This fight, like most others, figures to be settled on condition.

Physically, there isn't a lot to choose between the 32-year-old Ali and the 30-year-old Frazier. Both have worked slavishly to get themselves back to where they were at 25 and have succeeded to a miraculous degree within the limitations of nature.

Emotionally, though, it's an entirely different story.

Muhammad Ali's head is on straight. He knows precisely what he has to do and the best way to do it. With Joe Frazier it's something else again.

The feeling I get is that he still hasn't swept that terrible beating he took from George Foreman out of his mind. The feeling I get is he was further embarrassed by what happened when he allowed Ali to goad him into Wednesday's episode in that television studio.

The feeling I also get is that Muhammad Ali will be about as superior to Joe Frazier tonight as Miami was to Minnesota in the Super Bowl two weeks back, and that it'll be all over by the sixth round, maybe earlier, with Frazier's handlers huddling anxiously over him and the referee holding Ali's hand aloft.

Kidding with Ali a few days ago, Frazier asked him whether he learned anything by looking at the film of their first fight three years ago.

Ali didn't answer directly, but the fact is he has learned a great many things about Frazier.

He learned Smoking Joe doesn't always smoke. For all his aggressiveness, Frazier goes into leg-weary "slumps" along the way. Along with that, he's even easier to hit than Ali imagined and then one other thing—a little detail which could turn out to be the key in tonight's contest—Joe Frazier is, so naturally aggressive, he's always going forward that he doesn't know how to move back!

Had he been able to do so, had he been capable of covering up and backpedaling, he might've lasted longer with George Foreman.

Getting back to Wednesday's brawl in the studio, though, one good laugh did come out of it, I think, in light of those $5,000 fines plastered upon both Ali and Frazier by Edwin B. Dooley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

One of the reasons for the fines, Dooley explained with a perfectly straight face, was because the two fighters "demeaned the sport of boxing."

Now, I ask you, how could anyone possibly demean boxing?

Something else puzzles me, too. Virtually everyone who witnessed the Wednesday flare-up between Ali and Frazier agreed it was no phony, it was authentic enough so that either one of the fighters could have broken a vertebra in his back while falling off the wooden platform they started on.

Only those who weren't there insisted it was a put-up job. They didn't see it, but somehow they knew it was contrived.

What these skeptics really show is that they don't know Joe Frazier. Muhammad Ali will do anything for a prank, a gag or a gimmick. Joe Frazier won't. He'd never premeditatedly be a part of any stunt like Wednesday's—first because it goes against his basic thinking and second because he doesn't have the imaginativeness to think up something like that on impulse.

That's why he was embarrassed about the whole thing later. That's why he apologized, and that's why I think it did something to his confidence.

All those who are so sure Joe Frazier was "play acting" Wednesday remind me of that Aesop's fable in which an entertainer goes up on a stage and imitates the squeal of a pig so faithfully that the audience applauds him enthusiastically.

Then an amateur walks up and offers a similar performance but his showing is deemed so poor, the crowd hoots him off the stage. Before leaving though, he pulls his coat open and shows he has a real pig under it which he has been pinching.

Aesop said the moral of all this is that critics are not always to be depended upon. Another way of saying that is sometimes people don't even recognize the truth when it's right there in front of them.

Cale, Junior feel it will be big year

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough and Junior Johnson think 1974 is going to be a big year for them.

The driver-owner team may be right, too.

Runner-up to Benny Parsons in the NASCAR Grand National point standings last year, Yarborough won the season's stock car inaugural Saturday— the rain-delayed Winston Western 500.

Scoring his first victory ever in a road race, the 34-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran won by 3.06 seconds over Mr. Stock Car Racing himself, Richard Petty.

"I could see Richard in my mirror," said Yarborough. "But I didn't know whether to worry more about him or running out of gas.

"I knew I could run fast enough to keep ahead of him but that meant using up fuel faster and I might have run out. But things worked out."

Driving Junior Johnson's 1973 Chevrolet, Yarborough did run out of gas right after the finish and had to be pushed into the winner's circle.

Saturday's race was only 335 miles. The event was halted by rain the previous weekend after 165 miles.

Yarborough won first prize money of $15,425 in the $103,000 race.

Following Petty, of Randleman, N.C., across the finish line, in order, were David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C.; Parsons, Ellerbe, N.C., and Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala.

The next event on the Grand National schedule is the Daytona 500 Feb. 17. That race has been cut to 450 miles this year because of the energy crisis.

Ashe defeated in Philly

Laver does it again

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — "I think his record against me is about 1,000 to one," said Arthur Ashe. "I think I beat him once in an exhibition. All I know is that when they give out the money at the end of the tournament, it seems his total always has one more zero at the end."

Ashe was referring to Australian Rod Laver who handily defeated him 6-1, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4 Sunday to win the $100,000 U.S. pro Indoor tennis championships before 12,466 at The Spectrum.

The 34-year-old Laver, who has beaten Ashe 16 consecutive times, earned $15,000 for winning the first tournament on the World Championship of Tennis (WCT) tour. Ashe, 30, took home $7,000 for finishing second in the 84-player field.

Laver maintained it's a mystery to him how he sustains his mastery over Ashe.

"There's no reason at all," the red-headed lefthander said. "Anybody can win. We both play a serve and volley game.

"This was the best tennis we've played together. Arthur serves extremely well and I was lucky to get him a lot of his serves. He missed some volleys that hurt him."

Ashe concurred with his opponent.

"Whenever I lose a match," he said, "it's usually because I miss some volleys and today I did miss some forehand volleys."

Laver, who was seeded sixth, took advantage of Ashe's early problems to break his service in the fourth and sixth games and win the first set easily, 6-1.

Having gained the momentum, Laver also took the second set 6-4 after breaking Ashe's service in the seventh game.

While Ashe, seeded eighth, was struggling with his forehand, Laver was using his forehand and backhand to drive effective passing shots down the lines.

"Laver's a helluva man to play," said Ashe. "It's always tough playing against a lefthander in the early part of the match."

Lakers nip Milwaukee

The game, a crowd pleaser from the outset, was close all the way. The lead changed hands 18 times. The score was tied 13 times. Sixteen times the Lakers led by two points or less. The Bucks led by two points or less 29 times.

The Lakers finally caught Milwaukee for the last time, 89-89, on Price's layin with 4:26 left in the game. The Bucks had scored their 88th and 89 points on Oscar Robertson's layin with 5:14 remaining.

The only points the Bucks scored in the last 5:14 were on Curtis Perry's 22-foot jumper on which he was fouled by Price and made it a three-point play.

That came with just 41 seconds left in the game and the Lakers holding a 97-89 lead.

The Lakers are off until Friday when they host Phoenix.

Sharks begin road trip with 6-3 victory

CHERRY HILL, N..J (UPI) — The Los Angeles Sharks started off their five game eastern road swing with a 6-3 victory Sunday over the Jersey Knights in a World Hockey Association game.

Jersey got two early goals off former teammate Jim McLeod, traded recently to the Sharks, but were unable to hold off the fast skating visitors as Los Angeles scored three first period goals to lead 3-2 after one period.

The teams traded goals in the second period and Jersey seemed to pick up momentum late in the third session.

But a third period goal by Alton White off a deflection from a Hall Willis blue line shot and a late goal on a breakaway by rookie Reg Thomas sealed the Knights' fate.

A brawl at the conclusion of the first period between the Knights' Kevin Morrison and the Sharks' Jim Neikamp and other shoving matches enlivened the action.

The Knights are now 8-4 since their move from New York.

Equipment will go to Hall

Aaron sets record straight

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI) — Henry Aaron said Sunday night that the bats and baseballs he uses to surpass Babe Ruth's home run record will definitely be given to the baseball Hall of Fame, and what's more the sport has taken special precautions to assure that the balls are the correct ones.

There had been some controversy last week when Aaron signed a $1 million contract with Magnavox and some sources said the balls and bats used in the recordtying and setting would be given to the electronics firm.

"I want to set the record straight," Aaron said. "Magnavox will be able to use the balls and bats in promotions for two or three years and after that they're my personal possessions and I will send them to Cooperstown."

Aaron also said that there is no way someone could present an official national league baseball to him and claim it was the one he had hit. National League umpire Bruce Froemming confirmed that the umpires are given special baseballs to use every time Aaron steps to the plate.

"They have special markings on them which show up only under a special light," Froemming said. "The markings are changed so that control can be maintained and an accurate record is kept of each home run ball Aaron hits."

Froemming said the special balls had been used since the time of Aaron's 700th home run last season.

Aaron was in Milwaukee to receive a special "Super Star" award from the Milwaukee baseball writers. A sell-out crowd of more than 900 was in attendance and the three standing ovations during the course of the writers' 21st annual Diamond Dinner.

Aaron needs only one home run to tie the career record of 714 set by Babe Ruth and he expects to get it sometime in April.

Maxine Mitchell wins tourney

MONTCLAIR — The Third Annual Maxine Mitchell Woman's Fencing Tourney sponsored by the West End Fencing Club was held Sunday at Montclair High, and fittingly enough Maxine Mitchell was the winner of the day-long event.

Ms. Mitchell edged Annette Crowe and Sue McCourt in a three-way fence-off for the winner's trophy. Elisa Brown finished in fourth place.

It marked the second time in three years that Ms. Mitchell had won her namesake tourney.

Freed leads MSAC alumni to victory

WALNUT — Led by major leaguer Roger Freed, the alumni defeated the varsity 3-2 Sunday in the Fifth Annual Mt. San Antonio College Alumni baseball game sponsored by the MSAC Community Services.

The alumni started in a hurry against varsity hurler Pat Corcoran in the top of the first, as ex-Mounties Jeff Stout and Craig Barnes singled. Freed followed with a booming double to center, scoring Stout and sending Barnes to third. Barnes then tallied as Corcoran uncorked a wild pitch.

After the varsity had gotten one run back in the bottom of the second, the alumni scored what proved to be the winning tally in the top of the third.

Jim Ramos reached first on a walk, swiped second, raced to third on a flyout, and scored on an overthrow.

The varsity scored their final run in the fourth, as Jeff Corkill tripled and scored on an error. They made a couple other challenges to the alumni, but steady pitching and a couple of stellar defensive plays by alumni rightfielder Gus Rubio kept the score at 3-2.

"Broadway Bryon" Jaffee, Coley Smith, Bob Manning, and Dan Drake all hurled scoreless innings for the alumni, while Guy Freeland picked up the win by pitching the third and fourth frames.

Corcoran was the only varsity player with more than one hit, as he collected two of their five safetys. Barnes, a performer on last season's champion USC squad, had a single and a double for the alumni.

Regular season play begins Feb. 5 for MSAC when they travel to Rio Hondo.

Data sinks putt to make finals

PORT ST. Lucie, Fla. (UPI) — Joe Data sank a 35-foot putt on the 18th hole Sunday to clinch a place in the finals of the $13,000 PGA match play championship.

The 28-year-old assistant pro from Deepwater, N. J. defeated Stan Bryon of West Palm Beach, Fla., one-up in semifinal play Sunday at the St. Lucie Country Club.

Data will square off against Dennis Tiziani in Monday's 36-hole final match for the $1,900 first prize money.

Tisiani, of Madison, Wis., beat Dennis Bradley, of Pittsford, N. P., one-up during the semifinals of the five-day tourney.

THE INTERNATIONAL Lawn Tennis Federation has extended the olive branch to the new World Team Tennis league and the new league's president says peace may be in the offing.

USC switches grid dates

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Southern California's football game with Oregon State this year has been switched from Sept. 21 to Oct. 26, Trojan Coach John McKay announced Thursday.

McKay, also the USC athletic director, said the 1975 game with the Beavers has been moved from Corvallis, Ore., to Los Angeles, because the Coliseum has a larger seating capacity.

"By playing in Los Angeles, each team should gross an additional $60,000 per game," McKay said.

This season's USC-Oregon State game was changed so the Beavers could fit a game with Ohio State at Columbus into the Sept. 21 date. USC was originally scheduled to be idle on Oct. 26.

The Trojans' 11-game 1974 schedule includes seven home games, all to be played during the daytime. The Trojans open their season Sept. 11 at Arkansas and finish at home against Notre Dame Nov.

Frazier left fight in studio?

Milton Richman

Sports parade

NEW YORK (UPI) — You've heard of guys leaving their fight in the gym or in the dressing room, but when is the last time you ever heard of one leaving it in a TV studio?

Joe Frazier may have left his there last week.

I have the distinct feeling he did.

There are some things in this world you simply can't run away from, one of them being Muhammad Ali's lightning quick left hand and the other his mouth, and it strikes me Joe Frazier is about to find that out tonight when the Madison Square Garden house lights dim, the bell sounds for round one and he's in there all alone with the one man he'd love to grind into little pieces—but can't.

This fight, like most others, figures to be settled on condition.

Physically, there isn't a lot to choose between the 32-year-old Ali and the 30-year-old Frazier. Both have worked slavishly to get themselves back to where they were at 25 and have succeeded to a miraculous degree within the limitations of nature.

Emotionally, though, it's an entirely different story.

Muhammad Ali's head is on straight. He knows precisely what he has to do and the best way to do it. With Joe Frazier it's something else again.

The feeling I get is that he still hasn't swept that terrible beating he took from George Foreman out of his mind. The feeling I get is he was further embarrassed by what happened when he allowed Ali to goad him into Wednesday's episode in that television studio.

The feeling I also get is that Muhammad Ali will be about as superior to Joe Frazier tonight as Miami was to Minnesota in the Super Bowl two weeks back, and that it'll be all over by the sixth round, maybe earlier, with Frazier's handlers huddling anxiously over him and the referee holding Ali's hand aloft.

Kidding with Ali a few days ago, Frazier asked him whether he learned anything by looking at the film of their first fight three years ago.

Ali didn't answer directly, but the fact is he has learned a great many things about Frazier.

He learned Smoking Joe doesn't always smoke. For all his aggressiveness, Frazier goes into leg-weary "slumps" along the way. Along with that, he's even easier to hit than Ali imagined and then one other thing—a little detail which could turn out to be the key in tonight's contest—Joe Frazier is, so naturally aggressive, he's always going forward that he doesn't know how to move back!

Had he been able to do so, had he been capable of covering up and backpedaling, he might've lasted longer with George Foreman.

Getting back to Wednesday's brawl in the studio, though, one good laugh did come out of it, I think, in light of those $5,000 fines plastered upon both Ali and Frazier by Edwin B. Dooley, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission.

One of the reasons for the fines, Dooley explained with a perfectly straight face, was because the two fighters "demeaned the sport of boxing."

Now, I ask you, how could anyone possibly demean boxing?

Something else puzzles me, too. Virtually everyone who witnessed the Wednesday flare-up between Ali and Frazier agreed it was no phony, it was authentic enough so that either one of the fighters could have broken a vertebra in his back while falling off the wooden platform they started on.

Only those who weren't there insisted it was a put-up job. They didn't see it, but somehow they knew it was contrived.

What these skeptics really show is that they don't know Joe Frazier. Muhammad Ali will do anything for a prank, a gag or a gimmick. Joe Frazier won't. He'd never premeditatedly be a part of any stunt like Wednesday's—first because it goes against his basic thinking and second because he doesn't have the imaginativeness to think up something like that on impulse.

That's why he was embarrassed about the whole thing later. That's why he apologized, and that's why I think it did something to his confidence.

All those who are so sure Joe Frazier was "play acting" Wednesday remind me of that Aesop's fable in which an entertainer goes up on a stage and imitates the squeal of a pig so faithfully that the audience applauds him enthusiastically.

Then an amateur walks up and offers a similar performance but his showing is deemed so poor, the crowd hoots him off the stage. Before leaving though, he pulls his coat open and shows he has a real pig under it which he has been pinching.

Aesop said the moral of all this is that critics are not always to be depended upon. Another way of saying that is sometimes people don't even recognize the truth when it's right there in front of them.

Cale, Junior feel it will be big year

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (UPI) — Cale Yarborough and Junior Johnson think 1974 is going to be a big year for them.

The driver-owner team may be right, too.

Runner-up to Benny Parsons in the NASCAR Grand National point standings last year, Yarborough won the season's stock car inaugural Saturday— the rain-delayed Winston Western 500.

Scoring his first victory ever in a road race, the 34-year-old Timmonsville, S.C., veteran won by 3.06 seconds over Mr. Stock Car Racing himself, Richard Petty.

"I could see Richard in my mirror," said Yarborough. "But I didn't know whether to worry more about him or running out of gas.

"I knew I could run fast enough to keep ahead of him but that meant using up fuel faster and I might have run out. But things worked out."

Driving Junior Johnson's 1973 Chevrolet, Yarborough did run out of gas right after the finish and had to be pushed into the winner's circle.

Saturday's race was only 335 miles. The event was halted by rain the previous weekend after 165 miles.

Yarborough won first prize money of $15,425 in the $103,000 race.

Following Petty, of Randleman, N.C., across the finish line, in order, were David Pearson of Spartanburg, S.C.; Parsons, Ellerbe, N.C., and Bobby Allison, Hueytown, Ala.

The next event on the Grand National schedule is the Daytona 500 Feb. 17. That race has been cut to 450 miles this year because of the energy crisis.

OLD BUDDIES—Even though his Notre Dame team suffered a 94-75 loss to UCLA, Irish coach Digger Phelps (R) has a friendly and smiling pat for UCLA's John Wooden after Saturday's battle.

Johnson the difference

Irish saw new team

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UPI) — The UCLA team that beat Notre Dame's fighting Irish Saturday night was not the same team the Irish defeated a week earlier, Coach Digger Phelps said Sunday.

"Notre Dame's trouble was that UCLA made some changes in the lineup," Phelps said.

Those changes, Phelps said, paced the Bruins to a 94-75 victory over the visiting Irish, who a week earlier had ended the Bruins' 88-game win skein with a one-point win at South Bend.

"They put Marques Johnson in at the one forward and don't let anybody tell you he's not a great player," Phelps said of Saturday night's loss. "Then they moved Dave Meyer to guard on the left side and he got the ball to (Bill) Walton very well. They just had super team balance and Walton and (Keith) Wilkes played a great game and they just beat us.'

Phelps said the Bruins had too much size for the smaller Irish.

Johnson, a 17-year-old freshman and the first freshman starter for UCLA in Coach John Wooden's career with the Bruins, was the key to the Bruin victory, Phelps said.

"Johnson simply gave them added strength on the boards," the Irish coach said.

"Wooden made these changes and it made them a much better team than we played a week ago," he said. They certainly adjusted very well to the changes in only one week and it's still UCLA's basketball."

But Phelps still took pride in the previous week's 71-70 win over the Bruins, a win which gave the Irish a short-lived view from college basketball's top spot.

"We've got nothing to be ashamed of, considering what we had two years ago and we've made great progress in two years," Phelps said.

"They'll never be able to take away from us what we did last week and it's been a great week for us. Our objective is still the same —to get an NCAA bid—and now we've got to get ready for Marquette," he said.

The Irish host 6th ranked Marquette Tuesday night.

Ducks take Pac-8 lead after victory

By United Press International

Betcha' can't name the team leading the Pacific Eight basketball team race today.

Even though UCLA probably regained the number one spot among the nation's college cage powers by thumping Notre Dame 94-75 Saturday night, Oregon leads the Pac-8 with a 5-0 record after taking Oregon State 67-61 Saturday afternoon in a wild contest that saw 57 fouls called, including two technicals on the Duck bench.

Oregon is no UCLA, but it is no fluke, either. Stu Jackson's three-point play with 26 seconds to go iced the Ducks' 11th win against five setbacks. Soph sensation Ron Lee led the Ducks with 20 points.

UCLA, which by the way is 40 in the Pac-8, led a great night for Coast quintets with its win as inspired Bill Walton poured in 32 points and 20 were added by Keith Wilkes, who thus atoned for the bad day he had in the one-point loss to Notre Dame that cost the Bruins their 88-game win streak and their No. 1 rating.

USC, 11th rated going into Saturday's action, might crack the top 10 with its 70-60 win at Fordham as Gus Williams led Troy with 16.

And ninth-rated Long Beach State was awesome in a 106-71 win over Northern Illinois as muscular Leonard Gray hooped 10 of 14 shots, and 22 points, while Fresno State ran its record to 12-3 with a 77-66 victory over Denver. Brilliant Bulldog forward Charles Bailey meshed 23 in that one.

Only Nevada Las Vegas sounded a clunker for Coast cage filberts as the Rebels were upset by old nemesis Houston 75-72. Ricky Sober registered 19 for Vegas, which saw its hope for national recognition dashed and its record skid to 12-4.

The Pac-8 got two wins as Washington was too tall for Seattle in a surprisingly easy 88-64 affair and Rickie Hawthorne hit the jumper at the buzzer to give Cal the 62-60 nod over San Jose State.

The Pac-8 gets back to fratricidal action this weekend with Cal at Stanford Friday while Oregon meets Oregon State in a Portland game that doesn't count in the standings. It's Washington State-Washington in the Saturday afternoon tiff then USC is at UCLA Saturday night.

Evert whips Billy Jean in Mission Viejo finals

MISSION VIEJO, Calif. (UPI) — Nineteen-year-old Chris Evert showed what a difference a week makes on the women's pro tennis trail Sunday.

The attractive miss from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., was beaten in the finals of the first Virginia Slims event of the year at San Francisco by Billie Jean King 7-6, 6-2.

A week later, Miss Evert reversed the defeat by turning back Mrs. King 6-3, 6-1 in 55 minutes.

The Evert-King score now reads: Chris five, Billie Jean four.

"I think it was more of what Billie Jean did than what I did that made the difference," Miss Evert said. "She made several mistakes this time that she didn't makemake up north."

"I don't think Billie Jean had a good day. She has so many things on her mind concerning women's tennis."

Mrs. King, 30, agreed.

"My mistaks weren't forced errors," she offered. "They were just my errors. I missed so many easy shots.

"I knew what I had to do but I just couldn't do them. It was just one of those weeks for me."

The victory was worth $10,000 and a $6,000 sports car for Miss Evert. However, she was on the losing team in the doubles finals with Mrs. King, bowing to unseeded Australians Lesley Hunt and Kerry Harris 7-6, 6-4.

Cowboys expected to pick 'Too Tall' to open pro draft

DALLAS (UPI) — Owning the No. 1 pick in the NFL player draft Tuesday for the first time in their history, the Dallas Cowboys are expected to select Tennessee State's 6-8, 260-pound defensive lineman, Ed "Too Tall" Jones.

The Cowboys will open the drafting at 9 a.m. CDT Tuesday thanks to a trade last year which sent defensive lineman Tody Smith and receiver Billy Parks to Houston in exchange for the Oilers' No. 1 and No. 3 draft picks.

The Oilers' No. 1 draft pick turned out to be the one to have since Houston finished with the worst NFL record for the second year in a row.

Although no Cowboy officials have said publicly the team would take Jones, they have been hinting at it for weeks and last week the club sent safety Cornell Green to Tennessee State for an appreciation dinner.

No other pro teams sent a representative.

Gil Brandt, the Cowboys' player personnel chief, has said Jones has the ability to "dominate a game."

The Cowboys, rather than drafting by need, have historically gone with the "best athlete" theory and it has worked to the extent that Dallas has built its team almost totally from drafting and the signing of free agents.

"We've always drafted the best athlete available, regardless of position," said Dallas president and general manager Tex Schramm. "That will hold true this year, with one notable addition.

"Since we have the first choice we will select the player we think has the best chance of any eligible player to become a superstar in the NFL. We've never had that luxury before."

Speculation had centered on a trade involving Dallas quarterback Craig Morton before the drafting day, but Schramm said it appeared unlikely that would happen. Morton had asked to be traded early last season.

Dallas will be one of six teams to have two first-round picks. Chicago, Baltimore, San Francisco, Minnesota and San Diego will also draft twice in first round.

Pro athletes work for Superstar title

ROTONDA, Fla. (UPI) — Twenty-four sports superstars swam, played golf, lifted weights and slugged baseballs today for the sake of $82,000 in prize money and a little off-season exercise.

The annual superstar contest began its second year in this west coast Florida resort town with two days of semi-final competition.

Included in the list of events are bowling, the 100-yard dash, the half-mile run, bicyclig and an obstacle race course, but the athletes can compete in only seven of the 10 events, excluding the sport in which they make their living.

As a result, baseball's Tug McGraw will be perfecting his breast stroke; tennis star Arthur Ashe could be swinging a baseball bat and skier Jean Claude Killy may be racing around a dirt track.

The 24 pros were divided into two 12-man groups. The top three in each group will enter the finals next month to compete against six semifinalists from last August's competition. The final victory purse totals $122,000.

Also from the baseball world are Pete Rose, Jim Palmer, Reggie Jackson, Brooks Robinson and Bobby Bonds. Stan Smith and Rod Laver will shelve their tennis rackets to join the play.

Rodeo performer Larry Mahan, soccer player Kyle Rote Jr., race car drivers Bobby Allison, Craig Breedlove and Jody Scheckter, boxers Bob Foster and Jerry Quarry, wrestler Dan Gable, track star Bill Toomey and football players Carl Eller, Franco Harris, O. J. Simspon, Roger Staubach, Paul Warfield and Dick Anderson are also on the lists.

The six winners of this week's semifinals will compete against trackman Bob Seagren, basketball players John Havlicek and Jim McMillian, ice skater Art Schenk, skier Karl Schranz and hockey player Yvan Cournoyer.

Seagren was the big money winner last year.

SAL chasers now face elimination

Claremont (15-4, 3-3) is presently riding on a three-game losing streak after falling to Ganesha, Garey and Montclair. And Chino, which entered league play three weeks ago with a 9-1 seasonal record, is just coming off a 45-43 overtime loss to Pomona.

But even though the two teams are just about out of the running for the league crown, it still is the big game Tuesday in the SAL.

Other games Tuesday afternoon include Upland at Montclair, Ganesha at Garey and Damien at Pomona. All varsity games begin at 4:45 p.m., just after the junior varsity contests.

With Ganesha and Montclair running away like they are from the rest of the pack, the big race could be for third place and a possible berth in the post-season CIF playoffs.

That's why the Claremont-Chino matchup is so important Tuesday.

Chino has been led by the high-scoring duo of forward Tim Smith and guard Bob Hairston. Smith is presently the sixth leading scorer in the SAL with an 18.3 average, while Hairston is eighth in the the league with a 16.5 average.

There isn't a single Claremont player in the top ten of the SAL scoring race, but center Bruce Abraham is still leading the Wolves with his 13.8 average.

The two teams met once earlier this year in the Chino Tournament when Claremont survived three overtimes before emerging with a 74-72 victory over the Cowboys. That was Chino's only loss in non league play.

What also should be an interesting matchup is the Upland-Montclair confrontation.

Not only are these two West End clubs fierce rivals, but Upland needs a victory in order to stay alive for a CIF berth and Montclair needs the win in order to stay close to Ganesha in the title chase.

Upland is paced by the SAL's leading scorer, forward Curt Oldenkamp. The 6-2 forward is averaging 24 points per game. He'll be aided by teammate Stu DuVall, who is the fourth-leading scorer in the league. The Highlanders' 6-5 center is averaging 19.2 points per game.

Montclair has a scoring weapon of its own.

Senior center Mark Gosswiller (6-6) has been the guiding force for the Cavaliers so far this season, averaging 21.2 points per game in league (third best) and better than 20 points per game on the season.

Tuesday will be the first meeting between these two clubs this season.

The tall and experienced Ganesha five shouldn't have too rough a time with the young and inexperienced Garey quintet.

If it was any other team, Ganesha might get caught looking ahead to next Friday's contest against Montclair. But since the Giants are facing the defending league champion Vikings, it should be a different story.

You see, the Giants have a few scores to settle.

Garey defeated Ganesha three times last year, which accounted for half of the Giants' season losses. Two of those three Giant losses came in league play.

All-CIF center Cleve Porter, the league's second-leading scorer with a 22.7 average, is the key figure in the Giants' lineup. But the presence of forward Broderick Hunter and guard Earl Wilson make the Giants a triple threat. Wilson has been unbelievable in league play, averaging 18.2 points per outing to place him as the seventh-leading scorer in the SAL.

Garey will be paced by sophomore forward Gary Carpenter, averaging 15.8 points per league game, junior forward Delbert McDonald (14.5) and junior guard Billy Evans (15.0).

Pomona as impressive in its slow-down tactics against Chino over the weekend, but the Red Devils probably won't need them Tuesday.

Coach Ed Taylor's Devils face a smaller Damien five, considered one of the best outside shooting clubs in the league.

Pierce wins race a day at Santa Anita

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Don Pierce has 24 wins in the first 24 days of Santa Anita and seven of them are stakes victories.

"I had so much horse under me that I knew I could go any time with him," said Pierce following his five-length triumph aboard Triangular in the $55,500 San Marcos Handicap Sunday.

"Usually he just lopes along. But today he really took hold of the bit."

The vastly improved 7-year-old gelding beat 5-2 favorite Big Spruce convincingly in the mile and one-quarter turf event to demonstrate he's a strong threat in upcoming major grass stakes this year.

"I wanted to stay with Big Spruce," added Pierce. "I knew that with any kind of fast pace there would be no horse that could catch him when he tired."

Kentuckian was third, nosing out Captain Cee Jay.

Purchased last December from the Hobeau Farm of Jack Freyfus by Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Taylor of Ellensburg, Wash., Triangular was clocked in 2:04 4-5 and paid $9.40 to win.

Triangular's third win in his last four starts was worth $33,000 to the Taylors.
